New Records Prove Swimmers Are Not a Fluke

by Larry Rosse

When Albany met Williams in the Berkshire basketball tournament on Sunday afternoon, the Gator players were focused on one thing: beating Williams to stay alive in their quest for a trip to the NCAA tournament. The right before the Danes led by 7-6, Albany jumped out to an 18-10 lead in the first half and put away Williams, 18-10, in the first half.

The fact that they won is not surprising, but what is surprising is the fact that they were able to do it with such ease. The Danes were led by freshman guard Dan Crouler, who scored 12 points and had 11 rebounds.

The Danes now boast an impressive record of 4-1, their best start in two seasons they were not.

The Danes played well in the first half, outscoring the Gators 18-10. In the second half, the Danes continued their strong play, outscoring the Gators 10-2. The Danes were led by Filzpatrick, who scored 12 points and had 7 rebounds.

Coal Could Save Billions

New York, NY (AP) - President Reagan asked for use of coal in energy policy Thursday and the State Department reported that U.S. coal is no longer the world's pricier fuel.

The report by the Department of State was based on a study of world coal prices. It said that U.S. coal is now competitive with other major coal producers and that it is cheaper than oil and gas.

The study found that coal prices have fallen sharply in recent years, due to increased production and improved technology. It also noted that the U.S. has the world's largest coal reserves and that it is a major supplier of coal to other countries.

President Reagan said the coal policy will help reduce the nation's dependence on foreign oil and gas.

In other news:

- The U.S. Department of Transportation announced a deal with Arab states to build a new airport in the United Arab Emirates.
- The United Nations Security Council voted to extend sanctions against Libya for 90 days.
- The European Union agreed to impose sanctions on Iran for its support for terrorism.

Cambodia: "I Feel Happier Now"

PHNOM PENH (AP) - "I feel happier now," said a Cambodian woman who was forced to work as a prostitute during the Khmer Rouge regime. She is one of many Cambodians who have been freed from the sex trade and are now working in factories or small businesses.

"I'm able to support my family now," she said. "Before, I had to work in the streets."

The woman, who is 30 years old, said she was forced to work in a brothel when she was 15 years old. She was escaped and was reunited with her family last year.

Cambodia has one of the world's highest rates of prostitution, with an estimated 300,000 women working in the sex trade. Many of them were forced into the profession by poverty, violence or other factors.

Cambodian officials have been working to combat the trade and have freed thousands of women from the streets.

Student Challenges Ethics of an EOP Request

Use of Tutors Examined

By John Smith

The Albany Student Press

A student at SUNY has challenged the ethics of using tutors for students who are struggling with their coursework.

"I don't think it's fair to use tutors," said the student, who asked not to be named. "They're supposed to be students too, and they're getting paid to help others."

The student said she believed the use of tutors was a form of exploitation and that it was unfair to the students who were doing the tutoring.

The Albany Student Press received a request from the Office of Student Affairs to use tutors for students who are taking courses in the area of environmental science.

"We're trying to help students who are struggling," said a spokesperson for the Office of Student Affairs. "We believe tutors are a good way to do this."

The student challenged the request, saying that it was a violation of the ethical standards of the university and that it was unfair to the students who were doing the tutoring.

"I'm not sure what the point is," said the student. "If they want to help students, they should be doing it for free."

The Office of Student Affairs is currently reviewing the request and will make a decision in the near future.

Bookstore Policies are Questioned

By Frank O'Brien

The Albany Student Press

The student council at SUNY is questioning the policies of the bookstore, which is owned by Mohasco College.

"We believe the bookstore is overcharging for its products," said the student council president. "We want to see some changes."}

The student council has been meeting with representatives of the bookstore to discuss the issue and is working to find a solution.

"We want to make sure the students are getting a fair deal," said the president. "We're not happy with the way things are going now."

The bookstore is owned by Mohasco College, which is a private college in upstate New York.

The student council is a student-run organization that represents the interests of the students at SUNY.

Space Chapters Planned

By John Johnson

The Albany Student Press

A new chapter of the Spaceknights, a student-run organization, is being planned at SUNY.

"We're excited about this," said the chapter president. "It's going to be a great opportunity for our students."}

The Spaceknights is a student-run organization that is dedicated to the study of space and related topics.

The chapter will be formed at SUNY and will be the first of its kind in the state.

SUNVA Pence Project rebel demonstrators stage draft protest

By Steve Genova

A protest of students and faculty officially affiliated with SUNY Port Authority was held in response to the rising of prices, and the general decrease of the quality of meal in the campus. The protest was conducted by students from the Social Welfare department, who have been actively involved in the Sunva Pence Project, which aims to improve the conditions of the campus dining facilities. The protest was supported by many students who were dissatisfied with the current state of the campus cafeteria.

Central Council States Its Case

As members of SUNY Central Council, we believe strongly that the minimum wage issue is of great importance to our student body. We have heard many arguments in favor of raising the minimum wage, and we have heard many arguments against raising the minimum wage. It is our belief that raising the minimum wage is the best way to ensure that all students are treated fairly and that all students are treated with dignity.

We believe that the current minimum wage is not enough to support a person living in this country. We believe that the current minimum wage does not provide enough income to pay for basic necessities, such as housing, food, and healthcare. We believe that the current minimum wage does not provide enough income to live a comfortable life.

We also believe that the current minimum wage does not provide enough income to pay for education. We believe that the current minimum wage does not provide enough income to pay for tuition, fees, and books. We believe that the current minimum wage does not provide enough income to pay for room and board.

In conclusion, we believe that raising the minimum wage is the best way to ensure that all students are treated fairly and that all students are treated with dignity. We believe that raising the minimum wage is the best way to ensure that all students are treated with respect and that all students are treated with dignity.

Playing guessing games with Duke and Dreyfuss

A new Duke-Dreyfuss team will attempt to unmask a new mystery man in Dark Business, a sequel to the hit film "Murder by Death." Directed by Stanley Donen, the film stars the duo as two detectives who are trying to solve a case involving a series of murders. The mystery deepens as they uncover the connection between the victims and a powerful corporation that is behind the killings.

On the other side of the country, John Badham is also trying to solve a mystery of sorts. His new film, Ragtime, is a横行 Thanks for [His/Her/Its] Grandmother, with plans to release on December 15. The movie is about a young boy in the face of his difficult relationship with his grandmother. Badham is already known for his ability to direct hard-hitting dramas, and this film is expected to be no exception.

Pennies From Heaven

The musical comedy Pennies From Heaven is set to open on its own opening day. The film stars Steve Martin, Bernadette Peters, and Al Pacino, and is based on the Broadway musical of the same name. With its dark musical comedy elements, Pennies From Heaven is expected to be a hit with audiences looking for a good laugh.

Christmas

Christmas is a holiday classic that is sure to be talked about for years to come. The movie stars Bette Davis, James Cagney, and John Wayne, and is directed by John Ford. The story of a family coming together during the holiday season is both heartwarming and heartwrenching.

Age Before Beauty

Age Before Beauty is a film that explores the idea of beauty and aging. The movie stars Meryl Streep and Jack Nicholson, and is directed by Sydney Pollack. The film is a drama about a woman who is forced to confront the reality of her aging and her identity as she tries to maintain her sense of self in a world that values youth and beauty above all else.

Ragtime

Ragtime, directed by John Badham, is already out. The film is a drama about the 19th century, and is set against the backdrop of the Civil War. It stars Robert Redford, who is in talks to be considered for an Oscar for his performance in the film. The movie is expected to be a major box office hit.

Centerfold

Centerfold is a film that explores the world of the gentlemen's club. The movie stars Robert De Niro and Bruce Willis, and is directed by Michael Mann. The film is a drama about the inner workings of a strip club, and is expected to be a harsh look at the dark side of the entertainment industry.

Jack Ruby

In a joint front-page story, the Post was first to report the sensational news that President Kennedy's assassin, Lee Harvey Oswald, had been shot in the back by a man who was identified as Jack Ruby. The story, published in an edition that was rushed to press just hours after the shooting, raised the question of whether Ruby had been a member of the Mafia.

At Le Chocolatier, we have more scrumptious chocolate than your heart could possibly imagine. Take Godiva chocolate for instance. One creamy bite and suddenly your floating over fairy castles for away.

Now, if you're feeling this way, Le Chocolatier would like to tempt the chocolate lover in you one bit further. From now until December 24, if you buy $14 or more of Godiva chocolates or candies, Le Chocolatier will happily give you a $5 free. That's right free. So understand, please. We don't mean to drive you crazy with this offer.

It's Godiva who does.

Dear Nantz,

It's been great only wish it could have been longer. There will be an emptiness that no one can fill. Without you, 10 pounds of popcorn will be hard to finish in one week, and hangovers will be hard to find on those long sleepless nights.

All we can say is Good Luck to Holiday Inn International (they'll need it more than you).

We wish you ALL THE BEST!

We Love You  —Wendy, Mary, Donna, Debbie & Carol

Women Swimmers Display Ability

Women swimmers displayed their ability on Friday night as the Albany State University women's swimming and diving team defeated Russell Sage in the annual meet.

The meet was held at the College Street Aquatic Center and featured a head-to-head match between the two teams. The women's team emerged victorious, showcasing their skills in various events.

The meet included a variety of races and events, each requiring different swimming techniques and strategies. The swimmers demonstrated agility, strength, and endurance, as they competed against each other for victory.

Swimmers from both teams showed determination and sportsmanship throughout the competition. The meet not only highlighted the athletes' talents but also the unity and camaraderie among the swimmers.

This meet marked a significant milestone in the swim season, setting the stage for upcoming competitions and events. It was an opportunity for the swimmers to test their abilities and prepare for future challenges.

In conclusion, the Albany State University women's swimming team's performance during the meet against Russell Sage demonstrated their dedication and skill, setting a positive tone for the remainder of the season.
Women Cagers Storm Past Physical New Paltz

By Les Carter

Prepared to fight, New Paltz found itself in a hole from the start. Albany, led by four starters scoring in double figures, rolled into Albany's Hilton Hotel, all but one working in the New Paltz area. "They had us run up for their lack of skill by making cheaper plays. We were working on two points each, but we were looking for the easy points," said Albany coach Amy Kidder.

The Danes held a 22-18 lead in the first half, led by a 17-5 run in the first eight minutes. Albany was up by nine to start the second half, and New Paltz could never catch up. "We were working on two points each, but we were looking for the easy points," said Kidder.

Second Win in Conference

By Bill Parker

Playing a strong game in the Albany women's basketball game on Wednesday night, the Danes scored off the final five of eight Danes' defensive boards, many of which pulled down 15 offensive rebounds.

Coach Norm Law's team dominated the game throughout the first 30 minutes, leading 51-29 at halftime.

At the end of the first period, the Danes grabbed the first lead of the game, 17-14. Albany coach Amy Kidder had been having a tough time against the New Paltz defense, using our one press and man-to-man defense, spearheaded by Wunderlich and Nancy Halloran.

Wunderlich and Halloran led the way with 12 points each, followed by Nancy Halloran's eight points. Albany's Hilton Hotel won the first overall lead, 17-14.
