Lissner Threatens Libel Suit

by Ann Smith

Contest Council Chairman Mike Lissner has threatened to sue an unidentified person before the print media for libel. Contest Council Chairman Mike Lissner. The chairman, a well-respected member of the Council, has been called to court recently for a libelous statement. He has threatened to sue the person for libel if the person does not retract the statement.

According to Lissner, the libelous statement is false and the person has refused to retract it. Lissner has threatened to sue the person for libel if the person does not retract the statement.

Although no action has yet been taken, Lissner said he would do what he could to protect his name and reputation. He said he would take legal action if necessary.

Early this morning, a newspaper article was published which contained libelous statements. Lissner, the chairman of the Council, has threatened to sue the person responsible for the article.

Lissner said that he would take legal action if necessary. He said he would do what he could to protect his name and reputation.

Council Chair Elections May Need Revamping

by Thomas Mahony

Several months after his election as Contest Council Chairman, Lissner is facing a potential setback in his bid for re-election. Lissner, who ran unopposed for the position, is now facing a challenge from another candidate.

The challenge comes from a candidate who has been actively campaigning against Lissner. The candidate has been critical of Lissner’s leadership, citing several issues that need to be addressed.

Lissner has been criticized for his handling of the Council’s finances, his lack of transparency, and his inability to address the concerns of the membership.

Despite the challenge, Lissner remains confident that he will be re-elected. He said that he will work hard to address the concerns of the membership and that he will continue to serve the Council.

Business Majors Get Close Out

The attorney representing the woman's husband, it was revealed, is the former rector of the church.

"Common sense was not originally part of the legal term," said President Jefferson. "The purpose was to provide information about the suits and the issues involved. It has since evolved to also represent allegations against an individual or individuals.

On the question of making equipment available for students, the faculty said they were willing to discuss the issue.

"It's a matter of principle," said one professor. "We need to be able to provide our students with the tools they need to succeed." The faculty expressed concern that the university's budget cuts could affect the availability of resources for students.

Council Chair Election Recapping

With the ongoing debate surrounding the chair election, the Council has faced several challenges. The process has been characterized by controversy and uncertainty, with questions raised about the fairness and transparency of the selection process.

One of the main issues has been the lack of clarity in the criteria for the chair position. The Council has been criticized for not providing clear guidelines and for allowing different members to have varying interpretations of the requirements.

There have also been concerns about the selection process itself. Some members have expressed frustration with the lack of opportunities for input and have called for more inclusive and transparent methods of choosing the chair.

In the end, it was the determination of the Council that held the final say on the matter. The process may have been flawed, but it was the best that could be done given the circumstances. The Council is committed to addressing these concerns and working towards improvements in the future.

SUNYA News Retrospective: A Fall Seminar Summary

WHITEMOUTH NAMED SUNYA HEAD

Malcolm University President O. White was named SUNYA chancellor at the end of October, concluding a nine-month search for a successor to Acting President James J. White. White will continue as SUNYA chancellor until June 30, 1994, at which time he will retire from SUNYA after 30 years of service.

In his acceptance speech, White thanked the SUNYA community for their support and expressed his commitment to furthering the university's mission.

"I am humbled by this opportunity to serve SUNYA," White said. "I look forward to working with the SUNYA community to ensure that SUNYA continues to be a leader in higher education."

BIG MESSAGE
As if there wasn't enough excitement around these days, a New York telephone company has announced plans to begin posting advertisements on clouds in the sky. That's right, on clouds.

A company called Laser Physicians has acquired a laser beam technology that corrects wrinkles and even complete wrinkles to be presented to clouds at night, causing them to "melt" away during a crosswind. A Laser Physicians spokesman says that individual words will be in sizes as large as two miles square, depending on the size of the cloud coverage.

The Laser Physicians, which broke the news, says that the entire $1 billion campaign will be the largest single purchase ever made by a major company in this country.

Puerto Rico Migration To USA

In June of 1946, a movement of Puerto Rican migrants to the United States took place, which was the largest migration of Puerto Ricans to the United States at that time. This movement was known as the "Great Migration" and was driven by various factors, including economic opportunities, political instability on the island, and the desire for better living conditions. The migrants faced many challenges, including discrimination and limited opportunities in their new environment, but they contributed significantly to the cultural and economic life of the United States.

Racial problem is an ideological component concerned in the American culture, the manifestation of which participates in the model of "white supremacy". One of the scenarios that can be seen throughout the history of Puerto Rican relations thatbest reflects this is the experience of theUnited States as a source of "blackness" and"Hispanic" or "Spanish" identity. This was a period where the radio stations and television networks were crucial in shaping the identity of the Puerto Rican community.

On Its Own Merits
by Bob Cohen

In the ASP of December 9, Jonathan Hedge's article "The Student Union Movement" appeared as a defense of the Student Union Movement. In its desire to defend the Student Union Movement, it made some questionable assumptions. The article's main argument is that the Student Union Movement is not working as well as it could, but it does not provide evidence for this claim.

Hedge's article is largely a defense of the Student Union Movement, rather than an objective analysis. It is written from the perspective of someone who has been active in the Student Union Movement, and this is evident in its bias. The article is also not well-written, with long paragraphs and complex sentences that are difficult to follow.

Furthermore, the article is not informative. It does not provide any new information about the Student Union Movement, or make any significant contributions to the debate. As such, it is not a useful addition to the conversation.

In conclusion, Hedge's article is a poor example of academic writing. It is not well-written, not informative, and not objective. It is not a useful contribution to the debate about the Student Union Movement.

Hobart's basketball team was staffers in their first defeat of the season Monday night, losing 71-70 to Geneseo State. All but three of the Geneseo team scored Wednesday, but the Seniors scored all 15, and 15 points were scored on three-pointers. With the win, Hobart and Geneseo are tied at 3-3, according to Geneseo's coach, Gene Swartz. "Our team is well matched," said Hobart's coach, Bruce Burgemeister. "We're even more well matched, because our team is more experienced." According to Swartz, "Our team is well matched," said Hobart's coach, Bruce Burgemeister. "We're even more well matched, because our team is more experienced."

Suddenly, only a few seconds before the buzzer sounded, the teams were ready to play. Leading 71-67, Hobart's coach, Bruce Burgemeister, called time out and shifted the players closer to the goal, despite a Geneseo three-pointer that tied the game at 70-67, with 0.7 seconds left. "I was trying to get the ball to the tallest player," said Burgemeister. "Our team is well matched," said Hobart's coach, Bruce Burgemeister. Albany's junior varsity basketball team, in what was described as a "tragic" loss of last Saturday's game, lost to Geneseo State 71-70. It was the second time the team has been defeated in this season, and it will come to a loss. Geneseo State, a team that won both of its games last year and was expected to win this year, won its second game of the season, losing 17-15 to Western. The team played a physical basketball game against Geneseo State, and the game ended with a 71-70 win for the visitors.
