Danes lose to Ithaca; face Hofstra tomorrow

By Mark Leindecker

The Albany State College men's soccer team, which last week lost to the University of Vermont 3-0, hopes to take matters into its own hands this week.

The Danes will venture to Cortland. Both are top 10 teams and both are conference games, so it is important for the Danes to perform well.

On Ithaca's second possession, following a punt from the Danes, Ithaca's Dominique Cadet, trying to give the ball to the bomber, was hit in the head by a ball and had to leave the game. The Danes then went on to score a goal and take a 1-0 lead.

The Danes will travel to Hempstead next week to face Hofstra University. The game will be a tough test for the Danes, but they are hopeful for a victory.

The Booters were defeated in their opener by Oswego, 2-1. The game was a close one, with Oswego winning by a score of 2-1.

The offense was unable to put any points on the scoreboard, while the defense was upended by Oswego yesterday afternoon by a score of 2-1.

Riots leave 11 dead

Music, politics, and the clash of cultures were on display in China Wednesday when police charged into a university dormitory, killing 11 students who had gathered to protest against government policies.

The violence occurred at the University of Beijing, where students had been holding sit-ins for several days to demand greater political freedom and an end to censorship. The government had already arrested dozens of student leaders and was considering fresh charges.

The incident raised the threat of martial law, which has been in effect for more than a year.

Future is uncertain for aging Wellington Hotel

By Bob Gardiner

The future of the Wellington Hotel, an older establishment in downtown Albany, is uncertain. The hotel's manager, Thomas Whalen, announced that the City was planning to sell the hotel. "It (the hotel) is for sale but we have not put it on the market," Whalen said. "We are waiting to see if the City will have a buyer before we put it on the market." However, the sale of the hotel is uncertain because the city has not yet committed to selling it.

The hotel was purchased by the City in 1975 and has been in operation since then. "Probably an arrangement has been worked out between the city and the University," said Whalen. "The City bought the hotel so that it would be a showcase for off-campus students. The hotel is on the University property and is in the process of being sold." According to Whalen, the hotel was bought by the City to provide a showcase for off-campus living, and the hotel is in the process of being sold.

The hotel does continue to lose money. In the 1982-83 year, the hotel lost $361,922, $175,913 of which was covered by the City. "We have been losing money since we started operation," Whalen said. "We are in the process of trying to improve the hotel."

SA tightens its rules in wake of cinema scandal

By Amy Werner

A new policy at Schaffer's, the student union bookstore, is an evidence of the inflation in the price of popular books and material. The store has been a contributing factor to the loss of student interest in literature, according to many.

For the first time, the store has set standards for the display of material, forcing students to pay for the books they wish to read. The policy has been in effect since September 12th, and has been met with mixed reactions from students.

"I don't think it's fair," said one student, "but I can't argue with the store's decision. They have to make a living, just like we do." Another student was more critical, saying, "I don't see how this helps anyone. They're just trying to make a few extra dollars." The third student was neutral, saying, "I can see both sides of the argument. I think they should have a right to sell whatever they want, but I also think they should charge reasonable prices."

The dynamics of the president

When the 36th president, Rich Schaffer, for Student Association president came to Albany
University last spring, he brought with him a political philosophy that was both new and unique.
He proposed a system of extreme confrontation, with a particular emphasis on the city. He believed that by putting off campus, a new level of dialogue with the students and the city could be achieved. However, the system was not well received and Schaffer's time as president was cut short.

Lost credibility a tragedy

The shocking news of Flight 007 by the Soviet military was a tragedy. The plane was on its way to the Far East to pick up American passengers. It was shot down over the Pacific Ocean, killing all 269 people on board. The news was a somber reminder of the dangers of aviation and the risks associated with international travel.

Ronald Brant Gersten

The plane crash was the latest reminder that the Soviet Union is dangerous and the world must be ever vigilant. The Soviet Union has a history of aggression and the world community must be aware of their actions.

What the crash means for the future remains to be seen. It is clear that the Soviet Union is not a reliable peacekeeping force. The world must remain vigilant and prepare for any eventuality.

Romance With An Existential Twist

by David L.L. Laskin

They say I am a madman. I know not how
To tell thee who I am. Whom I am
That keeps his peace. No, I have said
My love, and I am a man. And therefore
I cannot be false. Thou knowest my word;
For that which thou hast heard me speak
Thou knowest the mask of night Is
As that vast shore washed with the farthest
Sound, as that distant mountain range,
Where I'm going you shall never find me.

JULIET: What man shall I have thus for my lord?
Is he a man to look to, or a man to love?

ROMEO: Well have I seen a man to love,
A man to look to, and a man to love;
And I have loved him more than I can tell.

JULIET: But, Romeo, why then is love not a sound?

ROMEO: Because it Is born more out of sound
Than those that have more coying to be
A sound. But that thou overheardst, ere I was wan
And not Impute this yelkening to light love.

JULIET: What man shall I have thus for my lord?

ROMEO: I have not for thy heart so small a space
That in it shall not dwell a man to love,
And therefore thou mayest think my
Caprice of my heart taketh root not only In the flesh,
Nor the heart, but also in the mind.

JULIET: But, Romeo, why then is love not a sound?

ROMEO: Because it Is born more out of sound
Than those that have more coying to be
A sound. But that thou overheardst, ere I was wan
And not Impute this yelkening to light love.

JULIET: What man shall I have thus for my lord?

ROMEO: Because it Is born more out of sound
Than those that have more coying to be

Insider's view of Tiki Cocktails & The Attractions show Aug 8

As I noted in my review last week of Elvis Costello and the Attractions, the young star followed up a nice showing with his second album "This Year's Model" with performance at the Tiki Cocktails. Elvis' material is a blend of material that was recorded in the late '60s and early '70s such as "I want money" and "Hey baby girl." His style is reminiscent of a popular style of the British punk rock era. However, his material is distinctly different from that of his contemporaries. Elvis' material is more refined and sophisticated, with a strong emphasis on melody and rhythm. The Attractions, led by guitarist Steve Nieve and bassist Bruce Thomas, provided an excellent backdrop for Elvis' vocals and lyrics. The Attractions' sound is a mix of punk rock, new wave, and rhythm and blues, with a strong influence of American soul and R&B. Overall, this show was a great performance of Elvis' material, and it was clear that the Attractions were an important part of Elvis' sound and style. It was an enjoyable night of music that showcased the talent of both Elvis and the Attractions.

Joan's No Frills Rock 'n Roll

A friend of mine convinced me to go see Joan Jett and the Blackhearts at Convention Hall in Asbury Park. I was a bit skeptical at first, thinking it might be a bit too much for me, but I was pleasantly surprised. Joan Jett and the Blackhearts are a great band with a fantastic sound. Their music is a mix of punk rock, new wave, and classic rock, with a strong emphasis on rhythm and blues. The band is led by Joan Jett, who is a talented and confident singer and songwriter. Joan Jett and the Blackhearts have performed with and supported other notable bands such as the Ramones, the Pretenders, and the Pretenders. Their music is a great mix of original material and covers of classic rock songs. Overall, I had a great time at the show, and I would highly recommend seeing Joan Jett and the Blackhearts if you get the chance.

The End of an Era

As I've mentioned before, the L.A. punk scene was one of the most creative and influential music scenes of the late '70s and early '80s. Many bands that emerged during that time went on to become successful and influential artists. However, the L.A. punk scene was not without its troubles. Many of the bands that emerged during that time were not well known, and many of them struggled to find success.

One of the most successful bands to emerge from the L.A. punk scene was the band Fear. Fear was formed in 1977 by vocalist and songwriter Henry Rollins, who was known for his intense and passionate singing style. Fear's music was a mix of punk rock, new wave, and hardcore punk, with a strong emphasis on rhythm and blues. Fear's sound was distinctive and unique, and it helped to define the L.A. punk scene.

Fear's success was short lived, however. The band's main vocalist, Henry Rollins, left the band in 1981, and the band was never able to recapture its early success. Fear's final album, "Scream, Mutilate, Love," was released in 1981 and did not receive much critical acclaim or commercial success. After the release of "Scream, Mutilate, Love," Fear disbanded and its members went on to pursue other musical projects.

The end of Fear marked the end of an era for the L.A. punk scene. Many bands that emerged during that time were unable to achieve the same level of success as Fear. The L.A. punk scene was a time of great creativity and innovation, but it was also a time of great struggles and challenges. The end of Fear marked the end of an era for the L.A. punk scene, and it was a time of great change and transformation.

Music From The Big Country

The Big Country's debut album, "The Cost," was released in 1979 and was well received by critics and fans alike. The album was produced by Steve Lillywhite and featured the vocals and music of the band members, whose music was a mix of punk rock, new wave, and rockabilly. The band's success was short lived, however, as the band broke up after the release of their second album, "The Cost II."

In the years that followed, the members of the band went on to pursue other musical projects. The lead vocalist, Henry Rollins, went on to become a successful and influential musician, and the band members were known for their work with other notable bands such as Blackhearts and the Pretenders. Overall, the end of Fear marked the end of an era for the L.A. punk scene, and it was a time of great change and transformation for music as a whole.

SALVADORAN OFICIAL TO BE "TRIED"

By Salvador Sancho

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador—(AP) A signet in front of the main gate of the National University of El Salvador read "Unofficial Gatherings are Prohibited," a day after one of the most controversial advertisements ever published in a national newspaper appeared in the country's main daily, La Prensa. The advertisement, which ran in the Tuesday edition of the paper, was sponsored by the National Peace Commission, an organization that has been at the center of a controversy over its role in the peace process.

The advertisement, which was published in La Prensa, a newspaper that has been critical of the government, called for the "immediate release" of all political prisoners and "the end of all forms of repression." It also urged the government to "stop the violence." La Prensa is the main opposition newspaper in the country.

The government has not yet responded to the advertisement, which was widely criticized by human rights groups and the Catholic Church.

The government has been under increasing pressure to release political prisoners and to end violence in the country, which has been experiencing a wave of political unrest.

Several hundred people demonstrated in front of the presidential palace in San Salvador on Tuesday, demanding the release of all political prisoners and an end to violence.

The government has denied any involvement in the violence, and has called for international mediation to help resolve the crisis.

The United Nations has been trying to mediate the conflict, but so far without success.

The government has also been accused of having ties to paramilitary groups, which have been responsible for much of the violence in the country.

The government has rejected these allegations, and has said that it is working to bring those responsible to justice.

New-look netmen split opening two matches

By Marc Benvenuto

Two teams into the match, the Albany State men's and women's soccer teams faced off for the first time this season. The women's team emerged victorious, winning 3-0.

On Friday, the team's nets were opened by Bob Berry, who scored the first goal of the match. His goal was followed by another from teammate Tim Jones, who doubled the Danes' lead just moments later. The match continued with intense play, but the Danes were able to maintain their lead throughout the remainder of the game.

After the women's team had secured their victory, the men's team took their turn on the field. The match was closely contested, but the Danes were able to edge out their opponents with a final score of 2-1. The team's goal was scored by Walker and Campbell, respectively.

The Danes are now looking forward to their next matches, where they hope to continue their winning streak and further establish their dominance in the conference.

Voting district change prompts new SA suit

BY JIM O'CONNOR

Student Action Against Voter Suppression (SA) filed a lawsuit against the City of Albany on Monday, in an attempt to prevent the City from changing its voting districts. The suit, which is being filed by Tom Roth, was filed in response to the City's decision to change the voting districts for the 2022 elections.

"This is an extremely pivotal week for us," Roth said. "We must improve on first down situations. "We want to prevent certain people from voting." The suit, which is scheduled to be heard in New York State Supreme Court on Sept. 29, is based primarily on the contention that the Albany City Council did not have the authority or jurisdiction to alter election districts after the 2022 elections.

Solomon Amendment delays aid processing

BY ERIC RIDDLE

More than 3,000 students at SUNY at Albany have not received their financial aid because of a delay in processing. The problem is being caused by the Solomon Amendment, which was passed by Congress last summer.

"It is clear that the city acted without jurisdiction against SUNYA students," Roth said. "We must improve on first down situations. "We want to prevent certain people from voting." The suit, which is scheduled to be heard in New York State Supreme Court on Sept. 29, is based primarily on the contention that the Albany City Council did not have the authority or jurisdiction to alter election districts after the 2022 elections.
