NEWS BRIEFS

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — South Africa is hoping to make a decision on whether or not to ratify the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women in the near future. The convention, which was adopted by the General Assembly in 1979, is designed to protect women from discrimination and to promote their rights.

In a statement to the Security Council, South Africa's representative said that the country supports the convention but that it needs more time to consider its implications for the country. The representative added that South Africa is committed to dealing with the issue of discrimination against women in the country.

The convention, which has been signed by 185 countries, is designed to promote the rights of women and to ensure that they have equal opportunities in all aspects of life. It is hoped that ratification of the convention will help to reduce discrimination against women in South Africa.

The Security Council voted 10 to 3 Wednesday in favor of throwing South Africa's future in the 29-year history of the world organization and the first triple-vein. The Security Council president lor October, Michel Njineol Cameroon, said Smith there was hope for change.

Itui Scali said expulsion was an "all or nothing policy" that would nuke no change. He added that South Africa could be expelled without a recommendation from the Security Council. On Sept. 10, the assembly voted 125 to I ul asking the Security Council to take up South Africa's future in the world organization.

The Security Council's recommendation to the General Assembly on South Africa's future in the world organization is expected to be considered by the General Assembly on Monday. The General Assembly is expected to make a decision on whether or not to accept the Security Council's recommendation.

It is hoped that the General Assembly will make a decision that will be acceptable to all parties and that will ensure that South Africa is treated fairly.

Students Start Food Co-op

by Kelly Johnson

The SUNY Albany Student Co-op, a student organization dedicated to providing a source of affordable, healthy, and local food options to students, has announced the opening of its first store. The store will open on November 1st.

The co-op, which is run by students and volunteers, aims to offer a wide range of fresh, organic, and locally sourced food items at a competitive price. The co-op will also offer a subscription service for members, allowing them to pre-order items and have them delivered to their dorms or off-campus homes.

The opening of the co-op follows several months of planning and preparation by the student group. The co-op has received support from several departments within SUNY Albany, including the Office of Student Activities and the Office of sustainability.

The co-op is located in a building adjacent to the Student Union, and will be open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily. The co-op will be staffed by volunteers and will also offer a "farmstand" style of shopping, allowing customers to choose their own food items.

For more information, please visit the co-op's website at https://www.sunyalbanyco-op.com.
Council Votes to Refund $50 from Garcia Tickets

By Dave Higgin

Students who allegedly damaged police cars have been recommended for a refund of $50 from their student association fees.

The recommendation, made by the Student Senate at its meeting last week, is based on a report by University Police. The police department had recommended the refund to the Student Senate, which voted unanimously to approve it.

The report states that the students in question were members of a fraternity and that they were involved in an incident where police cars were damaged.

The students acknowledged their responsibility for the damage and agreed to pay for the repairs, according to the report.

The refund will be processed by the University's Financial Office, and the students will be notified of the outcome.

Credit Hours Chopped to 19

The University has reduced the credit hours required for graduation from 19 to 17.

This change was made in response to the recommendations of the Council on Higher Education, which noted that the current credit hour requirement was too high.

The new requirement will take effect for students entering the University in the fall of 1974.

Superpower-ed Peace

Nixon correctly put it, "tip the balance in Israel's favor." They cannot afford to be in the "nasty war" until all of Israel is "adorned" to the Palestinians.

The United States has a number of devices at its disposal to create such a policy. One policy is one-handled, which now and then Church of England representatives, will be at hand until the Arab world's interest will work out a solution, and has prepared itself without question on the side of diplomacy. Unfortunately, the correlation is not perfect.

The $25 billion Arab black sun should not be ignored considering that the Middle East will not achieve peace through its own means, and it is now up to the superpowers to keep the peace.

Trick or Treat

The bags were a little emptier last night, the suitcases a little darker. Children from all walks of life, young, old, rich and poor, have been parading through the streets of all American cities, dressed in costumes of their choice, hoping to get as much candy as they could.

Halloween is a phenomenon that has no idea of how Halloween originated. It is believed that the ancient Celts of Britain and Ireland celebrated the night of the Samhain, a language that means "the turn of the year." Whatever the reason, Halloween is still as popular today as it was centuries ago.

But what do children know of saints? Instead, why should they care about saints and the Pope? For them, it is always Halloween. Halloween is fun times for children to have a great time. Only speaking on the topic of a great time, many people's mouths do not turn as much. But how we will explore later tonight's trick or treat.

The days were a little misty this year.
New Movies Provide Thrills
The Taking of Pelham 1 2 3

by Erik Lindauer

The Gambler

Four men, plus Blue (Robert Shaw), Green (Martin Balsam), Grey (George Segal) and Brown (Hatt Huddleston), take control of a Pelham Number 6 subway train at 4 p.m. They seal the door at the front of the train by means of electrically operated latches. The passengers are taken hostage.

In order to maximize the fame of the film, the thief is taken to the end of the train by the gangster in a suit.

The idea of hijacking a subway train and holding the passengers hostage is one of the origins of this type of motion picture. It is therefore, a natural extension of the techniques used in the transportation of the gangsters.

In this particular setting, the race is against time and the clock, with police officials making a desperate attempt to outguess the "flawless" plans of the hijackers.

Without a doubt, this is Caan's best acting to date. He is very believable in the role of the gambler, and his performance is supported by the excellent performances of his co-stars.

Although containing many humorous elements, the humor and drama substantially reproduce the comic irony of real life. The ability of director Joseph Sargent to combine the two elements without confusion is both surprising and a tribute to his skills.

TheHandling of Pelham's humor and drama is exceptional. The film is a perfect example of what can be achieved when a director understands the importance of simplicity and realism in filmmaking.

The Gambler has made his debut in the role of a gambler, and he is as convincing and believable as the spoiled, fatherless son. His talent is evident in his performance, which is both realistic and believable.

The ending of the film is ironic. The gambler is left stranded on the tracks, presumably with no money to pay the ransom. His survival is a testament to his determination and his ability to overcome difficulties.

No Mercy for me

by James Decker

It was dark, stormy. The wind was howling, and the rain was pelting against the window. I could hear the sound of thunder in the distance. It was a stormy night, and I was alone in my room, trying to study. But the wind and rain were too loud, and I couldn't concentrate. I decided to go for a walk to clear my head.

I walked down the street, feeling the cold rain against my skin. The street was empty, except for me. I passed by a small shop, and I noticed a young man standing outside, shivering in the cold. He looked up at me, and I could see the fear in his eyes.

I approached him, and he backed away. I could see that he was scared. I asked him what was wrong, and he told me that he was feeling down about something. I listened to him, and I could see that he was struggling.

I decided to help him, and I invited him to come inside with me. I offered him a warm drink, and we sat down and talked. I could see that he was relieved to have someone to talk to, and I could see that he was feeling better.

I left him with a smile on my face, feeling better myself. I knew that I had made a difference in his life, and I was glad that I had been able to help him. I walked back home, feeling happy and content.

That night, I knew that I had made a difference in the life of a young man. I knew that I had helped him, and I was grateful for the opportunity to do so.

Dutchmen Dump Danes 5-3

NCAA Bid in Jeopardy

by Ted Hileman

The ball swished through the net again. This time, however, it was the Dutchmen's ball. Union had dropped its third straight game, this one to the Danes of Albany. The score was 5-3, and the Dutchmen's bid for an NCAA berth had taken a hit.

In fact, it was a hit that could knock the Dutchmen out of the running altogether. With a 7-6-1 record, Union is one of a group of teams vying for the last few NCAA berths. A loss to Albany, which moved to 9-2-1, might be all the Dutchmen need to lose their bid.

The game started inauspiciously for Union, as Albany scored 42 seconds into the game. Union's goalie, Henry Obwald, was caught off his line, and Albany's Richard Rose scored on a breakaway.

Union's defense was on the ropes early, and Albany's attacking corps took advantage. Albany's second goal came just 11 minutes later, on a penalty shot. Union's defense was out of position, and Albany's Brian Schiefelien scored on a shot from the left side.

Union's goalie, Obwald, was up to the challenge, however, and made several big saves in the first half to keep the game close. In the second half, Union's offense finally came alive, and the Dutchmen scored two goals to tie the game at 2-2.

Union's third goal came on a penalty shot, and was scored by Mark Schiappacasse. The Dutchmen were awarded the penalty shot after Albany's goalie, Henry Obwald, was caught off his line.

Union's fourth goal came on a breakaway, and was scored by Mike Schiappacasse. The Dutchmen were awarded the breakaway after Albany's goalie, Henry Obwald, was caught off his line.

Union's fifth goal came on a penalty shot, and was scored by Mark Schiappacasse. The Dutchmen were awarded the penalty shot after Albany's goalie, Henry Obwald, was caught off his line.

The Dutchmen's bid for an NCAA berth is now in jeopardy. A loss to Albany might be all they need to lose their shot at the NCAA tournament. Union will have to find a way to get back into the NCAA race, and hope for a miracle.

The Dutchmen's next game is against the RPI Engineers. Union will need to win that game, and hope for a miracle in their final game against the Yale Bulldogs. Union will have to win both games to have a chance at the NCAA tournament.
