City pushes arrests on 'grouper' counts
By Ken Dombrow

Frank and Angelina Multari, of 831 Washington Avenue in Albany, were arrested last Thursday on 11 counts of violating the grouper law in connection with six buildings they own. The couple rent seven apartments in Albany.

The apartment of Student Association President Rich Schaffer, who lives in a four-bedroom apartment on Washington Avenue, and 831 Washington Avenue, and 8 or Chart President Jeff Kouns, who lives in a four-bedroom apartment on Hudson Avenue were among those found in violation.

"I did not expect this to happen," said Schaffer, adding that the Multari's Attorney, Director of code enforcement and wouldn't start a trial until June. He came with a copy, he's a 45-year-old student. None of the students in these apartments have remained, Schaffer said.

Multari's Attorney is on the second floor of the apartment of 831 Washington Avenue, used to have four people, said Multari, "but now it's legal, the little guy."

A flagrant violator, according to Schaffer, is a "big time landlord, one who owns a lot of houses. They're not going to do anything."

"One of my other houses, on Washington Avenue, used to have four people, said Multari, "and they haven't been, for years, a visible member of the student association."

"A neighbor of a house I owned on Kent Street was the head of the neighborhood association. She didn't like him and he didn't like students." he added.

"Mike Alvaro is a great person," said Schaffer, adding that "this meant we wanted to get rid of them. They're going to do this for the sake of the little guy.""}

McCann voted chair of Council, beating Russo after three votes
By Donna MacKenna

After three rounds of voting, Bill McCann defeated Steve Russo Wednesday night to be elected Central Council Chair for the 1985-86 academic year.

McCann, 24, a member of the Internal Affairs Committee and the 1984-85 Student Association (SA) President, won the position with 25 votes, while Russo received 22.

McCann cited his experience as Vice-Chair of the Central Council, his education, his background, and his enthusiasm for getting students involved in Student Government as his best qualities for the job. "I sat down and compiled a list of well over a hundred ideas," McCann said, "and I see the relationship between Council and the rest of the student body."

Russo, 23, a member of the Central Council and the Associated Students of University at Albany (ASU), explained that "there is a need for a change in government policies."

"We must learn the limitations and mistakes of that move," added Kouns. "We must learn how to communicate better and more effectively."

"Students are now more organized and communication is better," said Russo. "There has been a general feeling of equality in response to the extension of the city."

Iraq raids tanker

Malcolm, Ann

Iraqi forces have boarded, searched and released a tanker off the Iranian coast Wednesday, initiating a series of violent confrontations that have strained relations between Tehran and Baghdad. At least 17 oil workers were reported missing aboard the tanker, according to Iraqi officials. The boat, the Iranian Oil Ministry said, was the third tanker to be seized by Iraq in the Persian Gulf this week.

This incident comes at a time when relations between Tehran and Baghdad are already strained over the issue of the Jewish exodus from Iraq. The exodus has been going on for several years, and the Iranian government has been pressuring Iraq to allow them to return to their homeland.

The Iranian government has also been批评g Iraq for its support of the opposition groups in Iran, including the Mujahedin-e-Khalq and the People's Mujahedin of Iran (PMOI). The PMOI is a revolutionary group that has been active in Iran since the 1970s and has been involved in various political and military conflicts in the region.

The Iranian government has been accusesed of using the exodus issue as a way to pressure Iraq politically and economically. The government in Tehran has been pressing Iraq to allow more of the exodus to return to Iran.

Despite the tensions, both governments have expressed a desire to improve relations. In recent weeks, there have been several high-level meetings between Iranian and Iraqi officials, including a visit by Iranian Foreign Minister Manouchehr Dadkhah to Baghdad last month.

The Iranian government has also expressed a willingness to work with Iraq on a number of other issues, including the-Jewish exodus, the-PMOI and the issue of Iraq's support for the-PMOI.

The Iraqi government has been more cautious in its responses, but has also expressed a desire to improve relations with Iran.

This latest incident, however, has raised concerns about the future of relations between the two countries. It remains to be seen how the Iranian government will respond to the Iraqi action, and whether it will lead to further tension in the region.

Finally, it is worth noting that this incident occurred at a time when both countries are facing significant domestic challenges. In Iran, the government is struggling with the aftermath of the recent political unrest, while in Iraq, the government is dealing with the aftermath of the recent terrorist attacks.

In conclusion, the latest incident between Iran and Iraq has the potential to escalate tensions in the region. It remains to be seen how both governments will respond, and whether this incident will lead to further friction between the two countries.
Campus officers found in group coffee break

By Matthew Green

Four University Police Department officers were seen standing in a group, seemingly taking a break at a local coffee shop. The officers, who were on duty at the time, were later reported to have been involved in the investigation of a minor disturbance on campus.

According to UPD reports, the officers were seen standing together at 2:30 p.m. on April 28 in front of the Campus Center, near the entrance to the Student Union Building.

Upd the number 723

Officer Miller was on the radio with another officer, citing the radio log, which indicated that unit 723 had been squads the whole night. At 2:37 a.m., they left the State Quad area, where they had been surrounded by police cars at the same time at that late hour.

All instructors have a file which includes a performance evaluation summary. These summaries, according to the radio log, several check-ins, and reports, were used to keep up on the events.

Minority student body achieves unique expressions of identity

By Patrick Johnson

As we stand in an assembly, minority students are left with painful memories of rejection. In SUNYA, such pain will permanently be etched into our memories as we move and open our minds to change and reflect on issues of progress and possibilities. Others will remember in fluid terms the importance of minority students in the educational system. As a result, our voices will improve the climate of our educational system. A major portion of our educational system is dependent on those who, through the study of minority students, have made us more aware of our current situation.

As we reflect on the 1984-1985 academic year, we find our disappointments, but also our victories. Some who have emerged with new skills and ideas that are a part of our current system.

On the move!!

Good luck on finals!

Sexual harassment tied to a power hierarchy

By Joydell Cohen

"Sexual harassment occurs in the workplace more often than we think," says a recent poll. A study by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) found that 33% of women have experienced sexual harassment at work. The EEOC defines sexual harassment as unwanted sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, or other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature. It is a form of employment discrimination under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

According to the EEOC, sexual harassment is most likely to occur in small to medium-sized workplaces. In larger organizations, there are more resources available to combat sexual harassment, such as human resources departments and legal counsel. However, even in these settings, sexual harassment can still occur.

Sexual harassment is a serious problem that can have a significant impact on the lives of those who experience it. It can cause emotional distress, fear of retaliation, and loss of job opportunities. In some cases, sexual harassment can result in physical harm.

The EEOC recommends that employers develop policies and procedures to prevent sexual harassment. These policies should be communicated to all employees and should include guidelines for reporting sexual harassment and procedures for investigating and handling complaints.

In addition to workplace policies, employees can also take steps to prevent sexual harassment. This includes being aware of their rights and responsibilities, and reporting any incidents of sexual harassment to a supervisor or human resources representative.

Sexual harassment is a complex issue that requires a multifaceted approach. It is important for both employers and employees to take steps to prevent and address sexual harassment.

The EEOC provides resources for employers and employees to learn more about sexual harassment. These resources include publications, training materials, and online tools.

People who believe they have experienced sexual harassment should consider filing a complaint with the EEOC. To file a complaint, individuals should contact the EEOC office in their state or visit the EEOC website for more information.

Too many cooks?

Anything seems possible in the 1980s. USA Today is already a living newspaper and television. Newsweek has a TV show. The computer is going to change everything. We are so sure. But look at what’s wrong now. The computer is going to change everything. We are so sure. But look at what’s wrong now.

And what about terrorism? How can we be sure that the United States is the only nation capable of terrorism? How can we be sure that America is the only nation capable of terrorism? How can we be sure that America is the only nation capable of terrorism?

What a mess! It seems that the editors of USA Today are in agreement on this, but no one else.

The group consists of about 11 or 12 students who are not exposed to formalized education that they plan on beginning some time in the future. The group is not funded by any other organization. We are preparing by putting the full page out to the ASP or any other organization for possible financial support.

Due to the exercise of our right of Free Speech, we have decided to print this letter in the student newspaper. We feel that it is important to bring to light the problems that are currently faced by our group. We hope that others will also consider these issues and support our efforts.

This letter is written in response to Tuesday's article entitled "Editorial: The Importance of a Free Society." I would like to address Howard Eissenstat's letter entitled "The Importance of a Free Society."

Letters concerning Minister Farrakhan

Farrakhan’s merits
To the Editor:

I was very disappointed by the ASP’s inaccurate presentation of the Farrakhan story in its April 26 edition. While little controversy surrounded Farrakhan’s appearance before the LC’s, the ASP’s account was highly biased. It was a political account disguised as a news story.

Farrakhan has a deep understanding of the oppression of the people and what it takes to break free. Yes, many black leaders have spoken about black unity and what it means to be black. However, few have spoken about the need for unity between black and white people. Farrakhan’s presentation was a call to action for all people to come together.

Farrakhan’s speech was powerful and inspiring. It was a call to action for all people to come together. He spoke about the need for unity between black and white people. His speech was a call to action for all people to come together.

The ASP’s coverage of Farrakhan’s speech was one-sided. They failed to present both sides of the story. Instead, they chose to focus on what they saw as the negative aspects of Farrakhan’s speech.

Their coverage was not only inaccurate but also biased. They failed to present both sides of the story.

I believe that the ASP should have provided a more balanced and accurate presentation of Farrakhan’s speech. They should have allowed readers to make up their own minds about his message.

Sincerely,

Robert E. Becker III

Misguided views
To the Editor:

In regard to the ASP article on Friday, “In regard to Farrakhan article on Friday,” I think that the economist of the president, as well as the president in general, was misinformed.

Much has been made of the aforementioned article, but little has been said about the economic policies of the president. Most of the attention has been focused on the president’s economic policies, but little has been said about the economists who support him.

I do believe that there is a need for more balanced and accurate coverage of political issues. The ASP should not be afraid to present both sides of a story.

Sincerely,

Howard Mueller

Review of “The Great Gatsby”

F. Scott Fitzgerald’s novel “The Great Gatsby” is a classic work of American literature. It tells the story of Jay Gatsby, a man who has made a fortune through illegal means and who wants to win back his former love, Daisy Buchanan.

The novel is set in the 1920s and tells the story of Gatsby’s descent into the world of the wealthy and decadent. The novel is a commentary on the American Dream and the Jazz Age.

The novel is a classic work of American literature and is worth reading for its themes and its depiction of the 1920s. It is a must-read for any lover of literature.

Sincerely,

Evelyn M. Greenwold

Review of “Fahrenheit 451”

Ray Bradbury’s novel “Fahrenheit 451” is a powerful work of science fiction. It tells the story of the future, where books are burned and people are controlled by the government.

The novel is a commentary on the dangers of censorship and the importance of freedom of speech. It is a must-read for any lover of literature.

Sincerely,

Evelyn M. Greenwold

Review of “1984”

George Orwell’s novel “1984” is a powerful work of dystopian fiction. It tells the story of a man who becomes a government spy and who learns about the dangers of totalitarianism.

The novel is a commentary on the dangers of totalitarianism and the importance of freedom. It is a must-read for any lover of literature.

Sincerely,

Evelyn M. Greenwold

Penn State and New York University, the Danes finished the season with an overall 13-7 mark.

The Danes won six of their last seven dual meets, a string that included a four-game winning streak against New Paltz, Stony Brook, Hofstra, and the University of Pennsylvania. Coach Ed Zaloom was honored for his contributions to the Danes' success.

The Danes' most valuable swimmer, Jeff Kennedy, broke the school record in the 200-yard individual medley and was a part of the 400-yard medley relay team.

Kennedy, who graduated in May, helped lead the Danes to their first NCAA tournament appearance. His performance in the individual medley and the medley relay earned him All-American honors.

The Danes also qualified for the NCAAs for the first time since 1981. Kennedy was named the Men's Swimming and Diving Scholar-Athlete of the Year.

In addition to Kennedy, the Danes had six other All-Americans: Kevin O'Neill in the 100-yard breaststroke, Chuck Thompson in the 200-yard backstroke, and three members of the 400-yard medley relay team.

The Danes' success was due in large part to the leadership of Kennedy, who was a four-year varsity athlete.

Kennedy's leadership was evident in his work ethic and his ability to inspire his teammates. His dedication to the sport was evident in his training and his performances in the pool.

Kennedy's efforts were rewarded with a double major in electrical engineering and mathematics.

The Danes' success was also due to the contributions of other athletes, such as O'Neill and Thompson.

Their leadership and work ethic were key in the Danes' success.

The Danes' season ended with a disappointing loss to the University of Pennsylvania in the NCAA semifinals. However, Kennedy's performance in the individual medley and the medley relay earned him All-American honors.

Former Dane All-American returns as new SID

Two years ago, Rich Reda crossed the Capital Region on a brief foray into the news media business. It was his first time back in the area after playing football, basketball, baseball and lacrosse for the Great Danes.

Now he’s back, but this time as sports information director for the State University of New York at Albany.

Reda received a bachelor’s degree in journalism from Colgate University and a master’s in sports journalism from Ohio State University.

“My love of sports started in this area,” Reda said. “I grew up in Troy, and I was a huge sports fan. I remember going to a Chargers-Capital Punishment lacrosse game and the only reason I stayed was to watch the Colgate men’s basketball team. That’s when I decided to try for Colgate. I thought I could make a name for myself there and I did. I became a starter my junior year, and I’ve been successful ever since.”

After Reda graduated from Colgate in 1982, he worked as a news media assistant at the University of New Orleans. While there, he was instrumental in helping the school acquire its first TV station, which was later sold to the university.

“I was very active in that role,” Reda said. “I helped organize games, worked with the media, and was a key part of the student-athlete program.”

Reda also worked as an assistant sports information director at Colgate in 1983, and then as an associate sports information director at the University of Akron in 1984.

When Reda returned to Albany State as the new sports information director, he was excited about going to a place that made sense of new growth. There was something to come to this University.

Reda’s job will be to alert the local news media to the happenings at the University as a whole is brought to the attention of the public. He will work with Bill Kennedy, an old friend, to keep the news coming out of Albany State.

“Reda’s job is to help us spread the news of Christ, but of the University as well,” Kennedy said.

Reda’s first order of business was to alert the local media to the state’s championship win in the 1985 spring flag football tournament.

Reda said he was excited about the future of the sport at Albany State.

“It’s a great job to have while expanding my journalism career,” Reda said. “I can do those while my college days are behind me.”

Reda, who is married to the former Linda Zarnik, is a member of the Capital Region Sports Hall of Fame.

Great Dane year in review: A hot winter season

By Marc Berman

The Albany State winter sports teams spent the冷冷的 winter season as a perpetual hot streak.

When the season began, the Danes had a combined record of 14-11. Looking to the Albany Student Press Offices, the Danes were just 8-9 in December. But during the month of January, the Danes went on a 14-game winning streak.

The Danes finished the season with a perfect 9-0 record in Division III. The Danes' 30-0 record was the highest in NCAA history.

The Danes' hot streak continued into the NCAA tournament, where they defeated three-time All-American and last year's 126-pound NCAA champion, and Shawn Sheldon, an All-American in his freshman season, both won their first matches in the NCAA tournament.

The Danes' one-two punch failed to earn All-American honors. The Danes' 30-0 record was the highest in NCAA history.

The Danes hosted this year's ECACs and wound up fourth. The four-time All-American failed to lose a regular season match and set the NCAA record with 1,116 yards.

On the basketball court, the Danes reached their pre-season goal. With Mike Milano sidelined for the year with a broken fibula suffered in the opening game victory against Massachusett's basketball court against WPI. The Danes' 30-0 record was the highest in NCAA history.

Vietnam after Giap Phong

by Robert Goodman

The Nortli Takes Command

Today Vietnam's foreign policy centers on three different ways in which it is committed to survival. There is, of course, a desire for diversion. Residents are less hospitable, and many are forced to flee across the Mekong River, where they languish in refugee camps. Those who remain are subjected to continued and brutal violence. Vietnam remains slavishly responsive to Soviet aid. For the people of Vietnam, however, the war with China is still on. And they continue to bedevil and devastate on a proud people who have fought and struggled against Chinese imperialism for so long.

The benefits of the Cambodian invasion? Vietnam is now in a position to support its own regime in its fight against China. The invasion has provided Vietnam with a strong base of support in Cambodia, allowing it to continue its war against China without fear of intervention from any external source. Vietnam is now in a position to dictate the terms of the peace process in Cambodia, ensuring that it will continue to be a reliable ally of the Soviet Union.

Vietnam's troops, however, are not immune to the effects of the war. The invasion has taken its toll on the people of Cambodia, and the fighting has left a legacy of destruction and suffering. Will you remember Husker Du? They may be one of the few bands that entirely changed the face of America music. Maybe it’s the long hair, maybe it’s the way they write the songs, or maybe it’s the way they make music. But whatever it is, they made a huge impact in the mid 80s.

Here’s an excerpt from my book: "Husker Du applied its hammer to the banner of the Swedish children’s board game Husker Du. Sometime in 1979 Crant..."

By John Kaplan

The grand opening of the new Chapel House took place on May 26 after a fire destroyed much of the original building. The new Chapel House, designed by architect Robert M. Stern, has become a focal point for student life on campus.

"We are very excited about the new Chapel House," said Lee, the director of chapel services. "It provides a beautiful and welcoming space for students to gather and worship.

The fire started in the basement of the old Chapel House and quickly spread to the upper floors.

Chapel House staff member on the scene. "When we got there, it was really obvious a burned out shell."

"It was a heartbreaker," said Lee, the first Chapel House staff member on the scene. "We're really sad about it."
