commission chosen to examine future of SUNY

By Jane Anderson

The State University of New York has formed an independent 11-member commission to study and recommend alternative strategies for the future of the SUNY system. Governor Cuomo appointed the commission last week after a meeting Thursday that the opening of the commission’s hearings would be on a ‘basis of good will.’

The commission, who included members from across the state, was appointed to study the SUNY system and to recommend a new strategic vision for the system.

The commission will begin its work by holding public hearings across the state to gather input from stakeholders.

The commission’s recommendations will be presented to Governor Cuomo in June 2024.
Committee promotes student spirit

By Christina Refael

A group called The Dog Pound, organized by Donald Woodard, Steve Alexander and Tom Keenan, has been trying to encourage more student attendance at SUNYA student basketball games. The group has also been successful at SUNYA's basketball games, "the Dog Pound," and Woodard, "I hear all the time how we must not sell out games, but people all want to come to the games to have fun and watch the game."

When asked why the group decided to form the Dog Pound, Woodard said, "I want to encourage more student attendance at SUNYA's basketball games, and have a good time." New treatment for chronic headaches offers more relief than traditional help

By Suzanne Martry

Now readily available, a new form of headache treatment is being offered at the University's Center for Stress and Anxiety Disorders. This treatment, called biofeedback, allows individuals to learn how to control stress-related headaches instead of relying on medication or surgery.

Biofeedback is a psychological technique that teaches individuals to recognize and control various physical responses, such as muscle tension, heart rate, and perspiration. By learning to control these involuntary responses, individuals can reduce the frequency and severity of their headaches.

Dr. Edward Blanck, a psychologist at the University's Center for Stress and Anxiety Disorders, says that biofeedback can be particularly helpful for individuals who experience frequent headaches that are not caused by physical factors such as sinus problems or eye strain.

"Biofeedback is a non-invasive, drug-free method of managing headaches," Blanck says. "It allows individuals to take control of their symptoms and improve their quality of life."}

SUNY Commission on the Future of the State University System

The SUNY Commission on the Future of the State University System met on February 3, 1984, to discuss the future of higher education in New York. The commission is charged with examining the state's higher education system and recommending changes to improve its effectiveness.

The commission heard testimony from representatives of various SUNY campuses, as well as members of the general public. The testimony addressed issues such as funding, faculty salaries, and student retention.

Commission Chairperson Dr. William H. Hall said that the commission is examining the state's higher education system in light of changing economic conditions and increased competition from private institutions.

"We are looking at ways to ensure that New York's higher education system remains competitive and effective," Hall said. "We want to make sure that our students are receiving a quality education and that our campuses are well-equipped to meet the needs of the 21st century."
COLUMNS

A male perspective

The entry of articles and letters to the end of last month by Libby Post, Hamilton South and myself, dealing with feminism and specifically the question of an all-female residence hall, has generated considerable debate among the University community. There is, however, a great deal of confusion and misinformation regarding this issue. The purpose of this column is to clarify some of the misunderstandings.

David Janower

First, I must make it clear that I am not presenting any new information or arguments. There are those who believe that feminism is an ideology of women's rights, and that men should not be concerned with it. I disagree. I believe that feminism is a movement to achieve equality for all people, regardless of gender. It is a movement to end discrimination against women, and to ensure that they have equal opportunities in all aspects of life.

Second, I want to address the concern that feminism is a threat to men's rights. This is a false accusation. Feminism does not seek to take away men's rights, but to ensure that men's rights are equal to women's rights. It is a movement to ensure that all people, regardless of gender, have equal opportunities in all aspects of life.

Third, I want to address the concern that feminism is a threat to traditional family values. This is a false accusation. Feminism does not seek to destroy traditional family values, but to ensure that these values are based on equality and fairness. It is a movement to ensure that all people, regardless of gender, have equal opportunities in all aspects of life.

Finally, I want to address the concern that feminism is a threat to men's masculinity. This is a false accusation. Feminism does not seek to destroy men's masculinity, but to ensure that it is based on equality and fairness. It is a movement to ensure that all people, regardless of gender, have equal opportunities in all aspects of life.

In conclusion, I believe that feminism is a movement to achieve equality for all people, regardless of gender. It is a movement to end discrimination against women, and to ensure that they have equal opportunities in all aspects of life. I urge all people, regardless of gender, to support this movement and to work towards achieving equality for all people.

On the other hand, I have been trained since I was born to think in certain ways. I was taught that men are privileged "oppressors." In truth, however, I don't believe I can fight it better! My thoughts. Perhaps this column should be titled "Yet another A male perspective."

Kennedy's Albany

by Dean Beitz

illiam Kennedy, rising star of contemporary fiction, writes a book about his life on the city of Albany, with the support of thousands of younger novelists, biographers, librarians, and critics.

Kennedy's Albany is a key work in the city's history. It describes how the city has been transformed from a historic frontier town to a modern metropolis.

The book begins with a vivid description of Albany's early days, when it was a bustling frontier town. It then goes on to describe how the city has evolved over the years, with a particular focus on the role of the Democratic machine and the influence of the Irish community.

Kennedy's writing is praised for its vivid descriptions of Albany's history and its ability to capture the spirit of the city. The book is a valuable resource for anyone interested in the history of Albany or contemporary fiction.

Five records smashed; women swimmers 11-0

By Michael Skolnick

The unpredicted women's swimming meet that took place on the first day Saturday to the Mohawk Valley Invitational meet held both years and spaced about June 1, 1984. But, the seniors' record does not null the entire story. Pauline Van Zandt and the team as a whole against Binghamton in the Danes were quick to instance.

The Danes came through the prelims and qualified for the 800-yard freestyle relay teams. Nancy Smith has become the Danes' premier long distance swimmer. She has been a mainstay in the Danes' premier long distance swimming. New records were set in the 200-yard backstroke and 100-yard breaststroke. One highlight of the meet was the 200-yard medley relay team's performance. The time was 1:39.29, which took seconds off previous best time. Francis Nelson, Mary Daly, Mary Monahan, and Janet Boman were on the Danes' 100-yard medley relay team. In reading about swimming, the most important factor is the results of hard work and dedication. Mary Daly, Mary Monahan, and Janet Boman were these swimmers especially well trained and pushed. Janet Boman has quickly made the seniors' record. The underrated women's swimming team of Carol Pearl, Boman, Smith and Van Zandt contributed to the Danes' victory. The final school year was the Danes' premier long distance swimming season.

The Danes went out of the pool with the glory years of the past, according to Coach Shore. This season's match was no contest as the Danes went through the motions and Adamante. Amidst the turnovers, mental mistakes, and overall sloppy play were some bright spots. The numbers don't tell the correct story of the Danes. They have easily been 40 points had Albany come to play. The Danes went through the motions and didn't stir up their season mark to an outstanding 11-0.

Asbury Park and it has been an adventure. This year's Danes have not only been a team but a family. They have been working especially well in practice and Coach Shore is confident of their success. The Danes beat both teams and upped their season mark to an outstanding 11-0. This season's match was no contest as the Danes went through the motions and Adamante. Amidst the turnovers, mental mistakes, and overall sloppy play were some bright spots. The numbers don't tell the correct story of the Danes. They have easily been 40 points had Albany come to play. The Danes went through the motions and didn't stir up their season mark to an outstanding 11-0.

One highlights of the meet was the Danes' premier long distance swimming season. Nancy Smith has become the Danes' premier long distance swimmer. She has been a mainstay in the Danes' premier long distance swimming season. New records were set in the 200-yard backstroke and 100-yard breaststroke. One highlight of the meet was the 200-yard medley relay team's performance. The time was 1:39.29, which took seconds off previous best time. Francis Nelson, Mary Daly, Mary Monahan, and Janet Boman were on the Danes' 100-yard medley relay team. In reading about swimming, the most important factor is the results of hard work and dedication. Mary Daly, Mary Monahan, and Janet Boman were these swimmers especially well trained and pushed. Janet Boman has quickly made the seniors' record. The underrated women's swimming team of Carol Pearl, Boman, Smith and Van Zandt contributed to the Danes' victory. The final school year was the Danes' premier long distance swimming season.

The Danes went out of the pool with the glory years of the past, according to Coach Shore. This season's match was no contest as the Danes went through the motions and Adamante.
