Backup man at center, and transfer Stef Smigl is leading the way. Albany handled most opposition with relative ease, and their record breaking fourteen game win streak attests to the fact that this was one of the finest teams in Albany history.

Marglson and Price led the team in scoring, rebounding, and assists, and their impressive play has been widely praised. Senior Larry Marcus and Tom Doody have also been a key part of the team's success, with Marcus showing that he was scoring at 8.7 points when he was sidelined with a broken arm.

However, wrestling is a different story entirely. The Danes, last Saturday, and all five with only five at ten at 25-15 after ten minutes. It wasn't until the tenth minute that the game really got under way. In the tenth minute, the Danes got off to a fast start and extended their lead to 14 at the start of the second half. The Danes ripped off eight straight points to put the game out of reach. This game marked the end of a tangle that will remain in the memories of many for a long time to come.

Council Accepted Petition On University Calendar '68-'69

By Vic Looper

One of the new suggestions was that, in order to graduate, a student should seek out their professors and have exams before December. This was also objected to. Most Councilmen felt that most examinations, which were new but most of which were new, were being well received. The President's Conference Council accepted a petition to extend the University Calendar to '68-'69. The petition was presented to the President, Dr. Dumbleton, and the Councilmen were glad to see this done on a scholarly basis.

A Fair Game

The suggestion has been made several times during the election of this past year that there is no vigorous campaigning on this campus for elective positions. We strongly contest this feeling. When people do not come to vote even if elections are being held, something is definitely wrong.

Elections for this year are more important than ever. In the next few months we will campaign. Before the decision is made on the campus, the issue will be the most important of all. (Central Council and LAAC are to be held.

The process of the election is nothing new. The student body should be aware of the process. The election is an opportunity for all students to be involved in the governing of the university. The election is a way for the student body to express its views.

Election Campaigns?

Many of the students through the years have focused their attention on the election campaigns. Many of the students have focused their attention on the election campaigns. Many of the students have focused their attention on the election campaigns. Many of the students have focused their attention on the election campaigns. Many of the students have focused their attention on the election campaigns.
On I. Mock

By the Editor;

After reading an article the other day, I was reminded of an old political technique: "discredit the writer if you can undermine the writer's reputation to make the article seem less believable." I think many people are more interested in the writer's credibility than in the article itself. The writer must be seen as credible to gain the reader's attention and trust. In this case, the writer's credibility is undermined by suggesting that the article is not only biased but also inaccurate. The writer is not trusted because it is not clear if the writer is really interested in the topic or if it is just a part of the writer's political agenda.

Though unclear as to the author's motives, one can be at peace with that. The writer makes some constructive points about the need for more research and critical thinking in the field. However, the writer's overall message is confusing and lacks clarity. It seems to be an attempt to challenge the credibility of the article by throwing doubt on its sources and claims. As a result, the reader is left wondering about the truth of the article and the writer's motives. It is not clear if the writer is trying to provide a balanced view or if they are simply trying to discredit the article.

The article itself seems to be about the role of government in promoting the interests of certain groups. The writer suggests that the government is biased and fails to provide equal opportunities to all groups. The writer provides some examples of this bias and discusses the potential consequences for those who are not part of the favored groups. However, the writer's examples are not very convincing and the overall argument is not well-developed. It seems like the writer is making a broad claim without supporting evidence.

In conclusion, the article seems to be an attempt to discredit the writer and the article itself. The reader is left wondering about the truth of the article and the writer's motives. It is not clear if the writer is trying to provide a balanced view or if they are simply trying to discredit the article. The writer's credibility is undermined by suggesting that the article is not only biased but also inaccurate. The writer must be seen as credible to gain the reader's attention and trust. Jean-Luc Godard Speaks At Page

The famed film director, Jean-Luc Godard, will speak at Paget Hall on Thursday, April 20, at 8:30 p.m. His presentation is sponsored by the Film Council.

Godard, known for his innovative and controversial filmmaking style, has been a leading figure in the French New Wave movement. His works often explore themes of society, politics, and identity, often through the use of non-linear narratives and experimental editing techniques.

The event is free and open to the public. It promises to be a thought-provoking evening as Godard shares his insights and perspectives on the world of film.
Ted Bluecheel-Incense, Shaving Cream And Junk

The airport took me to Boston where I found a hotel room. The weather was cold and the airport was crowded. The hotel was located in the heart of the city and was quite expensive. I decided to spend the night here before going on to my next destination.

The next morning, I took a taxi to the airport and flew to New York. The flight was long and I was tired by the time I arrived. I decided to take a cab to my hotel and spend the day there.

The hotel was located in a quiet neighborhood and had a great view of the city. I spent the day reading and resting, and then went out for a nice dinner at a local restaurant. The food was delicious and I enjoyed the atmosphere.

The next morning, I went back to the airport and flew to my final destination. I was looking forward to exploring the new place and seeing the sights.

Overall, the trip was excellent and I was happy to have had the opportunity to experience such a diverse range of cultures and environments. I hope to return to these places someday and continue my travels.

Edward Deluise blew it again. His architectural designs are currently impractical, but in many cases they are barely functional. I think they need to do away with him. I'm not sure what the problem is, but it seems to be with his woodwork. However, the first time I walked onto that center court I thought it was the most spectacular site I had ever seen. I was thinking, "Isn't it amazing?" and then I noticed the woodwork. It was horrifying. I thought it was going to fall apart. The second time I walked onto the court I thought it was the most beautiful site I had ever seen. I was thinking, "Isn't it amazing?" and then I noticed the woodwork. It was horrifying. I thought it was going to fall apart.
