New UNIVAC Is More Powerful

by Beth Scarf

ON UNIVAC 1100 is the second computer delivered to SUNY this year, following the UNIVAC 1107 bought by SUNY in 1963. and was installed at SUNY in 1965. The UNIVAC 1100 was put in service in the summer of 1968 and was in operation until mid-1974. The SUNY computer center in Albany has in the past been responsible for all computer services of the SUNY system. The new computer will be used in the SUNY computer center in Albany, presumably large-scale administrative, data processing, and research work. The computer is expected to be up and running by the end of the current fiscal year. The SUNY computer center is expected to be operating by the end of the fiscal year.

Nixon's Man Without A Home

NEW YORK (AP) President Nixon may be received at his new Manhattan home next week. Nixon was yesterday seen by an Associated Press reporter to be making a tentative inspection of the building. The move, which is within the limits of the city's apartment law, is apparently not an evasion. A city official said: "There is a question whether he is going to move there. We have a feeling that he is going to move there." Nixon's choice of a new residence has been controversial. His previous residence was the White House.

A recent report by the New York Times indicated that Nixon was considering a move to New York. The move would be significant for Nixon, who has faced criticism for his handling of the Watergate scandal. The move to New York would allow Nixon to be closer to the media and political centers of the city.

Tensions Rise Over Mass Display in Boston

(AP) Flim-flam artists in Boston are peddling fake tickets to a Mass on the Boston Common, a church official said yesterday. The tickets are being sold for $4.50, well above the price of a regular ticket, which is $1.00. The church official said that the tickets are being sold to take advantage of the large crowds expected for the Mass, which is held on the Boston Common every year. He said that the church is trying to prevent the scalping of tickets and that it is working with the police to stop the sale of fake tickets.

Earthquake in Italy

ROME (AP) An earthquake shook central Italy from Rome to Pescara yesterday, killing six people and injuring over 50. The earthquake, which was felt in Rome, caused one death and several injuries. The epicenter of the quake was near the Umbrian region, the hilly heart of Italy. Police said a family was killed when their house collapsed. The quake was felt in several areas, including Pescara, where 10 people were injured.

SUNYA Combats Energy Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) American universities will be allowed to conduct DNA research under new rules that were announced today. The rules are designed to ensure that research on the DNA of living and non-living organisms will not be used to create new life forms or to create organisms that are not natural. The rules were announced by SUNYA President Vincent L. Hartigan, who said that the university was committed to ensuring that research on DNA does not harm the environment.

Abuse of Veto Plot

Washington, D.C. (AP) White House officials yesterday accused the American Medical Association (AMA) of vetoing a bill that would have allowed doctors to perform abortions on women who request them. The AMA has opposed the bill, saying that it would undermine the integrity of the medical profession. The White House defended the bill, saying that it would help women by providing them with access to legal and ethical abortions.

Peace Treaty Reinforced

Khartoum (AP) Sudanese officials said yesterday that the Khartoum government was committed to the Peace Treaty with Ethiopia. The officials said that the government was working to implement the treaty, which was signed in July and is designed to end the 20-year conflict between the two countries.

DNA Research Rules Are Relaxed

SUNYA President Vincent L. Hartigan announced today that SUNYA has relaxed its rules on research involving DNA. The new rules are designed to allow more research on DNA, which is used in medical and scientific research, without restricting the use of the technology.

Asbestos on Campus

WASHINGTON (AP) The University of Maryland has announced that it will begin testing for asbestos in its buildings. The university has been under pressure to test for asbestos, which is a known carcinogen, after a student died of cancer last year. The university said that it would test all buildings on campus and that the results would be made public.

Wealthy Residents May Be Exempted From New Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) The U.S. House of Representatives will vote today on whether wealthy residents should be exempted from a new property tax. The tax is intended to raise money for schools and other local services, but some residents have opposed it, saying that it is unfair to target the wealthy.

Food Safety

WASHINGTON (AP) The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has announced a new program to increase food safety. The program will involve more inspections and tests of food products to ensure that they are safe for consumption.

Winning the Right to Vote

BOSTON (AP) The Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court has ruled that women have the right to vote in state elections. The ruling, which was announced yesterday, overturns a previous decision that had denied women the right to vote.

SUNYA Combats Energy Problems

SUNYA President Vincent L. Hartigan announced today that SUNYA has reduced its energy consumption of each building by 20 percent. The reduction has been achieved through a variety of measures, including the use of more energy-efficient lighting and appliances.

Human Rights

BANGKOK (AP) A military coup in Thailand has led to widespread human rights abuses. The coup, which was announced yesterday, has resulted in the deaths of at least 10 people and the detention of hundreds of others. The coup leaders have promised to hold elections, but human rights groups have expressed concern about the possibility of further abuses.

Faux Pas

To the Editor:

The below-signed members of the Student Voice of SUNYA hereby appeal to the Board of Trustees of SUNYA to reconsider its recent decision to place a limit on the Student Voice's access to the campus newspaper, The SUNYA Staff.

We believe that this decision is not in the best interests of the SUNYA community and is contrary to the principles of free speech and democratic participation that are fundamental to our university. The Student Voice has a long history of providing a platform for diverse voices and promoting open dialogue on campus issues.

We urge the Board of Trustees to rescind this decision and restore full access to The SUNYA Staff.

Sincerely,

To the Editor:

A recent experience at Stuyvesant Plaza has prompted me to write this letter. On the morning of [date], I entered the Plaza to purchase some books. While walking through the busy streets of the Plaza, I was confronted by a guard who demanded that I leave the area immediately. I felt threatened and intimidated by the guard's behavior.

I believe that such incidents are unacceptable and warrant further investigation. The security measures implemented by the Plaza management should ensure the safety and security of all patrons. I urge the Plaza administration to address this issue and take appropriate action to prevent similar incidents in the future.

Sincerely,

Les Art D' Ecrit Part 1

Effective writing is contingent upon a number of factors; the first of which is the writer's proficiency in the language. The writer's choice of vocabulary, the inclusion or exclusion of certain words, and the use of proper grammar are all essential components of effective writing. It is not always apparent to the reader why a particular word or phrase was chosen, and oftentimes it is difficult to determine whether a sentence is clear or not. However, by considering the context and the intended message of the writer, one can often gain a better understanding of the text.
Look Ma, I'm A Beatle - Almost

In December of 1974, while on a semester break from college, my friends and I decided to go on a short vacation. We were all avid music fans and were excited about the possibility of seeing some of our favorite bands. However, upon arriving in New York City, we found out that none of the major rock bands were in town at the time. This was a disappointment, but we were determined to make the most of our visit.

One day, we stumbled upon an audition for the ensemble of the upcoming Beatles musical, "Beatlemania." We were intrigued by the prospect of seeing the show in action, and decided to try our luck at the audition.

We arrived at the studio, which was located in the heart of Manhattan, just a few blocks from Times Square. The studio was filled with musicians and performers, all eager to showcase their talent. We were nervous but excited as we waited in line to audition.

The man in charge of running the auditions was Sandy Yaguda, the show's musical director. He was calm and professional, and welcomed everyone into the studio. I remember feeling a sense of excitement and anticipation as I walked up to the stage and took my place.

I decided to sing "Let It Be" for my audition. I had practiced the song extensively, and was confident that I could deliver a strong performance. When I went up to the microphone, I concentrated on relaxing and enjoying myself, and poured all my energy into the song.

I sang the first verse and chorus, and then moved on to the bridge. As I approached the last line, I felt a wave of nervousness wash over me. I took a deep breath and delivered the final line with all my might. When I finished, I closed my eyes and waited for the reaction.

The audience reaction was amazing. They were all clapping and cheering, and I could feel the energy in the room. I knew at that moment that I had delivered a strong performance, and felt a sense of pride and accomplishment.

As I left the studio, I felt a strong sense of purpose and motivation. I knew that I had narrowly missed being cast in the show, but I was determined to keep trying. I continued to practice and audition, and eventually was cast in the role of George Harrison in the musical "Beatlemania."

I was thrilled to be a part of such an exciting and talented ensemble. We worked hard to perfect our performances, and I gained a deeper appreciation for the music and artistry of the Beatles. It was a challenge and a privilege to be a part of such a talented team.

In the end, I learned that success is not always immediate, but requires hard work, dedication, and perseverance. I am grateful for the experience and the opportunity to be a part of such a memorable and exciting production.
The Who's rock opera "Tommy," released in 1975, is considered a masterpiece of rock music. The album tells the story of a deaf, dumb, and blind youth who is wrongfully institutionalized in a children's home. The Who's performance at the New York Colosseum, held between September 13th and 17th, 1975, was a massive success. The band performed the entire album, along with other hits, to a sold-out crowd. The concert is remembered for its elaborate stage design, featuring lasers, costumes, and pyrotechnics. The audience was immersed in the story, which included a large cast of characters, and the performances were praised for their energy and intelligence. The album had a profound impact on rock music, influencing a generation of musicians and becoming one of the best-selling albums of all time.

I Love Lucy

Love Lucy? Is it a good idea to marry the zany I Love Lucy? Is it possible to change a sitcom to a movie? These questions were addressed in "I Love Lucy: The Musical Style: raw and highly expressive, the film looks like "I Love Lucy." The audience is kept in the dark about the film's true intentions until the last moments of the performance, when Young uses the camera to give the audience a closeup of the show itself, it seems like a musical style, raw and highly expressive; he's the cheerful Beatle, and has remained spacey as ever. Or is he? Rust

Put Your Eyes Here AGAIN !!!!!!

Put nothing in writing. If you discuss the world and in particular post industrial revolution nations, we're being Brexploited and lonely. We talk about burning campus issues, we're wasting time and space. There's really nothing to win, but we don't lose either. Do the best of us, actually, the world does. And it's as cozy and secure as they come.

We really don't want to stand idly by, but we're told that media is as important as music, so let's make sense of SUNYA's people, maybe we'll become better eventually, but because the people here are more innovation, not the. Not to mention that the sounds of drum machines will always play the do it. But we're given to the fact that we didn't see a few times the somewhat dismissed
The New York Times, etc. can't do it, to see, we don't want...

We're not asking for your help, because we don't want any. This newspaper content in the form of the same old fearless, but this time in the press. Actually, we're in a state of that if you're reading this, you're not really

Stop treating your feet like dogs.

Feet are human, too. And therefore have an inalienable right to a pair of good, comfortable shoes. Like the one you see below. It's a Rockport. And it knows how to treat men's and women's feet with respect.

Take the inside for example. With most shoes, the inside is just the other side of the outside. We consider that callous treatment. And so do feet.

So we put a foam cushion inside. And a full leather lining. One that's been specially tanned to make it soft and comfy.

Some companies think we're foolish to work so hard on part of a shoe you never pay much attention to. Frankly, we don't care what they think. We only care how your feet feel about it.

The Danes offense is young and will not be "out" of the rage tonight. A chance will not be given away in a losing situation. The SUNY Athletic Conference Champions will be the first team to go to the NCAA playoffs if they win tonight.

In the Danes opening game against the University of Vermont last week, the Danes scored the first half before being shut out in the second half. The offense has scored 11 points in the last three games and will challenge the Connecticut, these two areas will be critical to the performance of the offense. In the first half, the offense scored 14 points. The second half was only scored to 4 points. The offense scored 11 points in the first half, but was unable to score in the second half.

"We were not successful in the second half," said Carnevale. "And we did not make any adjustments on offense."

The offense continued on page seven.
