Returnees Spark 4 Dane Wins; Team Will Face Ithaca Tomorrow

Balanced by the return of Dick Margulis, former three-sport senior, and the retained strength of the Slate, the Albany State Athletic Program announced its schedule for the spring semester. Eight contests remaining, the Albany State Engineers have compiled a 4-2 record and are looking forward to the season with a four game winning streak and now seemingly hoping to finish strong.

Grapplers Rout Potsdam, 27-8
To Even Its Record at 2-2

The Albany State grapplers evened their record at 2-2 when they defeated Potsdam by a 27-8 victory. The Joe Carroll doubled matmen registered seven wins out of nine matches in running up their total. Although Potsdam has impressed the Danes with their performances, they have consistently held their own in the battles. This is the attribute of the human form which has been developed through the ages.

During this season, the Danes have encountered a superior defense in the form of Gene Mocs, the Outstanding Wrestler of the World. This defense has been developed through the ages, and the Danes have consistently held their own in the battles. This is the attribute of the human form which has been developed through the ages.

Archbishop Carroll, the only player on the Danes, has led this team. Coming to within two points of the opponent in the first round, he then scored with a 17-7 lead in the second round. Carroll, the only collegiate basketball player to have scored a point in the Great Danes' victory, added 17 points in the second round, including seven points in the second round. Captain Constantino Mainstay State

Jim Constantino, a 1962 graduate of Mohonasen High School, has been the key man in the success of the Danes this season. Although he has not scored any points in the Big Ten match, he has contributed to the team's success in other ways. He has scored 19 points in the second round, including seven points in the second round. Over The Counter Intelligence

Most students today are concerned over the status of certain UGAR issues, and the question of 'how much can we accomplish?' has been asked to the University for the past year. The question is reasonable, and it is important to know how we can accomplish anything if we don't even know what we want to achieve.

The position of the University is that we are not against the proposal as such, but rather that we need more time to study the proposal before we can make a decision. The University is also concerned about the financial implications of the proposal, and we need to know more about the costs before we can make a decision.

The proposal suggests that the University should be given more authority over the administration of student affairs, which would allow us to make decisions more quickly and effectively. However, the University is also aware of the potential for abuse of power, and we need to be careful about giving too much authority to any one person.

The University is also concerned about the impact of the proposal on student privacy rights. The University is committed to protecting the privacy of our students, and we need to be careful about any proposal that might compromise this right.

The University is also concerned about the potential for divisiveness within the student body. The University is committed to promoting a sense of community and unity among its students, and we need to be careful about any proposal that might create division.

The University is also concerned about the potential for financial costs. The University is committed to providing quality education at an affordable cost, and we need to be careful about any proposal that might increase the costs for students.

The University is also concerned about the potential for negative publicity. The University is committed to maintaining a positive public image, and we need to be careful about any proposal that might create negative publicity.

The University is also concerned about the potential for legal challenges. The University is committed to complying with all laws and regulations, and we need to be careful about any proposal that might create legal challenges.

The University is also concerned about the potential for negative impact on the University's reputation. The University is committed to maintaining a positive public image, and we need to be careful about any proposal that might create negative impact on the University's reputation.
