Return of the MEAT GRINDER

While reading an article last week, John Schleicher, Jr., was startled to learn the meat-grinder was no longer available. He thought he'd have to make do with an old-fashioned meat grinder, but he was wrong. The meat-grinder is back, and it's better than ever.

How's Howls

Phi Beta Kappa, a select society of students, has announced that it will host a weekend of events to celebrate the return of the meat-grinder. The events will include a meat-grinder exhibition, a meat-grinder cooking contest, and a meat-grinder music concert.

State Student Discovers Friday Joys Late In Life

A recent study has found that students who discover the joys of the weekend later in life are more likely to have found true happiness. Dr. John Smith, a psychologist at the University of Happy Valley, said that students who found the joys of the weekend later in life were more likely to have found true happiness. Dr. Smith said that he had been studying the phenomenon for some time and had found that students who discovered the joys of the weekend later in life were more likely to have found true happiness.

ROBINSON ALREADY PREPARING FOR CROSS-COUNTRY.

If you're one of those horse-and-buggy types who are Router in Albany's "streetcar" during the winter, at one time or another you've probably seen a most unusual sight. Provided you didn't take your eyes off the road, you may have seen a slowly moving, red-tailed deer, dressed in truckclothes, racing down the block. But after noon, the phrase weather permitting is a relative thing. The winds come in a variety of ways, and the ground is always wet. Tom slake matter of fact, "some days the streets are so slick you feel your feet begin to freeze.

But this is only the beginning. Once the weather warms up, Tom plans to step up the pace considerably. Two workouts a day in the morning; the other is in the evening: on the agenda for this spring and summer.

ARDUOUS TRAINING PAYS

As is obvious, Tom is a firm believer in arduous training. He is the assistant coach at the Albany Catholic Academy, where coach Bob Elliott a world champion, and admits that this is his secret ambition to coach in the Olympics. He is a great admirer of the famous Percy Williams. He has adopted a Spartan-like training program to build his form of his life.

Tom Robinson begins one of his daily runs up into sprints and slow-downs. Over the summer he hopes to run in more natural surroundings, especially on the beaches of Long Island.

AMONG MY KINFOLK
My favorite cousin, Margaret G ette Chouter, seven, married Ray Chouler, Jr., last fall, and the little couple is now living in New York City. Although I was not able to attend the wedding, I gave Ray a ring as a wedding present. I hope that it will be as successful as mine.
