Albany grapplers overpower Division I rivals

When the state's third-ranked Albany State beat Wagner College, 15-0, two weeks ago, the Blue and Gold were considered one of the top two teams in the nation. Now, they are considered one of the top three teams in the nation.

"It's a huge win," said head coach Randy "Bub" Prosser. "The Blue and Gold are considered one of the top two teams in the nation."

PREVIEW OF EVENTS

"The spirit that you (Fuerza Latina) show is one for all," said Rose Ramos, the treasurer of SUNYA. "It is a great sacrifice, and this sacrifice is very important." Ramos explained that it was in the midst of the Vietnam War and in the wake of social movements, such as the civil rights movement, that activism and idealism reached high levels, but for different reasons than today. At the press conference, University President Vincent Fuerza Latina, speaking through an interpreter, stressed, "The need for students to be able to write in English and Spanish is a necessity for today's world."

O'Leary addresses keg ban, safety on WCDB

By Sari Selken

Students took the opportunity presented by WCDB in PM off the past Thursday to question University President Vincent O'Leary on an issue of diverse in the new long range student safety policy.

The program, during which O'Leary fielded twenty-four questions, was a special edition of WCDB's "On the Air" program. The first hearing of the program was done through promoting and advertising administrative staff, and the questions were taken by the WCDB News Director Mark Chanukah fair sells CC Lobby

By Hilary Flint

The fair lasts through this year's Chanukah the Jewish Student Coalition (JSC) brought food, gifts, and a festive atmosphere to the Campus Center lobby.

According to Rabbi Jay Killman, JSC's advisor, there were three purposes behind the objeetives of the Chanukah fair. "One is to promote awareness of Chanukah to the campus community. The second is to promote Jewish awareness, and the third is to diversify present Jewish expressions through the various Jewish issues that were being sold."

Chanukah is the celebration of the Jewish people's second triumph from the Greeks. A candelabrum, or Hanukiah, is displayed. Chanukah begins on the 25th of Chanukah. The first step is to light the candle and then light the second, and so forth. This is continued for eight days. "This (fair) gives people an incentive to experience the holiday," said O'Leary.

Chanukah is the celebration of the Jew retaking the second temple from the Greeks. An oil lamp, or menorah, was discover in the temple; the lamp had six branches. "An example of humaneness. We should be less prejudiced against those who believe or do not believe," he said.

Campus republicans split over prof monitoring

By Nora Wasefizak

A proposed merger of two campus Republican groups has been rejected by the SUNYA College Republicans in part because of a conflict over a proposal to monitor professors for "leftist" views.

Author, English TA, doctoral candidate Henderson spreads 'vespertine' gospel

By Ken Dombrowski

Even before his TA duties for English 201, SUNYA student Jennifer Henderson, a graduate student in English, was known to the English faculty and administration. The English Teacher, President of the Graduate Student Association and former Resident Manager of the Student Annex, Henderson is a true student leader.

On Friday, December 6th, Henderson will give his first lecture as a full professor of English. His lecture, titled "The Vespertine," will be held in the Student Union at 2 p.m. The lecture will be followed by a reception in the lobby of the Student Union.

Henderson's lecture will focus on the concept of "vespertine," a term he coined to describe the late afternoon and early evening hours. He will discuss the cultural and historical significance of this time of day, and will explore how its meaning has evolved over time.

Henderson is a well-known figure on campus, having served as Resident Manager of the Student Annex for five years. He has also served as President of the Graduate Student Association, and is currently working on his doctoral dissertation in English.

In addition to his academic pursuits, Henderson is an accomplished athlete, having run several marathons and half-marathons. He is also a member of the SUNYA Track and Field team.

Henderson's lecture is part of the SUNYA English Department's Lecture Series, which brings in renowned scholars and writers to speak on a variety of topics. The series is open to all SUNYA students and faculty, and is held in the Student Union every Friday afternoon at 2 p.m.

For more information, please contact Jennifer Henderson at (518) 463-6691 or by email at jenhenderson@suny.edu.
Let's march for affirmative action, not alcohol

It was the front page story of the November 28, 1984 issue of the Albany Student Press. It made a tremendous impact on the campus, and inspired the over 3,000 members of the SUNY Albany Women's Caucus who signed a letter to the editor denouncing the action. The letter prompted a series of events that led to the founding of many other campus and community groups, and eventually to the creation of the SUNY Albany Women's Studies Program.

Beyond the Majority

By E. Paul Stewart

Affirmative Action was designed to be about equality and parity apparently historically neglected and unacknowledged. The program was intended to assist affirmative action programs, allowing students to show how their programs are doing the job they are supposed to do.

Here is a look at some of the actions taken by the Reagan Administration: April 1983 — To that end the Justice Department, the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare have been established.

"I have failed to get any cover since the reappearance of Kwanza, perhaps. However, it is not necessary that we have an affirmative action plan," he added.

Study space

"It is important to consider, in addition, in what degree the study space is affected by the affirmative action plan." he said. "The study space is affected by the affirmative action plan to ensure that they are not affected by the affirmative action plan." he added. Because it was not affected by the affirmative action plan, the study space was not affected.

Still funding apartheid

When SUNY went to direct its funds from companies doing business on its campuses, a big storm was raised for SUNY and its students. But the battle is far from over. Students' groups are growing across SUNY from another source — University Auxiliary Services.

Recently, University Auxiliary Services (UAS) was granted a $350,000 budget by the University Senate. The Senate has allocated this funding to University Auxiliary Services (UAS) to support the funding of two programs: Student Health Services and Student Legal Services.

These programs are essential to the well-being of students at SUNY. Student Health Services provides a comprehensive range of health-related services, including mental health counseling. Student Legal Services provides legal advice and representation to students who cannot afford to hire a lawyer. These programs are critical to ensuring that students have access to the resources they need to succeed academically and personally.

However, it is important to recognize that this funding comes with restrictions. The University Senate has mandated that UAS must meet certain financial goals in order to receive this funding. These goals include achieving a certain level of profitability and ensuring that the services provided are of high quality.

Despite these challenges, UAS is committed to continuing to provide these essential services to students. We believe that investing in the health and well-being of our students is a priority and that this funding is a step in the right direction. We look forward to seeing the continued growth and success of these programs at SUNY.

Save the cheese

To the Editor:

I'm a bit of a cheese connoisseur, and I was so excited to read about the proposed change in the SUNY-Derby cheese policy. As a student at SUNY-Derby, I have come to expect a wide variety of cheeses at our cafeteria, including some of the most popular varieties like cheddar, brie, and mozzarella.

It is alarming to hear that SUNY-Derby is considering limiting the variety of cheeses available to students. This move would be a serious setback for the culinary offerings at SUNY-Derby, and it would be a shame to see the rich tradition of cheese selection at our school come to an end.

I urge the administration to reconsider this decision and ensure that SUNY-Derby continues to offer a wide variety of cheeses to its students. We value our cheese options, and I believe it is important to preserve them for future generations.

Sincerely,

P.S. I hope SUNY-Derby doesn't lose its charm by cutting out the cheese.

Quality care

To the Editor:

I recently had the opportunity to visit a local hospital and was struck by the quality of care I received. The staff was knowledgeable and attentive, and I was impressed by the modern facilities and equipment.

However, I was concerned to hear about the recent cuts to the hospital's budget. These cuts may have a negative impact on the quality of care being provided to patients. It is crucial that we support our local hospitals and ensure that they have the resources they need to provide the best possible care.

I urge our local government to take action to address these budget cuts and ensure that our hospitals have the necessary funding to continue providing quality care to our community.

Sincerely,

Student carelessness cited in Ahmed, Waterbury thefts

By Jim Avery

The recent outbreak of criminal incidents involving carelessness is being confronted just prior to the Thanksgiving holiday. Students, generally preoccupied with the holidays, have proven vulnerable to crime.

This semester, this trend seems to have escalated. Those involved in the incidents claim to be surprised, but do not seem shocked that such activity has increased. The most common activities involved in these incidents are thefts of money, property, and personal belongings. The total number of incidents cannot be determined, as the university has not yet published an extensive report.

The most common activity involved in these incidents is theft. A majority of the incidents occurred during the day, but the frequency of thefts has increased. In addition to theft, students have reported other criminal activities such as vandalism and fraud.

Two individuals have been reported in connection with the thefts. The first is a white male, 5 ft 9 inches tall, wearing a dark red shirt and brown pants. He was last seen in the Albert campus, near the student center.

The second suspect is a white female, 5 ft 6 inches tall, wearing a black coat and grey pants. She was last seen in the same area as the first suspect.

Students are encouraged to be aware of their surroundings and take necessary precautions to prevent crime. The university has increased its patrols and is working to improve safety measures on campus.

Campus crimes dropping, says new FBI report

Washington, D.C.

College crime statistics have shown a decline in the number of crimes reported on campuses across the United States. Federal authorities believe this trend is due to increased efforts by universities to prevent and respond to incidents.

The latest FBI report, which tracks crime on college campuses, found a decrease in the number of incidents reported in 2018 compared to the previous year. The report includes data on violent crimes, property crimes, and student thefts.

Debate Team successful despite lack of funds

SUNYA sees rises in non-traditional students

Adult students changing college scene

A national trend towards older college students is being felt at SUNYA, according to data published by the University’s Office of Institutional Research. Most of the older students, however, seem to be taking their studies in a post-retirement context. The large number of non-matriculated students at SUNYA is characterized by self-control or sobriety.

The figures, too, show increased with statistics concerning the non-matriculated students of the same range. Of the total number of non-matriculated students about 45 percent are between the ages of twenty-three and thirty. The large number of non-matriculated students in the 20-29 age group is due to the fact that they have straight from high school and therefore have already completed a specific program, according to Kathy Winchester, counselor to the Continuing Studies Office. Many older students need to accelerate a grade point average before they can enter a particular program.

Winchester also said approximately three to five percent of the non-matriculated students are women between the ages of forty-five, but these figures represent those men and women who entered the university as matriculated students, as opposed to students taking courses not for credit.

A group of educators and government officials who met last week at a two-week conference on the education of the adult learner has projected that 55 percent of these people are those with bachelors degrees who take the new composition of the nation’s student population into account.

“Many people have a stereotype that these are housewives with children.” — Kathy Winchester

“Personal enrichment, job enhancement, and preparation for graduate school would need to be more realistic and pertinent for adults.” — Frank Newman, President of the SUNYA’s Alumni Association

The figures, the data shows, increased over forty-five, but these figures represent those men and women who entered the university as matriculated students, as opposed to students taking courses not for credit.

The large number of non-matriculated students in the 20-29 age group is due to the fact that they have straight from high school and therefore have already completed a specific program, according to Kathy Winchester, counselor to the Continuing Studies Office. Many older students need to accelerate a grade point average before they can enter a particular program.

Winchester also said approximately three to five percent of the non-matriculated students are women between the ages of forty-five, but these figures represent those men and women who entered the university as matriculated students, as opposed to students taking courses not for credit.
To: The University Community

As you know, the State of New York has enacted legislation that makes it a misdemeanor for anyone not a parent or guardian to sell, serve, or give alcoholic beverages to a person under the age of 21. This creates potential personal liability exposure to anyone providing alcoholic beverages to a person under 21 if that person is subsequently injured, injures others, or damages property.

The Statement of Policy Governing Alcohol Use which follows presents University regulations, City of Albany, county, state and federal regulations. It is presented as one method to educate the campus community.

We seek your cooperation and compliance.

Thanks.

The Washington State University basketball team (6-2) is currently riding a two-game winning streak. They face the University of Washington (4-4) on Saturday, January 13, 1985, at the Hec Edmundson Pavilion.

“This is an opportunity for us to show that we can compete with a top team,” said Mark Few, assistant coach. “It’s a chance for us to prove ourselves.”

The game is at 7:00 p.m., and tickets are $5.00 for adults and $4.00 for students. The game will be televised on KOMO Channel 4.

Albany's winning streak continued as they defeated St. John's 80-68 on Saturday, January 13, 1985, at the Dunn Center. The Danes are now 11-6 on the season and 2-5 in the ECAC North.

The Danes were led by junior forward Lori Bayba, who scored 23 points and grabbed 10 rebounds. Senior guard Don Fagan added 19 points, and senior guard John Goggin contributed 16 points.

The game was close for the first half, but the Danes led 38-35 at halftime. In the second half, the Danes pulled away and never looked back.

Albany’s next game is on Tuesday, January 16, 1985, at 7:30 p.m. against the University of Pennsylvania at the Dunn Center.

By Cris Mumma

Albany State started the season with a bang, opening with a 3-0 record to start the season and looking strong against their opponents. The Danes were scheduled to face off against Cartford in a challenging match, but they came away with a victory, setting the tone for their season.

The Danes had been bringing momentum into the game, and they continued to build on it throughout the match. With a strong start, the Danes took control of the game and didn't let their opponents catch up. The Danes made quick work of the first three games, scoring impressive points and dominating the court.

The Danes went into the second half with a 3-0 record, and they continued to put pressure on their opponents. With the momentum on their side, the Danes were able to close out the game with a strong performance.

Danes top Cortland St.

In their SUNYAC conference opener on Wednesday at Cortland, the Danes were victorious against the Cortland Red Dragons, 94-85.

With the win, the Danes improved to 3-0 on the season and maintained their top ranking in the SUNYAC conference.

The Danes started strong, taking an early lead over the Red Dragons. They maintained a consistent lead throughout the game, increasing their margin as the game progressed.

The Danes' defensive strength and team play were key factors in their victory. They held the Red Dragons to just 85 points, while scoring 94 themselves.

The Danes will look to continue their strong play as they prepare for their next match against SUNY Albany. A win against the Great Danes would go a long way in securing a conference title for the Danes.
Aspeculation

Some recent work by E. Kerr and L. Stollard, which has been communicated to us in manuscript, leads us to expect that the observed Uranian rings may be bound to the new and important source of energy in the interior tides. Certain aspects of the situation which has arisen seem to call for watchfulness and, if necessary, quick action on the part of the Administration.

Letter to President Franklin D. Roosevelt, August 2, 1939

This letter resulted in the assignment of funds (negot of the development of the atomic bomb).

I still get confused when I hear people talk about Star Wars. I want to jump up and listen for the context of the conversation. It's Chelsie and Tim Stollard who said it this week. I wasn't sure what they meant, but I'd been thinking about it and I'm glad to know it's the movie.

You do not believe that civilization will be wiped out in a war fought with the atomic bomb. Perhaps two people of the earth may die in the war, but enough books, enough beauty, enough love, enough good people will live long enough for civilization to be restored.

—Albert Einstein

"Einstein on the Atomic Bomb," Atlantic Monthly, November 1958

If it’s not about the movie, don’t join in. I don’t understand the reality. It’s not like a film with Hardenbeek, American-looking good guys and monsters, assorted bad guys. On the screen the good guy destroys the enemy — the Dark Side. On the good guy’s side, Chelsie is happy, and they zip off into space for another adventure.

The unleashed power of the atom has changed everything since our mode of thinking. and we thus drift toward unparalleled catastrophes.

This is a place where I had been before, and I knew what it was like. And Chelsie was happy, and they zip off into space for another adventure.

So, I searched through the Rubins of nuclear war. I was all but choice here, with books, with words and pictures, with words and pictures. Eight, nine, three things, three important. And saw... ah... till Christmas war.

And as happy Christmas I hope you have fun. Another year is over. A new year just began...

Through his travels and their memories, photographer Harry Mattison and writer Claire Matson are exploring the complexities of human existence.

Looking ahead in the nuclear age

A Star Wars reality...

by Tom Gaglione

I am speech to the nation on March 23, 1983, President Reagan called upon the scientific community in our country to "harness the power of the atom for the peace and security of mankind and world peace, to give us the means of destroying these nuclear weapons and obliterating this threat to humanity.

That President announced his Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) was designed to provide a defense system that would be able to detect and intercept incoming ballistic missiles. The SDI was to be a layered defense system that would consist of a space-based laser and a ground-based missile defense system. The space-based laser would detect and destroy incoming missiles in space, while the ground-based missile defense system would intercept missiles in the atmosphere.

The SDI was seen as a way to reduce the threat of nuclear war and to prevent the first strike. The SDI was also seen as a way to gain a strategic advantage over the Soviet Union.

The SDI was plagued by technical difficulties and cost overruns. The program was eventually canceled in 1993. The cancellation of the SDI was seen as a significant setback for the Reagan administration and for the Star Wars program.

A mock proposal?

The idea of space-based missile defense systems had been studied for decades, but it was not until the advent of the SDI that serious consideration was given to the possibility. The SDI was seen as a way to create a defensive shield that could protect the United States from a first strike.

SA foregoes '86 Guiness Day

There probably won't be a SENA by the Guiness Book of World Records next season - the result of SENA's Student Activities' decision to test another more pressing trend among the student population: the trend of drinking.

The group members said that they have been under pressure to find a new drinking age because they realized that the current one was too low. They stated that they have been under pressure to find a new drinking age because they realized that the current one was too low.
