A Helping Hand...

The Sulpice Committee, appointed to coordinate and advise with some ideas on how to spend all the money raising around, made a few suggestions to the Council on Wednesday, among which was the possibility of raising money on an extra-curricular basis. We were very surprised to learn that our college offers only two scholarships, of just fifty dollars each, one for literary science and one for music. This is perhaps the most traditional event of all, and a yearly offering for the students. The committee will work against this kind of uncharitable, increasing disinterest in student government. The removal of the assembly from Page Hall and an extended enrollment have helped to bring this about.

Memories graduates carry away with them, but it is evident something will be lost. Whether it will be a representative type government or a non-representative assembly type, the new leaders will have to go on their own. We wish them well and wish them all the luck in the world.

STATE COLLEGE NEWS

May 10, 1938

From the Editor's Desk

Hail and Farewell...

Tomorrow morning when this year's seniors leave their dormitories and go out on their last day of school, they will step into the world. They will walk out of the doors of the Great Hall and the doors of the world will be opened to them. They will step into a world of work and they will need all the education they have received in their years here. They will need to be well prepared to take their place in the world. They will need to have the right kind of education and the right kind of preparation for the work they will do. They will need to have the right kind of preparation for the world they will enter. They will need to have the right kind of preparation for the world they will enter.

The seniors will be greeted by a group of people who will be standing outside the doors of the Great Hall. They will be given a warm welcome and they will be encouraged to do their best in their future endeavors. They will be given a chance to say goodbye to their school and to their classmates. They will be given a chance to look back on the years they have spent here and to think about the future.
