Senate Discusses Myskian Letter On College Traditions

By Mary J. Wilkins

Wednesday evening the Student Senate met in the Senate Chamber to discuss the letter that had been written to the Student Senate President by Mr. James M. Myskian, a former student of the College. The letter was concerned with the traditions of the College, and the Senate was asked to consider what steps should be taken to preserve them.

Several students who had been present at the meeting gave their opinions on the matter. One student felt that the traditions were not as important as they once were, and that they should be allowed to fade away. Another student felt that the traditions were a vital part of the College's history, and that they should be preserved.

The Senate agreed that the traditions should be preserved, and that steps should be taken to ensure their continued existence. The President was asked to write a letter in response to Mr. Myskian's, expressing the Senate's commitment to preserving the traditions.

The Bait

The trap has been set. The bait thrown out. But the clever trap with its enticing lure has not had a nibble nor even a sniff. We have been waiting, watching and wondering, but our inquisitive boundaries have been frustrated by the silence that has reigned. We will wait, and find the nibble.

That a seven-hundred-acre college campus sixty-five miles from Albany was purchased two years ago we know. We realize that anything resembling a game of cat and mouse will be played. However, the only thing we are certain of at this point in the game is that a boat has been stolen.

The strategy of Camp Board is self evident. We, however, doubt the wisdom of the “ignorance breeds interest” policy that is being followed now. Exclusiveness and interest must be interfered with by an awareness. An awareness which we feel is lacking within the student body as a whole. With only about 30 student members of Camp Board Class of 1961 has not been subjected to any type of leadership, and they know nothing about it. How then can we expect them to look to their initiative in dealing with something that does not exist? The foolishness of such a policy is self evident.

Perhaps Camp Board would throw out the word “little bit further, they would find for themselves some interesting nibbles.

GOOD CAMP

With Bandy this past Camp the general consensus of opinion was that the boys, the boys, the boys....
We were obviously on the right track when we thought of the importance of a strong, efficient, and well-rowed Camp Board. The choice of a president who can lead and inspire his team is vital. The president must have the respect and confidence of the members and must be able to work well with others. The president must be a leader who can think and act quickly, and who can make decisions in a timely manner.

At this point in the game, we should recognize that the CSPA has been a success. The CSPA has been a success because it has met its objectives. The CSPA has been a success because it has fulfilled its mission.

do not have the power to say if this is wrong or right, but we must continue to work at it. We must continue to strive for excellence. We must continue to believe in the power of ideals.

desire to be a leader in the world of ideas. We are not content to simply be followers. We are determined to be leaders. We are determined to be the best. We are determined to be the leaders of the future.
