Three Investigators Study Tone Sensation

A team of three investigators, Professor Haas, Dr. Brown, and Dr. Klein, conducted a study on the effects of tone vibration on the human body. The study involved testing four subjects who were asked to perform a series of exercises while being subjected to various tones. The results indicated that there is a significant difference in the way individuals respond to different tones, with some showing a higher level of sensitivity than others. The study has implications for future research in the field of auditory stimulation.

THIS BANNER clearly indicates the position of this group as they prepare to raise it for display above their heads.

COLLEGE STUDENTS carried banners from their schools as well as campus banners telling the rest of the world why they were demonstrating in New York City last Saturday.

INTENT LOOKS can be seen on these faces as students concentrate on demonstrating for a cause in which they believe.

THE BANNER for the Class of 1969 formed the background for the Levin' Spoonful concert Friday night since the concert was presented by the Council for Contemporary Music and as part of Sophomore Weekend.

THE DRUMMER of the Levin' Spoonful plays his part in presenting the musical sound of the group.

DANNY KALB, leader of the Blues Project, appears to be concentrating on one of his songs during their performance Sunday.

To the Editor:

Still in the A.D.P. for refusing old, indecent negatives, and again suspects, this long overdue letter is written to you. It has been long overdue. You say you've got the right. I say you've got the wrong. I have been stung by the greasy flaps and the scum of society. I want you to know that I will not be hurt. You may take the picture and show it to the world, but it will not make me break into a sweat in a moment's notice because I am afraid to say that I am not a member of the A.D.P. I am not frightened by the threat of being kicked out of the A.D.P. I am not afraid of the negative. I am not afraid of the A.D.P. I am not afraid of the world. I am not afraid of anything. I am not a member of the A.D.P. I am a member of the A.D.P. I am a member of the A.D.P. I am a member of the A.D.P.

Face St. Johns Indians Tomorrow
by Dune Wines

The Albany State baseball squad will open its home schedule today at 3 p.m. on Old Campus field. This is the first game in 10 years and the team will be looking to make a good showing.

Unfortunately, we cannot say the same of what will follow. The team will face R.P.I. in its first game of the season. The Engineers have been a disappointment for the past several years, and many are predicting a loss for the Danes.
