Construction of Buildings in Albany

Assured in Bid for Fund

(Knickertacker Press, Sunday, March 19)

Construction of the proposed additional building to the New York State College for Teachers in Albany seemed assured yesterday, when an appropriation of $65,000 was needed to buy land adjoining the college site was asked in the senate as part of the administration's supplementary appropriation measures.

While there is yet no appropriation for additional structures, the purchase of land adjoining the college gives a good indication that such an appropriation will be made at the 1923 session.

The appropriation bill, introduced in yesterday's supplementary appropriation bill, called for a surplus to friends of the College.

If action had not been taken this year on the State College bill as introduced in the senate at last year's session by Senator Frank, L. Wiswall, the state would have lost $5,000 on the option. The option date expired February 22, but extension of the time was granted.

The property which is the total appropriation of $70,000, is located between the Albany High School and the College, between Washington and Western avenues. Proposed plans provide several buildings for the expansion of the College. These include a separate structure in which to house Milne High School. With this addition practice teaching will be greatly facilitated and would permit a larger attendance at the College, as well as at the Milne High School, in addition to relieving the Continued on page 4

STATE COLLEGE NEWS, MARCH 20, 1922

A FABLE BY AESOP, JR.

Once upon a time, in the land of long ago, there was a maiden who was appointed hand-maiden to the queen of the kingdom. Now the hand-maiden loved the pleasures of the hand very much, and she desired to remain in the hand and wait upon the queen. Therefore, one day, she said to the queen, "My kinswoman in the next world is very high, and I wish that I should go to her to minister unto her." And the queen took pity on her, and the hand-maiden had her go. And the hand-maiden went into the house of her kinswoman, and there she enjoyed much pleasure and forgot the tasks which she had gained her freedom. And after she had wasted many hours, she returned unto the queen, and, when asked, said, "My kinswoman is better." And another one day, she wasted her time and did not the task set before her by the queen, and when the queen questioned her concerning the task, the hand-maiden suddenly went and saw a field of flowers and was occupied with them.

The superintendents are interviewing the seniors, the freshmen have returned to the various departments after the vacation, and the hand-maiden has been left behind.

ROUND THE COLLEGE

The red maples are out, pussy willows are gaily and trustfully into S. T. C. on the head of a frisky little farm-an or a sombre senior, does not seem to know the dire fate that will befall it. To repose long hours in the sunken locker, on a lovely April day in company with Angelic's Psychology and a batch of old themes that have been suffering, but it added to that there are lunches from last semester, some pasted notes, kettles, bowls, bouquets and stockings that would make a hard-hearted handmaid weep—well, it is too unnecessary.

It’s peculiar how some things seem to be “catching” just like the measles, the whooping cough, etc. Influenza do they call it?

A Gateway—Electrical

Only a forty-foot gateway bounded by two brick pilasters and ornamental lamps, but it is unlike any other gateway in the entire world.

For back of it is the General Electric Company’s main office building, accommodating 2300 employees. And just next door is its main laboratory with the best equipment for testing, standardizing and research at the command of capable engineers. Then down the street a mile long—are other buildings where electrical products are made by the thousands of electrical workers who daily stream through.

Through this gate messages and representatives from a score of other factories and over fifty branch offices come and go every hour—an endless chain of coordinated activities carrying on and enlarging the scope of over a quarter century’s work for the betterment of mankind.

What a story this gate would tell, if it could, of the leaders of the electrical industry and of ambassadors from other industries and institutions—and from foreign lands. The story would be the history of electric lighting, electric transportation, electrified industries and electricity in the home.

BOBBED HAIR

Backward, turn backward, O time in your flight!

Some things in this universe aren’t going right. I can stand almost anything—cold, hunger, and thirst, toothache, and earache, and lots of things worse. I can stand being cheated, swindled, and robbed. But I cannot endure a girl whose hair’s bobbed.

I don’t care if she’s cross-eyed, freckled, or fat, Sixteen or thirty, does her hair on a rat.

Tail, short, or indifferent, homely or fair, I’ll put up with most anything, if she hasn’t bobbed hair. I can even endure galoshes that flop, Dresses short at the bottom and short at the top.

For coats in summer and things of that line, but the girl with bobbed hair is no friend of mine. I do not approve of paint or powder, Smoking, or talk which grows coarser and louder.

But if I were to choose and choose fair and square I’d prefer girls with these faults to those with bobbed hair.

I may be particular and fussy, but then You'll find it is so with all sensible men.

Already they give me a pain in my liver.

If they all bob their hair I’ll go jump in the river.

The Wandering Poet
All the freshmen made a good showing, but the middle-class juniors were evenly matched. The referees were Florence Bohne, Blevins, and May Wood. Margaret Hutchins was spectacular playing on the part of Margaret Blevins, Mildred Bettv Bachon. Don't forget to see the alumni association and see the dormitory plans for the last seven months. In the Plaza installation there are about 50 clocks, located in the main rooms and the telephone exchange of the hotel on the first floor. Tiny motors, so small that one of them easily lies on the palm of the hand, are geared to the dial hands of each of the secondary clocks connected with the system. These small motors, which take the place of the usual intricate clock mechanism and which are of the synchronous type, will operate the hands of clocks of all sizes. The clocks with dials five feet in diameter and little clocks with dials whose diameters are only three inches are regulated equally well by these small motors, some of the dimensions of which exceed three inches. Absolutely uniform time is shown by every clock of the system at a given moment. The system is also self-regulating, and therefore independent of voltage or frequency fluctuations incident to the power lines from which it draws its current.

The master clock exercises constant control over the power generating apparatus which drives the individual motors of the secondary clocks. This control by the master clock enables all the secondary clocks to keep accurate time. They are never more than three seconds slower or faster than the master clock. The reliability of this system, as revealed in actual service, is believed to bring prominence to the front this novel idea of thin electrically operating clocks for hotels, office buildings, manufacturing plants and institutions where it is desired to have a large number of clocks and to insure that they will all keep accurate and uniform time.
