A WORLD OF WELCOME

The opening of the new school year at the State College was welcomed by the students, faculty and alumni. The campus was alive with activity as the students returned from their summer vacations. The campus was filled with the sounds of college life, as the students settled into their new surroundings.

A world of welcome was extended to all who entered the campus gates. The students were greeted with open arms and a warm welcome by the faculty and staff. The campus was alive with the sound of conversation, as the students spoke of their summer adventures and their plans for the year to come.

The campus was decorated with banners and flags, and the students were dressed in their new uniforms. The air was filled with the scent of fresh paint and the sound of construction, as the college continued its expansion and renovation.

The students were excited to be back on campus and ready to start a new year of learning and growth. They were eager to meet their new classmates and to explore the many opportunities that the college had to offer.

Join New Society

Two junior faculty members and twenty-six students of the class of 1934 are announced as members of the first group chosen for Sigma Lambda, honor scholastic society which was organized last year under the direction of Emanuel Green, '30.

President A. R. Brobacher and Dr. William H. Bartter, dean, are the two members of the administration who also serve into the membership last June.

Although the constitution of the society declares that the student having the highest scholastic average in the graduating class shall be president, the group voted to deviate from this. In a regular conducted election, James W. Cooper, a high honor man, was chosen first president and James Trostly was chosen secretary-treasurer.

The group is open to all, but a minimum of ten per cent of the group must have been awarded a membership in the lower ten per cent of the graduating class shall be made benefactors of the society.

The group was organized at the close of the fall semester of 1929. The group decided to meet monthly, as well as to get together for a formal dinner at least once a semester.
313 students get teaching degrees upon graduation
Three hundred and thirteen students, including one honorary degree, of pedagogy and six honorary degrees of literature were awarded at the commencement of Page hall on Monday morning.
President A. W. Rudder, president of the college, and Andrew A. Sand, librarian, delivered the commencement address.

LIBRARY SCHOOL GIVES FRESHMEN INVENTORY TEST
The inventory test given by the College library staff to freshmen was for the purpose of finding out how much library training they have received in high school, according to Professor of library science, and today, classified in all of whom, Professor Church said, and we are getting a picture of the freshies' 3,000 ready to handle their work in the library.
Part of the test was to determine whether the credits they have received in the inventory test will be added to the library, and less advanced problems in the inventory test will be added to the hand and the book and taken to the freshies' 3,000 in the library.
