TRIBUNE CONTEST

State College students will be given an opportunity to compete for the New York "Tribune" Platform Contest prizes. Letters from S. C. T. will be published February 20. The contest is open at all times to any person, but the platform editor has guaranteed that on this date the majority of letters commenting on the Republican platform for 1920 will be from State College students. He has also promised that the prize winning letter on that day will come from State College.

STATE DEFEATS PHARMACY

State College defeated the College of Pharmacy on junior night by a score of 22-11. State led all the way and their lead was never in danger. The first half ended 21-4. During this half State played a consistent game. Storrmans and Cassavant making baskets from all angles of the court. Lashbord came through with a nice basket during this period.

The second half State seemed to be content with the lead already established.

STATE LOSES TO COLGATE

State lost to the speedy Colgate five on the 17th in the A. H. S. gym. Although Colgate was nerved at any time to great danger of losing the game State played a good form, and it was only because of the greater weight and experience of the Marson and White contingent that they were enabled to pile up the score.

The home team played a brand of basketball seldom seen in college circles. The Colgate players played

STATE LOSES HOCKEY GAME TO ARMY

The State College hockey team opened its season at West Point, Saturday, January 17. The first Army team won by a score of 4-0. Although the State College team was inexperienced and handicapped by lack of practice, its fighting spirit gave promise of future success. Points scored by the eleven Army team were well earned, as their plays were broken up time and again.

The line-up for State was: Gray, center; Ferguson, rover; Kaag, right wing; Nemier, left wing; Mooney, rover (a good scoring point); Hoffman, goal; Foster, substitute.

Score at half time was 4-0; total score 16-0.

WHY BE A "JOLLY JUNIOR"?

"A set of duffers, corrected hangers, confuse their brains in college and come out dead."

Plain truth to speak; and why do they climb Parnassus by dint of "Greek"?

We might have been forced to agree with Bobbie Burns in his "Lines to John Lapraik" and designate colleges for French farms if it were not for one thing— "The Jolly Junior" is also a part of college. He is the one who is most evident during the first semester of every class. Some of us have "gang in stirks" and come out dead, but the Jolly Junior is here to wish us luck in getting the junior's hall off the outside of future seniority. We have hired vice-controllers, attempted the dead ourselves, but to no avail. There is only one thing that will help us here.

The Jolly Junior should have his beginnings in the freshmores; he should build in the sophomore year; he should blossom forth in great splendor in the junior reception and prom; and it is his privilege to be in the senior hall. He does not then belong to any one class, but to all of us. We call him "junior" because he is in the junior and junior years. He stands for all our social life.

Mr. Dear Dr. Brubacher: being a graduate of State College (’89) you may be interested to know that New York City teachers sent over their children to see your beautiful campus, and thereby you are represented.

It is a privilege to appreciate, thoroughly enjoy, and properly respect our own country as well as any other.

It would indeed be hard to describe my feelings while viewing miles and miles of green fields, filled with many, water-filled trenches, and under the beautiful, wide trees, and ditches, knowing that it was here that many of our own boys gave their lives for the Brotherhood of Man, and then to come down off the hill and walk with the Stars and Stripes floating proudly, sees a sad and picture that years can never dim. I can realize now why the boys have nothing to say about it—the horror of it could never be put into words.

We saw the German stronghold in the Argonne that our boys captured and held. It is the memorials of Prince Rupert and we since refer to it as "Beerfield," for they were all plastered, some painted and others papered, but don't think it was for decoration but for safety. We went down through the streets and saw the truce to one of the several exits carrying a canteen.

The 60-foot gallery of the "Ravine of Death" was also interesting. There were emblems on the clay walls done by the German citizens and the trench walls, after fighting about Arras, Lens and Vimy Ridge.

Another thing we saw was the Bressey Trench at Verdun. Two companies of French soldiers were ready to attack our trenches and the German barrage came over and the trench walls was hit but the trench walls held. It were better, we sometimes think, if need be for good measure. We can appeal to our friends who have had the opportunity to wish you luck in getting the junior's hall off the outside of seniority, and we desire to say that the name of this institution is New York State College for Teachers, or even the "Student Teachers' School"—we call it State College with the rhubarb talked on if need be for good measure. Are quite instant on this little matter, Mr. Knickerbocker, and hope you will humor this whim of ours in your future write-ups.

A SOPHOMORE SOIREE

The biggest event of the junior year has just passed. For two years and a half the class of 1921 was looked upon as the one big means of preventing our having these memories of good times are still with us, as seems through the eyes of our eyes as propitious to be a jolly junior than any other. The sophomores are not going to be roped out our record as a junior class in State College. Are we going to rob them of the opportunities we have gained or are we going after more? Are we going to keep back or are we going to keep a keen look out for them? We have the necessary qualifications for leadership and it's up to us to use our ability.

It's be up and doing. Twenty-one.

THAT BELL

The juniors are managing this issue of the "News" by themselves. A brief article has been requested from the editor, here goes! We wouldn't seem at all natural, in writing for the "News," to have anything but wish success to 1921, especially members of the heart-Stepping on the pow'r of things. We are in good training as a result of our "warming up" last term and we should be ready to take the lead. We have only this half year left in which to solidify our record as a junior class in State College. Are we going to go six months without gaining or are we going after more? Are we going to keep back or are we going to keep a keen look out for them? We have the necessary qualifications for leadership and it's up to us to use our ability.

It's be up and doing. Twenty-one.

WELCOME TO BRAG.

Far be it from the "News" to flatter itself, but it does think that the "Jolly Junior" has had the same amount of his usual error. He has had the same amount of the usual error as usual error, which is more than can be said of the "Knickerbocker-Press" a few years ago. It is the "Press" that we are not yet teachers, and the "Press" is foolish enough to expect to be treated like us. We acknowledge the fault, and we desire to inform the above mentioned daily that the name of this institution is New York State College for Teachers, and that the only publication of that title designed to be State College or "State."

We are not the "teachers' factory"—the "Student Teachers' School."—we call it State College with the rhubarb talked on if need be for good measure. Are quite instant on this little matter, Mr. Knickerbocker, and hope you will humor this whim of ours in your future write-ups.

The Power of Electricity in Transportation

Electricity is the power which drives the trains of New York City's subway and aerial systems. It operates the locks and tugs the ships through the Panama Canal. It propels the Navy's latest war-dreadnought, the New Mexico Electric mills locomotives have replaced the steam-engined ones and the electric automobile has also come to do an important service. Electricity has become the universal motive power. It has eliminated the plodding toil of every form of transportation service and in this evolution General Electric appears to have played a large part—from mighty electric locomotives to the tiny lamp for the automobile.

It Is About Time!
"I was hoping they would be married by this time," said the returned doughboy to his mother as he was reading a magazine.
"Who, who do you mean, dear?" asked the mother.
"The girl on the magazine cover and the fellow in the collar advertisement," was the reply.

Think What He Missed!
"When I told her I killed a German with one hand, she grabbed it and kissed it all over."
"You're an idiot," said his pal.
"Why didn't y' tell her you bit the tin to death?"

Most Impressive
"And what impressed you as the most remarkable thing about the war?" asked the lady of a returned doughboy.
"The number of bullets that missed me, ma'am."
ATTENDANCE RULES

Record of Absences.—All absences for whatever cause shall be reported each week by the instructor to the Registrar upon blanks provided for that purpose, and shall be recorded not later than 8 o'clock of the Monday following the week or part of a week the report covers.

Excusing Officer.—Except for legitimate absences, may be secured in the case of women students from the Dean of Women and should be filed at once with the Registrar.

Time Limit for Securing Excuse.—Written excuse for excusable absences must be secured from the excusing officer within one week after the initial date of absence, except that a student who is disabled longer than a week may also secure from another legitimate excuse a notification in writing to the excusing officer, securing written excuse immediately on his return.

Classification of Absences.—All absences shall be classified as excusable, non-excusable, and as permitted, as follows:

a. Excusable Absences.—Excusable absences shall include:
   (1) Absences caused by illness verified by a physician’s certificate or by other evidence satisfactory to the excusing officer.
   (2) Absences caused by serious illness or death in the immediate family.
   (3) Absences due to substitute teaching when arrangements for such absences have been made in advance.
   (4) Absences due to conditions over which a student has no control, such as a severe storm or interrupted train or trolley service.
   (5) Absences due to an approved athletic schedule.
   (6) Absences due to authorized attendance upon a State or National convention of a student organization.
   (7) Absences not classified in subdivisions (1) to (6) but considered legitimate by the excusing officer.

b. Non-Excusable Absences.—Non-excusable absences shall include:
   (1) Absences caused by the carelessness or forgetfulness of a student.
   (2) Absences caused by extra-curricular activities of any nature.
   (3) Absences from one class to prepare work for another class.
   (4) Absences due to suspension from a class.
   (5) Absences for which written excuse has not been secured within the time limit.
   (6) Absences not classified in subdivisions (1) to (5) deemed non-excusable by the excusing officer.

Tardiness.—All absences, whether permitted, excusable, or non-excusable, for which no explanation will be required and no excuse granted, may include in a given semester:

(1) The first absence, for whatever cause, in a one hour course.
(2) The first two absences, for whatever cause, in a two hour course.
(3) The first three absences, for whatever cause, in a three or four hour course.

An absence on the opening or closing day of a semester or upon the day instruction ends or is resumed at a recess or vacation period shall count as the full number of permissible absences in a given course.

Overcuts.—Overcuts shall be defined and regulated as follows:

a. Definition.—An unexcused absence occurring after the first absence in a given semester shall count as the full number of permissible absences in a given course.

b. Regulation.—A student who does not secure an excuse from the proper excusing officer and file it in the Registrar’s office within one week after he has been notified of an overcut shall be dropped from the course at which the overcut occurs and be reported by the instructor at the end of the semester as failed. Thus, satisfactory explanation must be offered and excuse secured for any absence occurring after the first in a one hour course, after the second in a two hour course, and after the third in a three or four hour course.

Students who are in any doubt about the interpretation of these rules should confer with the Dean or the Dean of Women. Lack of knowledge of the rules may not be offered as the basis of an excuse for absence.

Dr. Goldbein is a leading authority in the country on the subject of posture and its relation to health. This lecture will be supplemented by illustrative material.

A Genuine Surprise

What are the three greatest vices? This question was the gist of a questionnaire made among thousands of our boys and girls. When the results were all gathered together, it was found that 89 per cent of the students who answered the questionnaire had the following vices in common. The three vices were:

1. Carelessness
2. Selfishness

He Saw!
"Here's your horse," said the cavalry instructor as he gave a bridle to a young raw recruit.
"Thanks," said the recruit as he examined his mount. Then, seeing the saddle girth, he asked: "Just what's R. G. mean around its waist for?"
"Oh, that!" answered the instructor. "Well, you see, cavalry horses have a distinct sense of humor. They like to laugh, and sometimes, when there are recruits around, we have to put on these straps to keep 'em from bustin' their sides."

He Had Musical Pains
A private answered sick call the other day and complained of "pains in the head."
The surgeon asked "What kind of pains?"
"Musical, sir," the private said. "The kind that sounded like Home, Sweet Home.

Careless Cootie
A top sergeant called the doughboy's attention to a cootie crawling on the front of his coat. The doughboy carefully picked the animal off and placed it inside his coat. "Get inside, you little cootie," said the private. "Want to catch pneumonia?"

Where Pat Was
In a small village in Ireland the mother of a soldier met the village priest, who asked her if she had heard news. "Sure, I have," she said. "Pat has been killed."
"Oh, I am very sorry," said the priest. "Did you receive word from the War Office?"
"No," she said, "I received word from himself."
The priest looked perplexed, and the letter said: "Dear mother—I am now in the Holy Land."

An Advance to the Back
In one of the first trenches were 5,000 negro troops, supported at some distance in the rear by a force of whites 18,000 strong. A newly arrived negro trooper, who was visibly nervous, was busily "bidding" his comrades: "Don't do nothin' to me, boys. I'm cool."

In His Own Camouflage
A negro doughboy was clad in white pajamas one night, when the camp was surprised by German bombings. Everybody headed for his own dugout and Sam had some distance to travel.
"What did you do?" he was asked the next morning.
"Oh, I was easy," he replied.
"Doughboy, you're wearing the same pajamas in de world. I dropped dem pajamas right when I stood an' made de rest o' de trip in my birthday clothes."

STATE LOSES TO ARMY
match was an anemic ten minutes elapsed before there was any scoring. The first goal was made by Wadsworth of Union. Several times during the first half, through the good passwork of Cassavant and Kaag, State carried the puck to the goal, but was unable to cage it. Union made three more goals in the first half. The continual snow handicapped both teams in playing their best.
The second half opened with a very close defense game on the part of State and held down to two goals. State outplayed both teams in playing their best. The continual snow handicapped both teams in playing their best.

He Saw!
"Here's your horse," said the cavalry instructor as he gave a bridle to a young raw recruit.
"Thanks," said the recruit as he examined his mount. Then, seeing the saddle girth, he asked: "Just what's R. G. mean around its waist for?"
"Oh, that!" answered the instructor. "Well, you see, cavalry horses have a distinct sense of humor. They like to laugh, and sometimes, when there are recruits around, we have to put on these straps to keep 'em from bustin' their sides."

He Had Musical Pains
A private answered sick call the other day and complained of "pains in the head."
The surgeon asked "What kind of pains?"
"Musical, sir," the private said. "The kind that sounded like Home, Sweet Home.

Careless Cootie
A top sergeant called the doughboy's attention to a cootie crawling on the front of his coat. The doughboy carefully picked the animal off and placed it inside his coat. "Get inside, you little cootie," said the private. "Want to catch pneumonia?"

Where Pat Was
In a small village in Ireland the mother of a soldier met the village priest, who asked her if she had heard news. "Sure, I have," she said. "Pat has been killed."
"Oh, I am very sorry," said the priest. "Did you receive word from the War Office?"
"No," she said, "I received word from himself."
The priest looked perplexed, and the letter said: "Dear mother—I am now in the Holy Land."
