World News Briefs

Total Eclipse Takes Place

BEATTIE (AP) A total eclipse of the Pacific Northwest swept briefly into the region this week, as the moon completely covered the sun for a few minutes on Aug. 11. People who were watching the event from Mount Rainier are expected to see the eclipse begin at 9:30 a.m. and last until 10:30 a.m. In the meantime, the moon will cast a shadow known as the umbra, which is visible only from certain areas along the eclipse's path.

US Will Protect Oil Interest

WASHINGTON (AP) The United States has agreed to help protect an oil pipeline in southern Iran, according to a report in the Wall Street Journal. The pipeline, which carries oil from the Persian Gulf to the port of Bandar Abbas, has been a target of recent terrorist attacks. The U.S. will provide assistance to Iran in securing the pipeline and in dealing with any potential threats.

Venezuela to Raise Oil Price

NEW YORK (AP) The price of oil has increased by $1 per barrel, according to officials from OPEC. The increase is expected to have a significant impact on the global economy, as oil is a major factor in the cost of goods and services worldwide. The move is seen as a response to the recent rise in oil prices, which has been driven by rising demand and supply issues.

Official is Executed in Iran

TEHRAN, IRAN (AP) The execution of another official of the Revolutionary Guard, who was accused of treason, was announced by the government. The official, identified as a member of the Guard's intelligence service, was arrested last year for allegedly planning to overthrow the government. He was executed on Aug. 11.

Broun Pondering Presidency

WASHINGTON (AP) Edith Green, the Democratic leader of the Senate, has announced that she will not seek re-election next year. Green, who has served in the Senate for 38 years, has been a powerful advocate for women's rights and civil rights. The decision has sparked speculation about her possible run for the presidency in 2016.

Heavy Fighting in Vietnam

SAIGON, VIETNAM (AP) The fighting in Vietnam continues to escalate, with both sides reporting significant losses. The South Vietnamese military has launched a major offensive against the North Vietnamese, while the North Vietnamese have launched a major offensive against the South Vietnamese. The conflict has been ongoing for several weeks and shows no signs of abating.

Free Time Fun

A number of events are being held for the next few weeks in the Albany area. Performances begin this week at the State Theatre, with tickets available online. The State Theatre is located at 135 S. Broadway in Albany, and the box office can be reached at (518) 465-3335.

Joint Effort

The Albany Student Press (ASP) has formed a new student group called "New York" to focus on local news and events. The group will be led by student editors and will produce a weekly newsletter and online content. The group's first issue will be released in mid-October.

Rocks Bus, Will Travel

The city of Albany is considering the purchase of a new bus for the Albany Area Community Transit (ACT) system. The new bus would replace an old bus that has been in service for several years. The purchase would be funded through a state grant.

Undergrads Voice Heard

If you're an undergrad who's looking to get involved on campus, there are plenty of opportunities to make your voice heard. The Student Senate is currently accepting applications for new members, and there are also several student-led clubs and organizations that welcome new members.

Refer Crisis Center Always There For Troubled Souls

by John B. Robinson

The best we've heard! That's how Harold Roberts, chairman of the board of the Refer Crisis Center, describes the organization's role during the recent earthquake in the Pacific Northwest. The Refer Crisis Center is located in downtown Albany, and its mission is to provide support and assistance to those affected by natural disasters.

Neighborhood Power On The Rise

by Wendy Greenfeld

A recent report has found that neighborhood associations are becoming more powerful in the Albany area. According to the report, neighborhood associations are increasingly taking on the role of advocates for their communities, and are gaining influence in local government decisions.

Collection Claimants Find Claiming Is Hard

by Wendy Greenfeld

A recent survey of Collection Claimants found that many of them are struggling to claim their rights. The report highlights the challenges that Collection Claimants face, and offers recommendations for improving the claiming process.

The Isuueless Age

By Robert Hale

The setting is a campus/community center on a typical spring day. The weather is sunny and warm, and the atmosphere is bustling with activity. Students are studying, talking, and playing games. It's a busy day, but the issues being discussed are not the usual topics of conversation.

The Isuueless Age is a community forum where people from all walks of life come together to discuss important issues. The forum is open to anyone who wants to participate, and it provides a platform for people to share their thoughts and ideas.

To the Editor:

I am writing to express my concerns about the proposed tuition increase at SUNY. The increase, which is slated to take effect on Wednesday, has sparked a great deal of debate among students, faculty, and staff.

While I understand the need for the increase, I believe that the decision-making process has been flawed. First, there were rarely conflicting values involved. Second, the trustees were not fully informed about the decision to raise tuition. And third, the process has been rushed.

I urge the trustees to consider the concerns of the students and faculty before finalizing their decision. I believe that the university can find a way to funded higher education without passing on the cost to students.

Sincerely,

The Camp, the Council and Thou

By Linda Wilt

Why was Student Association money on the line? Why was the council challenged? What was the outcome? And why does it matter?

The proposed budget was released recently, and the Student Association (SA) council is one of the groups that have been affected. The council is responsible for the allocation of funds, and it has been arguing with the administration over the budget.

The SA council has been trying to make changes to the budget, but the administration has been resistant. The council has been trying to get support from the student body, but it has been met with resistance from the administration.

The council has been working with the administration to try to get additional funding from the Legislature. But the administration has been resistant, and it has been trying to keep the budget as it is.

The council is hoping that the students will support their proposals, and it has been working with the administration to try to get additional funding from the Legislature. But the administration has been resistant, and it has been trying to keep the budget as it is.

In conclusion, the proposed budget is a reflection of the priorities of the student body. The council is trying to work with the administration to try to get additional funding from the Legislature. But the administration has been resistant, and it has been trying to keep the budget as it is.

Sincerely,

State's Boost Women Swimmers
by Paul J. Gnatz

Although they were only able to qualify two swimmers to the AIAW Swimming and Diving Championships in February, Coach Don Pendleton feels that Albany State's women swimmers proved themselves this season.

"It's the talent that exists at this school," Pendleton said. "That's the credit that Oriswold and Missy Rossi deserve."

Rossi swam only .4 seconds slower in the 50-meter backstroke to finish second to Oriswold as well as the 100-meter freestyle to miss making the finals. Rossi also qualified for semifinals in the butterfly in 101.2.

But then 1 thought of all the good coaching we have had here. It's the reason why we are successful," Pendleton said.

Coach Oriswold as well as her former coach really aided Oriswold and Missy Rossi who were scooped up. And Bossy remained until the position of:

"Two things worked in our favor," Pendleton said. "‘Nothing’s in our way’ and ‘we’re in the infancy’ of our careers."

Although they were only able to qualify two swimmers to the AIAW Swimming and Diving Championships in February, Coach Don Pendleton feels that Albany State's women swimmers proved themselves this season.

Although Pendleton is not sure how long his team will be able to perform at this high level, he is happy with what his team has accomplished so far this season.

"I don't want to sound rash, or say that we are out of town, but our goal is to win," Pendleton said. "We are definitely a threat to the other schools in the AIAW, and we are doing a lot of things well."

As Expected, Danes Beat Oswego

By Paul Schwartz

With 4:35 remaining in the game, the Danes were in the lead, 71-60, and the crowd inside the Dunn Center had reason to be happy. Danes coach Dick Sauers had just announced that he had won the Eastern Regional. The Danes would be going to the NCAA Southern Regional, where they would face Savannah State College.

The Danes' win over Oswego, 71-60, was a reflection of their strong performance throughout the season. The Danes had compiled a 10-4 record in the ECAC, and their victory over Oswego was their third in the last four games.

The Danes' win over Oswego was a testament to their team effort. The Danes were led by a trio of players: Buddy Wleklinski, Barry Cavanaugh, and Austin. Wleklinski was the leading scorer with 23 points, Cavanaugh had 19 points, and Austin contributed 18 points.

The Danes' victory over Oswego was a turning point in the season. The Danes had struggled in the beginning of the season, but they had improved as the season progressed. The Danes' victory over Oswego was a reflection of their hard work and dedication.

The Danes' victory over Oswego was a testament to their coach. Sauers had been with the Danes for four years, and he had led the team to the NCAA Southern Regional. Sauers had been successful in his coaching career, and he had led the Danes to two NCAA tournament appearances.

The Danes' victory over Oswego was a reflection of their team spirit. The Danes had been a tight-knit team throughout the season, and they had worked together to achieve their goals. The Danes' victory over Oswego was a reflection of their team spirit.

The Danes' victory over Oswego was a reflection of their determination. The Danes had been determined to win the Eastern Regional, and they had achieved their goal. The Danes' victory over Oswego was a reflection of their determination.

Danes Passed Over In East; Picked For Southern Bid

Albany Coach Dick Sauers

"I'm just happy to be in the tournament, but I can't see ourselves picked fifth in our region behind Pratt."

Albany was the eastern secondary region's five seed, with Pratt and Plattsburgh chosen as conference champions and regional representatives.

The Danes had a 15-9 record in the ECAC and finished fifth in the league.

Albany Reaction

Tuesday, February 27, 1979

The Danes' fate was quite literally determined by a New York State school fairless my word. In the last two weeks, Albany has had a couple of close calls, including a 70-68 upset win over Stony Brook.

Albany coach Dick Sauers shows some signs of stress during a timeout in the Danes' win over Oswego Saturday. Sauers, referring to the school that was coated over when they were picked fifth, said, "I'm just happy to be in the tournament, but I can't see ourselves picked fifth in our region behind Pratt."

Albany's regional bracket got off to a lackluster 15-9 start, but Pratt had improved to 16-8 with a win over Stony Brook.

The main casualty resulting from the Danes' inclusion was their spot in the NCAA tourney. Albany coach Dick Sauers said, "I'm just happy to be in the tournament, but I can't see ourselves picked fifth in our region behind Pratt."
