FAIR PLAY TO OUR MEN

In last week's issue of the "News," a matter was brought to the attention of the students, the writing of which was a surprise to many of us. The article stated, in part, that the reasons for our basketball team's defeat the other week was the result of the lack of funds in the basketball treasury. This statement is very evident in the letters that were quoted last week. Our basketball appropriation was at least $400 too short, figuring on the proportionate costs of last year's appropriation, and those of other years. How we wish we had made that appropriation this year, matters little. The question is how are we going to straighten the matter out now?

Athletes have done much to put State College on the map—and- and shall have done the same in doing the trick. The efforts of our teams during past years have been described in this review of the season; do we want to go down on record as having neglected our duty to those who have worked so selflessly for us all winter?

A very simple and logical method of making up the deficiency was suggested last week—a reappropriation of the necessary amount from items in our budget where the money is available. There is always a surplus—more than necessary to cover the basketball deficiency. Such a surplus, therefore, could be carried out on a motion before the student body on Friday morning.

Let us show our gratitude and loyalty to our boys by a unanimous vote in favor of the necessary reappropriation. Unless this occurs, the basketball team shall be guilty of ingratitude of the worst kind and the fate of basketball at State College will be sealed.

A PARABLE

Once upon a time, a city far away in Illinois, there was a man who could, write and do other things. He had been trained in Greek but did not know Latin declensions, neurones, axones, and some facts in history. He was dressed very raggedly—haggard, ruffled, and wrinkled, and his appearance was one of deep depression. By trade he was a professor as you might have guessed before this. For thirty long years, he had dispensed education at Crab University, Kankakee, Ill., and yet he was unable to live on the small wages of a depressed man.

On this anniversary of his thirty years of service at the above-mentioned institution, he walked along the main street of Kankakee with a sphygmometer and a stethoscope, and the doctor of one who has entered his office—lost his practice—had a case of "irreparable maladie.

"Well, if it isn't my old friend, Professor Inn Sucker! You remember me, don't you? Jones of the class of 90. Well, well, well! How are you doing here—conducting excretion courses?"

"Y—yes—after all my contacts will extend entirely through our units," replied Professor Sucker, in a hollow voice, which was not unutterable of some delicacy within his body frame. "Or can't you say? Oh! that's too bad. Say, Prof. You was always good to me—considered me every year in April, which made me a bricklayer instead of a professor. I've always been grateful to you for that—and it seems that fate has torn you in your way to repay you. I'm a city contractor now, and I'll get you a job with a salary—a salary like you've been getting, all your life. Come along, I'll set you on your feet."

Three months later, we see Prof. Sucker again, late one afternoon, dressed up in a pair of over-wielded shoes. Alongside of him was a pile of dirt, indicating the street excavation. A wheelbarrow with a siloire, and a pick. Prof. Sucker lowers his pick, and draws a diamond-studded watch from where the pricing has not yet been revealed from his pocket.

"Well, I've always—time to quit, I see you again some other time. Yes, home, and on your way drive past Crab University. I wonder if you can see me at home before I leave. Prof. Hesse, Poorhead, is looking in his search for the psychological reason for the failure of the miniscule, educated, individual, known as a professor, to keep the shorter diameter of his sagittal section above the minimum of five inches."

A sit on the velvet cushions missing while Jones collected his implements.

TEACHERS JUBILANT AT SUCCESS OF BILLS FOR INCREASED SALARIES

School teachers who for weeks have been conducting a persistent campaign at the capital in the interest of the Lockwood-Danforth bill, intended to provide minimum salary increases throughout the state, were jubilant when the bill passed the House of Representatives last week.

Supporters of the measure anticipated that it would be passed by the Assembly. A very early senator to vote in favor of the measure was negative was Adam P. Brown, Republican of Monroe.

Under the measure the average increase per teacher in New York city would amount to $500; Buffalo and Rochester, $350; Albany, Schenectady, Utica, Troy, Syracuse and Yonkers, $450; cities of the third class and any town, $500; New Rochelle and White Plains, $200; minor free school districts, $100; towns in school districts, $50; common school districts, $250.

"Well, Rastus, I hear you are working again. What business are you engaged in?"

"I've been doing a little business, sir."

"What kind of mining are you doing?"

"Can I dance with you?"

She: "You may try."

FRESHMEN PRESENT "SCHOOL DAYS"

That sure was pretty rosy the way those freshmen carried on at their aunt Friday, March 12th, when they presented "School Days." In the dignified garb of a school maiden, we hardly recognized Juliana Eurer, who succeeded in keeping the school in order.

After Helen Hood have sung the opening song, "We're Freshmen, Inn Just for a While," Joe Hillman as "Liber" in a bit of "自由," created a little excitement. A trio of Mabel and Georgia Koch, Margaret Bennett and Joe, playing the roles of "We're a Happy Family." This was met with applause. Helen Hughes as a prim and proper "Cherub," recited "All of Us Are in a Tree," Louise Kelly and "Shirley" Bennett sang "Baby Doll." Then Elsie Leonard and Florence Dorsey, not to be outdone, told about the different kinds of blues with which freshmen are troubled.

Sheila, Marian, McFarlane, Johnson, Edna Harig and Queen Homan idealize in a creating occasional laughs. The delivery was not bad, with the song "A Little Bit of Green."
Students of all classes may offer themselves as candidates by submitting their names to the Editor-in-Chief within the first two weeks of each term. A request for candidates will be printed at that time in the "News." C. 2. Candidates will then be assigned to do specific work; those who wish to compete for business management under the direction of the Business Manager, and the others under the direction of the Managing Editor.

3. In May of each year at least five of the Sophomores will be chosen, on a strict basis of merit, to permanent positions as Associate Editors, four Sophomores and one Freshman.

4. From the Associate Editors, who are members of the Junior Class, the Editor-in-Chief, the Managing Editor, the Business Manager, and the Subscription Manager will be chosen each year by vote of the Editorial Board.

5. From the Associate Editors, who are members of the Sophomore Class, the Assistant Business Manager will be chosen in May of each year by a similar vote.

6. Choice in each case will be determined by the records of service for the year.

7. Records of service rendered by each individual of their staff will be kept each year by the Editor-in-Chief, the Managing Editor, and the Business Manager, according to a system of points which they together shall determine.

8. These records will be presented by the Board from year to year.

a. The Editor-in-Chief shall have general supervision of the publication of the paper, shall determine its policies and be responsible for its expressed opinions. He shall write, or personally assign to be written, the editorials of the paper.

STATE WINS!

Two-base hit to center field. Phaffko made the first run for St. Stephen's in this inning.

In the third State made eleven runs. Spraggman's home-run, with bases full, was the feature of the game. It was made when he was at bat the second time. St. Stephen's second and last run was made in this inning by Colwell.

State made three more runs in the fourth and seventh innings, while St. Stephen's nine, although knocking out little flies or grounders, failed to make any more coming to alert and almost effortless playing of State's nine.

State's first home game will be with Worcester Polytechnic Institute at Kidgell on May 7. Worcester has a fine team and a hard game is expected, but with Johnson's good arm and Miller's never-failing mitt at home we'll look forward to another victory.
