The exhibition started on Sunday, February 13, when it lasted from 2 until 6 o'clock. On other days the collection is shown from 9 until 5 o'clock. There are about five hundred prints in the collection, which is to be sent directly to the next, making no stops on the way.

Among the artists whose works are shown are Rembrandt, Richards, Nourse, Whistler, Utrillo, and many English, Italian, French, and G. G. Stuarts. All artists whose works can be ordered at any time, and any information about the sale of the prints obtained here may be seen from Miss Leslie McIlhenny, Secretary of the American Federation of Arts, Washington, D. C. The prices of the prints vary from 35 cents to $18. Catalogues of these prints are on sale, the price being 5c.

Dr. Richardson Conducts Vespers

The class of '23 entertained about sixty at social hours between two and six on Sunday afternoon. The fact that Mrs. Lawrence scored the first basket of the classes as a whole has as its result the fact that one of the students was found to be a most experienced and infallible guard. It is expected that they will put up a stiff battle. On the other hand, State will be out to make up for its defeat by St. Lawrence and will play its best brand of basketball.

The St. Stephen's line-up for tonight will be chosen from White, A. Rickety and T. Rickety, forwards; Coffin, center; Colwell, Stewart, and Welford, as guards. State will probably line up T. Cassavant and Johnson, forwards; H. Polt, and Doherty, guards.

Owing to the fact that St. Stephen's is starting a little season because of work on a new gymnasium, little is known about the strength of her team, but it is expected that they will put up a stiff battle. On the other hand, State will be out to make up for its defeat by St. Lawrence and will play its best brand of basketball.

Merriment rejoiced in the Science Hall on Saturday evening, February 5, when the guests of the State College Alumni Association were entertained at a meeting which had an informal social. It was a good time in which everyone had a part. No one refused to work on the committee to which he or she was assigned, whether it were refreshments, entertainment, decoration, or stunt. And so it was not long before one's friends met as guards.

The desire to be popular explains a multitude of good things and also a multitude of sins. It is the punch bell of solicitation. At the same time it is the evil spirit that is leading these aspiring people astray. The principles of Neglect of Duty, Extravagance, etc. nearly everyone is affected with this disease in one or another form, yet, like most things corrigible, popularity is the possession of the few.

Now there are various ways in which people seek popularity. Some try to be different, and to prove that their ideas are new and that they develop into "wise guys" and "smart Alecks." They use the slang of "smart Alecks." They try to be superior. They use the slang of last week. Some of them brag about having had an Easter vacation. Do students want it? Let's hope some more on the subject.

CHEMISTRY CLUB

The next meeting of the Chemistry Club will be held Friday, February 18, at 4 o'clock in room 250. Mr. Zepi will present a paper.

"Y HOUSE" NEWS

Wednesday evening, February 9, a house-meeting was held for the purpose of electing officers for this year. Maude St indeed, house president, president. Most of the former officers were re-elected and the following are now in office: Dora Plummer, vice-president, Augusta Knapp, secretary, and Martha Ewing, treasurer.

State College is taking many forward steps these days, and no one has noticed this with greater pride. However, to steadily progress it is necessary that we not neglect the essentials, no matter how much we may have accomplished. And all this is just an introduction to the inquiry, "What is the true popular must get off the wagon."

The freshmen found that they expected to stand up while it was being sung, and other classes were forwarded to it too. They are all busy, but we should never be too busy to enjoy our traditions, and make the freshmen realize that they are still freshmen, and others later as their propert is at our games.

Thus in the space of one week, games at Hanover and the Cornell-Perm argument at Philadelphia, evening will come a pair of crucial contests, which will break the tie with a contest between two rivals, now deadlocked for second honors, during the last few days. Among these, the contest that sees in the contest the most importance lies in the Columbia games, for it is a battle royal that is certain to take place. In the contest, the two rivals clash on the Columbia campus, and a battle royal is certain to take place.

The margin of victory, although small, was sufficient to ensure victory for Cornell. The Big Red took the lead in the first period, and led by a wide margin throughout the game. The final score was 31-17, in favor of Cornell. The team was led by several players, including Cassavant, who scored 16 points. The team was able to break the deadlock with a contest that was much anticipated.

The team was also able to take advantage of the opportunities that came their way, as they were able to convert several shots into points. As James W. Elliot would say
"Keep on keeping on."

Strong resolves bring about strong results—the proof of ability is action.

There are times in your life where you cannot take medicine without throwing up—their hands; for adversity does not agree with all constitutions. But no man can continue to climb while dosing himself on dollars alone—continue to be happy and healthy.

One might go to a seven-year course in the old school of Aristotle with all his philosophy, but such a schooling cannot compare with one short session in the University of Adversity.

No man can rightly measure the meaning and methods of adversity, until he has felt the terrible blows of adversity; then he learns.

Every big man has his share of disappointments, trials and suffering, but he does not grow maddening these troubles to the world.

And from these thoughts we derive the lesson; so called "hard luck" is bound to hit you, so be a member that your successful position in life depends on deeds, not doubts.
