Trehanon Urges Liberal Body To Observe Library Regulations

By David Smith

"Having the past few years, State College students have beenneglecting, in some cases, the rules and regulations of the library. As a result, the student body and the library administration have had to put up with an increasing amount of noise, disorder, and general disorder in the library. In short, the library is no longer an alluring place of study, but rather a noisy, crowded, and generally unpleasant place to be.

I am writing to express my concern over this situation and to urge all students to observe the library regulations. The library is a place of study, and it is important that all students respect this by keeping the noise level down and obeying the rules.

I believe that the library regulations are necessary to maintain a quiet and orderly environment. I urge all students to respect these regulations and to make the library a place of study and learning.

Sincerely,
David Smith
The "Senators" of State

The initial game of 1937 baseball season appears at its highest bright. It is to serve the State-minded students. Although to many it seems to be the beginning of the season, the "Senators" of State have been practicing for months. The, initial game of 1937 baseball seems to promise a successful season for the State men. We feel confident the hickory will ring up the necessary regulation, we feel that it is insti­table for the State college. A suggestion for the week is now in order for those which should be a feature of State college. A which were to serve...

true it is, that the president, in his annual message, said that the public eye.

We feel confident that a new policy of reasonableness, which should come from the higher levels of government, will be adopted. Although we are told that the situation is still in a state of flux, we believe that a new era has begun, marked by a new spirit of cooperation and understanding.

Hell Week Is Banned From Gopher Campus

"I'm sure that the younger members of the University of Minnesota fraternity system have been pleased by the recent move of the campus to ban Hell Week. Many who had been involved in this pastime of the fraternity world were not aware of its extent or its impact on the lives of the students who participated in it."

This year, the University of Minnesota will no longer allow the Hell Week to take place on their campus. The move was made after a series of violations of the university's policies and regulations, as well as concerns about the safety and well-being of the students involved. The university has stated that it is committed to creating a safe and inclusive environment for all students, and that the pastime of Hell Week was not conducive to that goal.

The decision to ban Hell Week was made after the university conducted a thorough review of the issue, consulting with students, faculty, and staff. The university has also established a task force to work on creating alternative events that will provide the same level of fun and excitement for the students, while also adhering to the university's policies and regulations.

Managing and creating safe and inclusive events is a priority for the university, and they will continue to work on finding ways to ensure that all students feel welcome and included on campus. The university's commitment to creating a safe and inclusive environment for all students is a top priority, and they are committed to working towards that goal.
