Ambassador Abroad

In the summer of 1961 a State College Junior visited a Danish family. Her trip was financed through proceeds of the State Fair. Last year the college was unable to send an ambassador abroad, but this year the program is again available.

We are sure that the seeming lack of interest is not because people do not consider the program valuable but because many students have just not taken the time to think about the program and then to apply. We realize that many students must work in the summer and that others must attend summer school, but there must be more than five people who would somehow be able to spend a summer in Europe with expenses paid.

Any student who is a Junior in the college and plans to continue her studies next fall is eligible to submit an application. Anne Smith, Minister of Culture, is director of the ambassador program.

Applying is not really difficult. Include in your application:
1) an estimate of your grade point average; 2) reasons for wanting to represent State College abroad; 3) the country you would like to visit and why; and 4) a summary of the activities in which you have participated while at State College. Then drop your application into Anne Smith's student mail TODAY.

As typical college students, we are all too apt to complain about the unsatisfactory state of United States foreign relations. Only by taking an active interest in such programs as this can we ourselves help to improve the situation.

Chanukah & Christmas

During the past week at least one of the downtown stores has been honoring the Jewish celebration of Chanukah. Jewish women explained the significance of the ritual candlelighting each day, and on Wednesday evening, Chanukah dinner was held.

Jewish students have participated in and contributed to the celebrations for the Christian holidays of Christmas and Easter. Since many State College students are Jewish, it is encouraging to know that at least Christian students are realizing that not only tolerance but a sincere attempt to understand another religion can be an important part of that elusive attitude known as the Christmas spirit.
