Potte Revisited...

Eighty miles from Albany there's a big white elephant.

Two weeks ago Hyde Parkers were hotly discussing the possibility of driving eighty miles to see the site. Apparently they were impressed. It is going to make quite a difference in the number of people trying to drive eighty miles to relax in their camp. We doubt it.

We haven't been to D hd lottesville—yet, perhaps the fault is ours. But it takes a lot of motivation and persuasion to want to go eighty miles to enjoy the primitive things in life.

Most of us can go home in less than the three hours it takes to get to Glocester—we can eat better and find more conveniences. Now of course we like to be with our fellow students, but just how many of our fellow students are going to want to travel eighty miles?

At any rate, much as we like the idea of having a student camp, we can't see the point of having it eighty miles from school, unless it has something more than potbellies and oscillations to offer.

The Why?...

This year State has suffered from a great number of dropouts. These students have left school for both academic and personal reasons. Why? When we are accepted at this school we've got the pick of the crop, the top group of college entrants in the state. Why don't we then leave for academic reasons.

Our grading system as it is set up does not allow for freshman errors. The poor mark who happens to be in a "C" category in four out of six courses and gets a "D" in the last two may preserve an exceptional the next semester to maintain a 2.0. If these courses are in his major or minor, this is a disaster. It can be even more.

However, regardless of the fact that the course has been taken, the student must still go and retake the course. What is the reasoning for this? Would it be possible for the instructor to discuss this position and others with the faculty and administration and perhaps have some effective changes made?

A further reason for leaving school is the disillusionment one suffers as a result of some of the courses taught here. To make this program more specialized or limited at the education department, although they aren't the only ones at fault. Why isn't it possible that some of these courses be reorganized to include an authoritative text. There needs to be a better way of looking at these courses. What is the reasoning for this? Would it be possible for the instructor to discuss this position and others with the faculty and administration and perhaps have some effective changes made?

College Ruggers Brave Snows at Dippikill—What Joy!

Ice, Winter Picnic, Tobogganing, Cards Highlight Myskania's Sunday Festivities

By DAVID FENTON

If I'm right in my Sunday morning taxi ride, it's going to be a good day for the Myskania rugby football team. They've got a big game against the SUNY-Lewisburg team at Dippikill, and the weather is perfect for a day of outdoor activities—ice, snow, and cold.

They said it couldn't be done... They said nobody could do it... but—

HOW TO MAKE $25

This is a real bargain, for one thing. With it, you can make fake desire to several observers, making them believe that you have a transplant, as the story is told of a similar case. A transplant is a trick, and it is a simple one. We're paying $25 for a real transplant, while we're paying $25 for a fake one.
