Danes rout Brockport, 28-0 for first win of year

By Marc Schwarz

The Albany State rush game was firing on all cylinders, and the Danes defense stymied the Brockport attack throughout.

"Our offense was very good today," said Head Coach Keith Miller. "We scored on our first two possessions, and that was a sign of things to come."

The Danes started the game with a bang, driving 61 yards in 13 plays and scoring on a 1-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Bill Miller to tight end John Kakalec. The extra point was good, and the Danes led 7-0.

On their second possession, the Danes went 77 yards in 10 plays, with a 2-yard touchdown run by fullback Bob Ford. The Danes led 14-0.

The Danes defense held Brockport to 177 yards of total offense, while the Danes offense racked up 414 yards.

"Our defense was excellent today," said Miller. "We held them to 177 yards, and we scored 28 points. It's a great feeling."

Infirmary cutbacks slow down health services

By Tom Silverman

Albany students in need of medical attention have been suffering as a result of the Albany Infirmary's cutbacks in staff and supplies. According to the infirmary's director, Dr. Mary Hood, the infirmary has lost several doctors over the past year, including a family doctor who was unable to continue in his practice. Hood has also had to reduce the number of nurses available to patients, which has led to longer waiting times for doctors and nurses.

The infirmary, which has been in operation since 1825, is part of SUNY and charges students a health fee. Students can get medical attention for free at the infirmary for the services they paid for through the health fee. However, Hood explained that the infirmary was now in a bad spot. "Doctors feel that the trial had been biased and unfair," Hood explained. "I feel they have no staff to run it," she said.

One of the most serious consequences of the infirmary's cutbacks has been the lack of doctors. According to Hood, efforts are being made to alleviate some of the problems facing the infirmary. A committee has been formed to fight the infirmary's cutbacks and the effects of cutbacks affecting all parts of the Albany SUNYA system, and an early retirement program is being offered. According to Hood, in 1967 when the infirmary first opened, the infirmary had a staff of four doctors, two nurses, and one receptionist. However, Hood maintained that the cutbacks were not caused by a lack of funds. "I'm not sure the infirmary is not receptive to the idea," she explained. "I'm not sure the infirmary is not receptive to the idea."

Committee sees the railroading of a black man

The Committee also cited further irregularities in the trial with the jury's final decision. "Jury selection is an important part of the trial process," Hood explained. "The infirmary was in the process of selecting new jury members for a juvenile trial at which Andrews was called to testify as a witness. Andrews was not available for comment."

The Committee was formed because of growing concern over the possibility of a Justice's error, and the case was key; the trial was the first to be held under the new rules of the trial. An asserted witness, who was supposed to be a witness, was also a witness at the trial. The infirmary had a panel of trial attorneys to call in and prescribe medicine for the patient.

The Committee has also noted that the infirmary has lost several clerical positions through early retirement programs and attrition. According to Hood, efforts are being made to alleviate some of the problems facing the infirmary. Nuclear freeze campaign plans walk in Albany

By Jon Willmoll

Capital Park, Albany will be the site of one of 250 sites in the first national demonstration for universal nuclear disarmament to take place Oct. 6.

The demonstration, called "Freeze the War," is the result of the efforts of the Albany Freeze Movement, a new group formed in late summer to protest the arms race.

"The purpose of the walks is to demonstrate, in a visual and physical form, the giant cost and human suffering that the arms race and the nuclear test ban campaign have caused," said Ellen Tilton, coordinator of the Freeze Movement.

"The purpose of the freezefroms is to demonstrate, in a visual and physical form, the giant cost and human suffering that the arms race and the nuclear test ban campaign have caused," said Ellen Tilton, coordinator of the Freeze Movement.

Thirteen marches are scheduled for New York state, seven for the Upstate region, and two for Albany.

The 12 freeze marches taking place in the Capital District are the result of a coordinated plan by the Freeze Movement to bring the national effort to local communities.

The walks will take place at 9:30 a.m. on Oct. 6, the day of the national freeze demonstration.

The walks will be followed by a rally at noon in the park.

The Freeze Movement plans to have one to three walking groups in the Capital District, totaling about 200 people.

The walks will begin at Capital Park and proceed to the Empire State Plaza, the site of the rally.

The rally will feature speeches by Mayor Frank C. Pataki of Delmar, Clifton Park, Saratoga Springs, and many other notable speakers.

After the rally, the walkers will begin their march to the Empire State Plaza, where they will be joined by other groups and members of the public.

The rally will include a variety of speakers, including Mayor Pataki, who will speak about the importance of the freeze movement and the need for continued action.

The rally will conclude with a march to the Empire State Plaza, where the walkers will be joined by other groups and members of the public.

The rally will be followed by a series of events, including a performance by the Saratoga Peace Alliance, several speeches by local and national leaders, and a march to the Empire State Plaza, where the walkers will be joined by other groups and members of the public.

A continuing awareness for all

The people have been very sad and anxious about the situation in Korea. Clearly, this is a matter of great concern. The United Nations Security Council has condemned the actions of the North Korean government and has imposed sanctions. The United States has increased its military presence in the region. The International Community is divided on how to respond to this situation.

The threat of war between the United States and North Korea has escalated in recent weeks. The United States has threatened to use military force if necessary to defend its allies in the region. North Korea has responded with rhetoric and saber-rattling. The situation is tense and could potentially lead to a conflict.

There are a number of things that can be done to address this situation. First, the United Nations should continue to play a role in mediating the conflict. Second, the United States and North Korea should engage in direct negotiations to resolve the underlying issues. Third, the international community should provide humanitarian assistance to those affected by the conflict.

The situation in Korea is complex and requires a multifaceted approach. The United Nations and the international community should work together to ensure a peaceful resolution.

A historical reminder

At the end of the 19th century, the United States began to assert its influence on the global stage. In the late 19th century, the United States began to expand its sphere of influence. The United States sought to dominate the African continent, the Far East, and South America. In the process, nations clashed, tensions mounted, and foreign policies of domination threatened to take a toll on the world.

The 19th century was a time of rapid technological change and industrialization. The United States emerged as a major industrial power, and its economic strength grew. In the process, the United States sought to dominate other nations, and conflict arose.

The threat of war between the United States and the Soviet Union has increased in recent years. The United States and the Soviet Union are engaged in a arms race, and the world is on high alert. The United States and the Soviet Union are both major nuclear powers, and a conflict between them could have catastrophic consequences.

The United States and the Soviet Union should work to reduce tensions and avoid a conflict. The United States and the Soviet Union should engage in direct negotiations to resolve the underlying issues. The United Nations should continue to play a role in mediating the conflict.

The situation in the world today is complex and requires a multifaceted approach. The United States and the Soviet Union should work together to ensure a peaceful resolution.

George McGovern In The 80's

George McGovern was a Democratic senator from South Dakota and a former governor of South Dakota. He was a prominent figure in American politics in the 1960s and 1970s. McGovern ran for the Democratic nomination for president in 1972, but was not successful. He later served as the United States ambassador to the United Nations from 1977 to 1981.

McGovern was involved in a number of important political issues. He was a strong supporter of civil rights and was an advocate for the poor and disadvantaged. He was also a strong supporter of the environment and was a leader in the environmental movement.

McGovern was a man of integrity and dedication to public service. He was a man who knew how to get things done, and he was respected by his colleagues in Congress and around the world.

McGovern passed away in 2012, but his legacy lives on. He was a man who believed in the power of the people, and he worked to make the world a better place.

George McGovern and The Awakened Human Consciousness

by Brian Jacobs

Very frankly, any Senator who talks about sending American forces into Cambodia ought to lead the charge himself. I'm fed up with old men dreaming up wars for young men to die in—particularly stupid wars of this kind that add nothing to our security.

—George McGovern, 1970

With these words, Senator George McGovern launched a campaign for peace that the American people in that election were ready to hear. He led a movement that found a resonance in the American people's desire to see our government stop what they saw as a mistake.

George McGovern, as you might expect, has been a part of American foreign policy for the last 40 years. He served as a member of the U.S. Senate for 18 years, where he was known for his strong opposition to the Vietnam War.

McGovern is a man of issues. So as we move on to the second step in SALT II—loss of the Democratic nomination—George McGovern is a case where it's not so clear what his true goals are. Whenever I hear political rhetoric, I ask myself, "Is what is being said the purpose of the talk or is it something else? Is it just a way to hide the real purpose of the talk?"

Women harriers forming winning attitude

Harley, a runner who should be better well trained four weeks from now, plans to make a second career as a track coach. "I think I can work for the women's team," she said.

The first full-time track coach in the history of the College of St. Rose, Harley plans to lead a rebuilding effort that would eventually lead to a women's track program.

Harley, who was a three-year letterman on the women's tennis team, said she was surprised to be offered the coaching job. "I didn't expect it," she said.

Harley plans to begin with the basics, such as proper running form and conditioning techniques. "I want to make sure the girls are in shape," she said.

Harley also plans to introduce the women to some of the more advanced techniques used by top-level college runners. "I want to take them to the next level," she said.

Harley, who has been a track and field coach at the high school level, said she is looking forward to the challenge of building a women's track program from the ground up.

Women's soccer team wins

By Mark Wigfall

The Danes were led by last year's all-stake performer Jennifer Russo, who had four assists yesterday. "Jeff has been playing just super for us," coach Amy Kidder said. "It's one of his most solid performances so far."

Jennifer James scores goal in the women's soccer game Oct. 24, 1983 win over Siena College on Wednesday. The booters are now 4-2.

The road behind them wasn't an easy one. "It's always tough to get going," coach Jerry Picozzi said. "But we had a good game in each half."

The road ahead for the team is not an easy one. "We have a lot of depth and the right answers. With each win, the team moves closer to the top," coach Amy Kidder said. "We have to play them game by game, win by win."
