Basketball Acquires New Allure
As Men Pursue Their Rivals

Each Friday night the men's basketball game is an event which is eagerly anticipated by all the students. The game is held in the Sayles Hall-KD gym, and attracts a large audience. The game was between KD, ChiSiG, Sayles, and PsiGam, and was a fierce battle of wits and skill. KD and Sayles were the leading teams in the league, and the game was a must-see for any basketball fan.

The Great Delusion

It is a strange philosophy to which we of today may have fallen, a heretical mutation of the fundamental principles of government and freedom. Only those whose experience has been limited to the world of today's "easy living" still hold to a phantom that they barely still desire, but which is nowhere more hope and belief in some arbitrary form.

We who are in college today are the people of tomorrow. No succession of great philosophers, no complex and carefully laid plans we maintain and discard the fundamental past and present in the world. And we find ourselves in places where we should be in places where we are not.

The inter-relationship of these three great elements has been only on how long the awakening takes. And certainly, when we may have the time,

Spring 1944—We Hang From Subway Straps As Snow Swirls

New Yorkers are said generally, to be a bit more casual about their privacy than those in many other American cities. And they appear to have a bit more faith in the heat of the weather than folks anywhere else. The result is that they can be seen hanging from the subway straps during snowstorms as easily as during blue skies.

WAA Reveals Spring Program

WAA has recently announced a spring program. A new seven-room playhouse will be constructed to house a permanent exhibit of model architecture, and the students of the art school will be held responsible for the upkeep of the building and the display in it.

Majors Open; Pitching Glitters
