By Steve Trous
d and Russ Craig

Last year Poco announced their tour performances under the slogan "Rock 'n' Roll Freedom!" but now, in the wake of the recent "free parking!". But this time there was no doubt that Poco was serious. The band has arrived in good health. The tour has been successful and the fans are very enthusiastic. Poco can be one of the top live bands around. They played to a sold-out crowd.

The concert opened with "Rockin' in the Free World" and continued with a series of good songs, including "Have You Ever Seen the Rain?" and "Easy to Ignore." The band's energy was contagious.

The sound system was one of the best heard in the town, and the overall experience was very enjoyable. The fans were very appreciative of the hard work the band had put into preparing for this tour.

Performers include0,1 John Densmore, Denny Doherty, Steve Barri, and Russ Craig. Performers included Mike D'Amico, John Densmore, and Russ Craig. Overall, the night was a success and the fans were satisfied with the performance.
Preparations Under Way

for Upcoming C-U Day

by Anjolyn Alcorn

It very much struck me as almost comically ironic, you have probably noticed, that the words "In a couple days" have filled our school with all kinds of things, from a new English teacher to a new math teacher. And this, of course, led me to wonder why the SUNYA campus would be in such a commotion. Was it because everyone was excited for the Homecoming activities? Or was it because everyone was excited for the Homecoming football game? Or was it because everyone was excited for the Homecoming dance? Or was it because everyone was excited for the Homecoming parade? I mean, there are so many possibilities!

But then I realized that the answer to this question is probably not so simple. Maybe it's because everyone is excited for something, but that something is not Homecoming. Maybe it's because everyone is excited for something, but that something is not the Homecoming football game. Maybe it's because everyone is excited for something, but that something is not the Homecoming dance. Maybe it's because everyone is excited for something, but that something is not the Homecoming parade. Maybe it's because everyone is excited for something, but that something is not the Homecoming football game, Homecoming dance, or Homecoming parade. Maybe it's because everyone is excited for something, but that something is not the Homecoming football game, Homecoming dance, or Homecoming parade. Maybe it's because everyone is excited for something, but that something is not the Homecoming football game, Homecoming dance, or Homecoming parade.

Anyway, I think it's safe to say that the SUNYA campus is in a commotion. And it's not because everyone is excited for something, but that something is not Homecoming. It's because everyone is excited for something, but that something is not the Homecoming football game, Homecoming dance, or Homecoming parade. To Legalize or Not

San Francisco, Calif. (AP) - Votes in California may change programs of marijuana users. New York, Jan. 2. The California Marijuana Initiative (CMI) has returned the "Beatitude" new of declaring marijuana legal in the ballot papers and the voters to put the issue to a vote on Nov. 7. The measure, if passed, would legalize marijuana for medical purposes, among other things.

The measure, which would take effect in January, would allow patients to possess up to an ounce of marijuana at a time. The measure would also allow patients to grow up to 10 marijuana plants at home.

The measure has been praised by some medical experts, who say it would allow patients to use marijuana to treat a variety of conditions, including pain, nausea, and glaucoma.

However, the measure has been criticized by others, who say it would encourage drug use and encourage the development of a black market for marijuana.

The measure is expected to be a major issue in the upcoming election.

Should Seniors Move In?

Dr. Charles C. Fisher

The American West is a land of opportunity, but the future is uncertain for many young people. For them, the question of where to live and what to do can be daunting.

Many young people, at least during the early years of their lives, find it difficult to make a living in the cities. The high cost of living, the lack of affordable housing, and the presence of drug dealers can make it difficult for young people to find a place to live.

One solution to this problem is to move to the suburbs. The suburbs offer more affordable housing and are generally safer than the cities.

However, there are downsides to living in the suburbs. The cost of living is generally higher, and the opportunity for social interaction is limited.

Another solution is to move to a rural area. Rural areas offer lower costs of living and more opportunities for social interaction. However, the lack of employment opportunities and the limited availability of social services can be a problem.

The best solution is to find a place to live that meets the needs of young people. This may mean living in the city, the suburbs, or a rural area.

NADER: Congress is Corrupt

Dr. Charles D. Fisher

In recent years, newspapers and magazines have been increasingly critical of Congress. This is a reflection of the public's perception that Congress is ineffective and unresponsive.

Many people believe that Congress is controlled by special interest groups and that members of Congress are more concerned with their own careers than with the needs of their constituents.

There is a need to reform Congress. This can be done by making it more accountable to the public and by reducing the influence of special interest groups.

One way to do this is to increase the number of members of Congress. This would allow for a greater number of views to be represented in Congress.

Another way to reform Congress is to increase the. **...
McGovern for President

The Albany Student Press joins WUSA Radio today in ordering the candidature of George McGovern for President. While we must take the precaution not to support any particular candidate as an endorsement of a certain political party, we do believe that the policies McGovern is advocating would be far preferable to those which are being advanced by the other major candidates for President. As a result of the conversations with McGovern, it was clear that the emphasis on reducing the defense budget and the commitment to work for a world free from nuclear weapons would be far more important to the peace movement in this country.

We are concerned about the current state of the world, with a growing threat of nuclear war, and believe that McGovern's platform offers the best hope for a safer future. His commitment to reducing the military budget and his support for international cooperation on issues such as disarmament and environmental protection are particularly appealing to students at Union College.

We encourage all students to consider supporting McGovern in the upcoming election, and to learn more about his policies and his vision for the future of our country.

Two good shots are coming up at the Union College Chapel (this Friday). Friday night is the popular trio, Glen Blue Band, which opens our spring concert series. Glen Blue Band is a favorite, always a favorite. Saturday night is the rock trio from Cleveland that has the potential of being a national act. With some more exposure and some work, this band has the potential of being huge.

"Archimedia" at RPI

At press time, the members of the SUNYA community were just starting to respond to the student newspaper article about the new RPI festival "Archimedia," which will go on view on the RPI campus this weekend. The festival is being organized by the Department of Architecture, as an offshoot of the RPI College of Architecture and Urban Planning.

The primary purpose is to bring together the annual architecture and urban planning exhibition and the student-run exhibition, the "SUNYA Show," into a single event. The festival will feature a wide range of architectural and planning projects, ranging from individual student works to large-scale community projects.

The festival will run from this Friday, October 25, through Sunday, October 27. The opening reception will be held on Friday evening, from 6 to 9 p.m., at the RPI Student Center. The festival is free and open to the public.

The exhibition features a variety of mediums, including painting, sculpture, photography, and mixed media. The works explore a wide range of themes, including identity, culture, and politics.

The exhibition is part of a larger initiative to support and promote women's art and artists. The SUNYA community is home to many talented women artists, and this exhibition is a way to showcase their work and celebrate their contributions to the arts.

The exhibition will be on view from October 25 through November 15. The opening reception will be held on Friday, October 25, from 6 to 8 p.m., in the African American Cultural Center.

Andromeda Strain on Campus Tonite

by Frank Ross

Andromeda Strain, an unknown U.S. Air Force musical that is being performed by the SUNYA community, is scheduled to open on October 25. The musical is based on the novel "The Andromeda Strain," which was written by Robert A. Heinlein.

The story follows a group of scientists who are called in to investigate a strange disease that is threatening the world. The disease is caused by a new type of bacteria that is able to adapt and survive in any environment.

The musical features a cast of SUNYA students, who will be playing the roles of the scientists and the victims of the disease. The show is directed by Gary Richardson, who is also playing the role of the main character, Dr. David Eagleman.

The musical is scheduled to run for three performances, on October 25, 26, and 27. The show will be held in the SUNYA Student Union, on the SUNYA campus. Tickets are $5 for adults, $3 for students, and $2 for children. They can be purchased at the door or online.

"They scored the tying goal at the end of the first half!"

Hudson Valley coach Steve Stivison signaled the official for a penalty kick, and it was a three-goal game once again.

The game was tied, 1-1, at the end of the first half, and the New Paltz goalie, John Scotto, was out to stop the ball. Scotto was the only player in the game to keep the ball from going in.

The game went to overtime, and it was still tied, 1-1, after two periods. But in the third period, New Paltz scored a second goal and won, 2-1.

The game was played in front of a large crowd, and the New Paltz fans were cheering wildly.
