Try-Outs for the March Series of the A. D. Dramas will be held in Page Hall, Saturday, March 13, at 7:30 p.m. The series is open to the entire student body. The theme is "A Morality Play for the Leisured Class." It will deal with the coarse, outside world, and the reality of the gentry's life.

Referendum Concludes Today; Voting Heavy

The second voting session on the referendum for the proposed new gymnasium will be held today. The referendum received only 10% of the needed 50% vote of the eligible student body. The second voting period began February 21, which was preceded by an extensive publicity campaign.

In both sessions, which were distributed in both residence and commingling students, the current situation of the Student Government was emphasized.

The information in the referendum was limited, as was the time available to students who voted last week. For the second votes, the student government has an absolute majority, but no referendum vote is necessary. The question, "Should the referendum be held, was put to the vote by the Student Government.

Bob and Danny Zeh are two good reasons why the Albany State baseball team is having one of its best seasons in years. Both brothers, the team's leader and last week's player of the week, are currently averaging 5.0 points per game. Bob is scoring 15.1 points a game and is second in rebounding.

Albany Center High School, New York, is the alma mater of the two brothers. At Jefferson they both attired in basketball, baseball, and cross-country.

Bob, the older of the two, stands 5-11, makes 170 pounds, and has a 3.3 high school average. Danny, 5'10, makes 165 pounds, and has a 3.0 average. Both brothers are involved in basketball. They have been playing basketball since the eighth grade.

Bob broke into the starting line-up last season, while Danny appeared on the first team this season. Both brothers have played on the team since the beginning of high school.

Abolish Capital Punishment

In the last decade a movement has been growing in New York to abolish capital punishment. This drive came about through a resolution passed by the University Senate. The resolution stated: "The University Senate urges the introduction of a bill abolishing the death penalty ." The resolution was signed by the late George Whitmore, chairman of the Senate. Whitmore was arrested last May for the murder of two women and was not informed of the crime. All the evidence was against him until someone else confessed to the crimes. A Senate resolution calling for the possible reinstitution of capital punishment and its consequences if Whitmore had been executed. The Senate did not act. It would not be the first time an innocent man was sent to the gallows.

Justice determines a man's guilt. Since justice is only human, it is not infallible. Can we take the chance every time a man is tried for murder that some evidence to clear him has not been disclosed?

There is no room for mistakes when dealing with a human life. It is the responsibility of society to rehabilitate the criminal, not to expeditiously remove him. Murder is any form, whether committed in self-defense and termed a "justifiable homicide", or by the state and termed "justifiable lethal self-defense".

If the State legislators cannot find it in themselves to suspend the death penalty, then we propose that they suspend it for five years. If after that time the human nobility has not realized that the death penalty is an anachronism, then let New York State join the other states in abolishing the death penalty. If the death penalty is still felt to be necessary, then let New York State proceed to abolish it by a vote of the people and restore the death penalty. Node as a Remedy For Bookstore Theft

To the Editor:

In the past few months, several students have reported having their books stolen from the bookstore. In response, I have written a letter to the bookstore and have presented it to the manager. The manager has informed me that the bookstore is taking steps to prevent future thefts.

I also believe that the bookstore should be given a greater role in the community. The bookstore is a valuable resource for students, and should be encouraged to participate in community events.

Yours sincerely,

David Johnson

Are you dead? A note from the city

To the Editor:

Last week the general consensus was that the Association of Student Women (AWS) was about to table the resolution amending and finally recommended - a proposal for a decentralized student government. The plan for a decentralized student government was put forward by the following: "Curfew hours for upper class women's weekend curfew hours will be set at 11:00 P.M. The purpose of "further study.""

The present AWS action is just one more of a series in a long history of university general policy — that is, endless delays.

Provisional Council Nominations

It is almost certain that after all the noise is deadened, the proposal for a provisional student government will be pushed forward. For the reasons given, it is extremely important for student groups to become organized and begin their work.

We urge all students who are interested in this university to designate themselves as candidates for the Provisional Council.
