A new semester, a new year; but little else changed for the Albany State Wrestling team. The Danes have not lost in 11 meets since they lost to State College in the first round of the NESCAC meet.

"We're very pleased with our performance," said Danes' head coach, Joe Schettino. "The only way we could've done better was if we'd won the meet.

God's attack of SASU gets statewide notice

By Richard Gardiner and Jerry Miller

A new report by the New York State Office of Alcoholism and Drug Abuse about the problems of the SASU (State Association of Students of the University of Albany) has put the university in a difficult position. The report, released last week, found that the SASU had failed to address the problems of drug abuse, alcoholism, and alcohol-related violence.

Ready references

In the past, the report noted, the SASU has ignored the recommendations of its own committees. The report also criticized the SASU for failing to provide adequate resources to combat drug abuse and alcoholism.

Community oriented unite

The report recommended that the SASU develop a comprehensive plan to address the problem of drug abuse and alcoholism. It also suggested that the SASU increase its funding for programs to help students overcome drug and alcohol problems.

It's Autumn
By Linda Owen
Looking for someone to accompany me on a walk.

Yes, you and I. The sun is shining, the birds singing, the world waiting.

I don't want to be alone.

I need someone who understands. But you know what?

I can't go out of the door.

And neither can you.

"Closely but not an exclusive dealer"

Three circle

The night is young

A whisper of a voice

The moon is full

The stars are out. The stars are out.

And then you're here.

And then you're there.

And then you're everywhere.

Your steps are light. Your words are soft. Your presence is comforting.

But I can't go out of the door.

And neither can you.

Sophie Is First Choice

Rob O'Connor

Sophie is the kind of role most actresses wish they could play in their careers. It's a role that requires depth, vulnerability, and a range of emotions. Sophie, as played by Meryl Streep, is a character who has been through many trials and tribulations. Born without the ability to recognize her name, Sophie has spent her life searching for a place where she can truly be herself.

The role of Sophie was the most sought after in recent movie history. Streep has given one of her finest performances as the character. Her portrayal is both tender and powerful, capturing the essence of Sophie's journey from a nameless child to a famous actress.

Streep's performance is astounding. She brings to the part a blend of desperation and hope, making Sophie a sympathetic and relatable character. Her performance is a testament to Streep's skill as an actress.

Mark Rosnier

The problem with Sophie's redemption is that it's not a simple one. Streep introduces us to Frank (Paul Newman), a character who represents the constraint on Hindu women, and he is the one who helped Sophie find her voice. Frank's character is complex and multi-dimensional, and Streep does an excellent job of portraying his nuances.

Mark, as played by Jonathan Pryce, is a character who is often misunderstood. He is a man of many contradictions, and Streep does a wonderful job of bringing out the layers of his character.

Gandhi Lives

Margeret Gandhi, the man, the myth, the movement, the miracle. Gandhi's story is one of the most compelling stories in history. His life is a testament to the power of love, compassion, and non-violence.

Gandhi's life is told through the eyes of his wife, Kasturba. Streep's performance as Kasturba is outstanding. She brings depth and humanity to the role, making Kasturba a relatable and sympathetic character.

The role of Kasturba was an achievement for Streep. She managed to capture the essence of Kasturba's character, making her a central figure in the story.

The Directors of Photography, Milt Munsell and John Seitz, are to be commended for their work on this film. Their cinematography is stunning, adding depth and emotion to the story.

The Verdict Is In

Sophie is First Choice

For the audience, it's Streep who makes the movie. Her performance is one of her finest, capturing the essence of Sophie's character.

The Verdict is in: the film is a success. Streep's performance is outstanding, and the story is compelling. The film is a great addition to Streep's resume.

EDITORIAL

Cuomo takes the easy route

Gov. Mario Cuomo's proposed budget for the fiscal year 1983-84 was a sad event for students at SUNY. Much of the budget was dedicated to higher education, with hundreds of millions of dollars going toward public universities in New York State. However, despite Cuomo's claims about a "reasonable" share of education costs, the actual budget proposal led many to believe that SUNY students would be forced to bear a disproportionate burden.

Cuomo argues that SUNY students should pay more for their education because they are a "reasonable share" of the taxpayer dollar. This is a fallacious argument. While some students may choose to attend SUNY, it is not their sole duty to fund the university's operations. New York State taxpayers have a responsibility to ensure that public education is accessible and affordable for all residents.

Cuomo also claims that the budget deficit is large and that students must contribute to this problem. However, this is not true. The state's fiscal situation is not the result of不负责任的学生, but rather the actions of elected officials and policymakers. The burden of cutting costs and increasing tuition should not fall solely on students.

In conclusion, Governor Cuomo's budget proposal is a disservice to students at SUNY. It is up to the state legislature and elected officials to find a responsible solution to the budget deficit. Students should not have to bear the brunt of these fiscal decisions. We call on the SUNY community to stand together and fight for a budget that is fair and equitable for all students.

Redskins’ Coach Gibbs is cautious of success

The Washington Redskins’ coach, Joe Gibbs, is cautious of his team’s success, reminding them that “the key to the Super Bowl is the next one.”

Gibbs notes that the team’s victory over the Miami Dolphins in Super Bowl XVII was crucial for maintaining a winning attitude. He stresses that even though his players are successful, they must remain humble and focused on the next game.

Gibbs emphasizes the importance of avoiding complacency, saying, “You want more because you’ve done it once. Winning is not enough; you automaticlly want more.”

He warns that success can be fleeting, and the team must continue to work hard and never take their success for granted. "I think what happens when you get a little too happy is that you wake up one day and you're no good anymore," Gibbs said.

Gibbs also mentions the importance of teamwork and the role of the coaching staff in keeping the team focused on their goals. "As a coach, as soon as you win the first game, you start thinking about the next one," Gibbs said. "You want to make sure that you don't get complacent, that you stay focused and prepared for the next game.”

Gibbs concludes that success is not automatic and that the team must continue to work hard and remain focused if they want to maintain their success. "You want to make sure that you stay focused on the next game, and you don't get complacent," Gibbs said. "You want to make sure that you stay focused on the next game, and you don't get complacent."
Danes fall to Dragons; host Binghamton tonight

By Mike Schanberg

The Albany State basketball teams compiled a grueling record this season. In a recent game against Binghamton University, the team was defeated 32-10. However, the game was a difficult one for both teams, as it was played in front of a sellout crowd at the University Gymnasium. During the game, the Dragons were led by their star player, Jeff Mattais, who scored 20 points and grabbed 10 rebounds. The Albany State team was led by their senior captain, Wilson Thomas, who scored 14 points and grabbed 7 rebounds. Despite the loss, the Albany State team has a solid record for the season, with a 12-5 record.

Disappointed grapplers drop two tough meets

By Marc Haggan

The Albany State wrestling team lost two consecutive matches this weekend, falling to Jeff Mattais of St. Lawrence and Dick Sauer of New York University. The first match was held at the University Gymnasium. Albany State's Rob Spagnoli and Spero Thiofilli were unable to overcome the strong competition. In the second match, held at the Albany State gymnasium, Albany State's Alan Mai was defeated by Dick Sauers of the University of Massachusetts, losing 12-5.

RCO dept. now official member of the social science school

Faculty being added while rhetoric is slowly phased out

By Victor Bon

The Albany State RCO department has officially joined the social science school. The department was previously considered a part of the arts and sciences division, but has now been recognized as a member of the social science school. The RCO department has been working on expanding its programs and curricula, and is now being run by a new team of faculty members. The department has received a grant from the SUNYA Education Foundation, which will help support the expansion of the department's programs.

RCO, which was not well known, will now be able to offer a more integrated curriculum. The department has also received a grant from the SUNYA Education Foundation, which will help support the expansion of the department's programs.
