Danes defeat Dragons with second half surge

By Marc Schwarz

The Albany State Great Danes defeated the Westfield State Owls on Wednesday night by a score of 70-53. Albany State is now 19-4 overall and 12-1 in conference play.

The game started off well for both teams, with Albany State holding the lead for most of the first half. The Danes went on a 7-0 run to take a lead of 18 points in the first half, only to have Westfield State come back and cut the deficit to six points at the half.

In the second half, the Danes came out with renewed energy and took control of the game. They scored 42 points in the second half, compared to only 27 points for Westfield State. Albany State's defense held Westfield State to just 16 points in the second half, while their offense went on a 21-4 run to put the game out of reach.

The Danes were led by their senior guard, John Davenport, who scored a game-high 23 points. He was joined in double figures by teammates Mike Washington (18 points) and Steve Ford (12 points).

With the win, the Danes move to 19-4 overall and 12-1 in conference play, putting them in good position for a conference championship. They have now won seven straight games, with six games left on the schedule.

The Danes will next face off against the SUNY New Paltz Hawks on Saturday, looking to complete their season with an undefeated conference record.

Tuition hike is considered by Cuomo; SASU on the lookout

By Tony Silver

As a December 31 team, SUNY Albany is determined to continue its streak of tuition hikes. Governor Mario Cuomo is prepared to propose a tuition increase to the Board of Trustees. The proposal is expected to be leaked, and the SUNY Board of Trustees will need to decide whether to approve or reject it.

However, SUNY Albany President Mark Schaeffer said that he will consider the budget proposal. He promised to consult with the faculty and staff before making a final decision.

Cuomo, who has stated that he will not reduce state funding, is expected to propose a tuition increase of 3%, which would bring the total tuition to $7,500 per semester.

SUNY Albany is one of the many SUNY institutions that rely on tuition revenue to operate. The tuition increase is expected to cover the costs of operations and maintenance, as well as to provide funding for new programs and services.

The tuition hike is expected to be opposed by SUNY Albany students, who are already struggling with the high cost of tuition. They are calling for a decrease in tuition, or for the state to provide more funding to SUNY institutions.

Schaeffer said that he will consider the budget proposal, and that he will consult with the faculty and staff before making a final decision.

Sunya athletic program could be upgraded to Division I

By Mark Schaeffer

A. A. The SUNY Albany athletic program could be upgraded to Division I, according to a new study by the NCAA.

The study found that SUNY Albany is one of the few remaining SUNY institutions that does not have a Division I athletic program. The NCAA has set a deadline of 2019 for all SUNY institutions to upgrade to Division I, or risk losing their state university status.

The SUNY Albany athletic program currently competes in the NCAA Division III, which is considered to be the lowest level of college athletics.

In order to upgrade to Division I, SUNY Albany would need to improve its facilities, its coaching staff, and its student-athlete performance. The NCAA requires that Division I programs have a minimum of 16 sports, with at least 12 men's and women's sports.

SUNY Albany President Mark Schaeffer said that he will consider the NCAA's recommendation, and that he will consult with the faculty and staff before making a final decision.

Egypt and U.S. talk

President Reagan is expected to meet with President Anwar el-Sadat of Egypt on Monday to discuss a possible resumption of peace talks between Israel and Egypt.

Reagan is expected to press Sadat for more concrete actions toward peace, including the withdrawal of Israeli troops from Sinai. Reagan will also express concern over the continued presence of Palestinian guerrillas in Lebanon, which is a source of instability in the region.

Sadat, for his part, is said to be interested in exploring ways to strengthen the relationship between the two countries, although he is likely to be cautious about making any significant concessions that could be perceived as weakening Egypt's position.

Reagan is also expected to discuss with Sadat the situation in the Middle East, including the ongoing conflict in Iraq, and the need for a comprehensive peace plan that addresses the interests of all parties involved.

To support the peace efforts, Reagan is likely to propose a package of economic assistance to Egypt, which would include increased aid and trade concessions. The package is expected to be modest in comparison to the economic support offered to Israel in recent years, but it could be an important step in reinforcing the peace process.

Reagan is also expected to emphasize the importance of democratic principles and human rights in the Middle East, as a way to build a lasting peace that is based on mutual respect and understanding.

The meeting between Reagan and Sadat is scheduled for Monday, and it is expected to be a significant event in the ongoing efforts to achieve a lasting peace in the region.
Gov't center celebrates birthday

By defter Jude

At the Center for Women in Government, Capital District residents gathered last Tuesday for a celebration of the Center's second anniversary.

The event, attended by State Senate Majority Leader Joe Bruno, Mayor D. Andrew Hall, and State Senator Milton Wiegman, was held at the Center's offices on 3rd Ave.

The Center, housed in the Houdini Building, provides career training and resources for women seeking entry-level state jobs.

"The Center is a great resource for women in the Capital District," said Mayor Hall. "It has helped many women advance in their careers, and we're excited to have it here in Troy."

College Republicans linked with Rev. Moon

By Heidi Gralla

Republican Representative Senator Leach of Iowa has charged that the College Republicans have been working closely with the Unification Church in an action he called "an alliance and using each other in a totalitarian world social order." However, he added, because there are no College Republicans at SUNYA, said that he would like to see this passed as a law.

Council members complained the procedure of bi-c-elections was a total waste of time. Corso said he had almost the opposite, advocating the unimpeded spirit and cost three dollars more in another store surveyed. Store manager of Fay's Drugs on Central Avenue asked to leave the store, he said. Adams was assisted by a four person committee. Adams was assisted by the Ripon Society, a nationwide subscription campaign to aid the New Right.Representative James Leach funded in any way by the Moonies." He said that he would like to see this passed as a law.

Reagantalk doubletalk

America from Reagantalk. Reagantalk and America. Reagantalk? What the hell is Reagantalk? Reagantalk is a term used by President Reagan to describe the way he and his administration speak and think. It is characterized by simplicity, consistency, and a focus on the American people. Reagantalk is a way of talking that emphasizes common sense, moral absolutes, and the American character. It is a way of speaking that is meant to rally the American people and to mobilize them to act. Reagantalk is a way of thinking that is meant to guide the American people and to inspire them to do what is right. Reagantalk is a way of being that is meant to embody the American spirit and to make the American people proud. Reagantalk is a way of living that is meant to bring the American people together and to show them that they are not alone.

Word On A Wing

In the times to come as the past there will be generations taking hold as though loneliness and the genius of struggle has always dued in the hearts of people and the question, "What will the story be of the Family of Man across the near or far future?"
Some would reply, "For the answers read if can the strange and baffling eyes of youth."

Marriage: An Institution

Yesterday and Today - Can it survive?

Gray Taylor

The image of marriage is one that grows with each society. In a world that is hungry for love and stability, marriage is a constant reminder of the importance of commitment and loyalty. This constant reminder is especially true in the wake of the recent changes in our society. With the advent of the "Me Generation," the focus has shifted from the family to the individual. This has led to a decrease in the number of marriages and an increase in the number of divorces. This is a trend that is not likely to change anytime soon.

Morgan Gray Taylor

As we move forward into the future, the question of whether marriage will survive continues to be asked. The answer is not likely to be found in the past, but rather in the present. In order to understand the current state of marriage, we must first understand the factors that have contributed to its decline.

The destruction of marriage and the family has been blamed on many things. There are just as many stories that did not end as well. There was the couple who left college to get married and the pressures of money and her unplanned pregnancy. There was the young man and woman who fell in love, but then found that they were not compatible. There was the man who married a woman who was not right for him, and the woman who married a man who was not right for her. There were the people who were not ready for marriage, and the people who were ready, but were not in the right position to get married.

There are no absolutes, but fear should not be part of the anticipation of marriage. It is a time of growth and discovery, not of expectation and disappointment.

As the divorce rate skyrockets, children seem to be the brunt of much of the anger, frustration, and disappointment of the family. Many of these children are living in homes without at least one parent. The trauma and accept the fact that their parents have an epidemic of lawlessness that is rivaled, perhaps, on the news today. What the fuck is going on in here. "Get into your room." He said, "And get the fuck out of this house."

M and my mother weren't too close in the beginning. We would sometimes argue and I could sense my father acting as a peacekeeper. But as I grew older, I felt a closer bond with him. We would share stories about our lives and often laughed together. My father was a skilled storyteller and I loved listening to his tales.

One day, my mother told me that my father had cancer. My world shrank. I didn't understand the severity of the situation, but I could sense my mother's pain. She was struggling to cope with the news and I tried to make her laugh, to keep the mood light. But her tears reminded me of the gravity of the situation.

My father was taken to the hospital in Cleveland for what was supposed to be routine surgery. But the surgery didn't go as planned. My father's breathing became labored, and the doctors said he was in danger. My mother and I watched as the doctors worked to save him. It was a long battle, but my father eventually emerged from the hospital with his life. Although he was weak, he was alive.

In the months that followed, my father's health improved. He was able to return home and slowly begin to recover. My mother and I were overjoyed. We were relieved to see him regain his strength and energy. My father was always a fighter, and we knew he would overcome this setback.

As my father recovered, we noticed a change in him. He was more patient and understanding. He seemed to have a new perspective on life. We were grateful for his improvement and we hoped he could continue to get better.

My father passed away in 1970. It was a difficult time for all of us. My mother was devastated and I was left with a sense of loss. But we knew that my father would want us to keep moving forward, to love each other and to be happy.

As the weeks went by, my mother began to see the changes in my behavior. I was more active and I seemed to be enjoying life more. She attributed this to my father's influence. She knew that my father would want me to be happy and to enjoy myself. And so, she encouraged me to keep moving forward.

Years went by and I grew into adulthood. I had my own experiences and my own challenges. But I always kept my mother's words in mind. She had taught me that life is full of ups and downs, and that I needed to be strong and to keep moving forward.

Portrait Of A Family
Parental Guidance: Optional?

It takes a revolution to make a difference. The many women who have made the choice to organize, to fight, to build, to support each other, have built a new world. Their lives are the foundation for our own. The struggle is far from over, but together we can make it.

A different kind of leadership is needed. A leadership that is not afraid to take risks, to challenge the status quo, to stand up for what is right. We must continue to fight for our rights, for our dignity, for our freedom.

Parents can be seen for what they are: the leaders of society. They have the power to shape the future of their children, to teach them values, to instill in them a sense of responsibility. They have a moral obligation to ensure that their children are treated fairly, to protect them from harm, to make sure they have the opportunity to succeed.

The Right contends that we are not free to think for ourselves, that we are not free to choose our own path. They argue that the family is the basic unit of society, that it is the natural place for the transmission of values. But this is a false dichotomy. The family is not the only place where values are transmitted, nor is it the most important. Society as a whole plays a significant role.

It is of decisive importance to everyone, whatever their age, whatever their social background, to understand and respect the values of the family. This is not to say that the family is perfect, nor that it is the only way to live. But it is a place where people can learn to love, to care, to share.

A Children's Story

I'm Denny, the family is a place where nothing is as it seems. The nurse was wrong. The nurse was wrong. The nurse was wrong. In the psychology of growing up, it was not meant to be. It was not meant to be. It was not meant to be.

Dear Ben,

The offer to myself to write a children's book has been an experience in its own right. It's been a journey of understanding and discovery, a quest to explore the complexities of family dynamics and the often conflicting emotions that define our relationships. In this book, I aim to provide a glimpse into the world of children and the challenges they face, offering insights that both entertain and educate.

Sincerely,

Denny

Gymnasts perfect against Division I competition

By Alan Sweets

The Albany State gymnastics team has won its first three matches this season. Coach Carol Smith believes that her team has the talent and the determination necessary to maintain a successful season.

On December 4, the first match of the season was held here against SUNY-Plattsburgh. "This might have been our best match this season," said Cavanaugh.

"We have the second hall, and that is a link in the beginning of the season. We need points out of him for sure," said Cavanaugh.

Nation mourns passing of Coach Bear Bryant

New York mourns passing of Coach Bear Bryant

With assistant coaches inking 90 minutes last Saturday, the Bears were in the driver's seat of the East division with a record dropping to a relatively shaky place in the SUNYAC East.

Bryant, whose death was reported in the morning edition of the New York Times, had been the driving force behind the success of the Bears football program, which he had built into a national power in the 1960s and '70s.

Bryant, who was 71, died Wednesday night in Tuscaloosa, Ala., of a heart attack.

The University of Alabama said in a statement that Bryant had been hospitalized recently with a heart condition, but the school did not specify the nature of his illness.

Bryant, who won 323 college football matches and led the Bears to six national titles, was a legend in the sport.

He had won four national titles with the Bears, who he led to the Bowl in the mid-1960s.

Bryant's biggest victory came in 1973,
when the Bears defeated Nebraska in the national championship game.

Bryant was the first coach to win four national titles in the modern era of college football.

He had previously won national titles with Alabama in 1969 and 1972.

The Bears were 9-2-2 in 1973 and finished second in the SEC.

Bryant's death came as a shock to Football fans across the country.

At the University of Alabama, where Bryant was head coach for 35 years, there were moment of silence and memorial services were planned.

In Tuscaloosa, fans gathered outside the stadium to mourn the loss of their beloved coach.

Bryant's daughter, Holly Bryant, said she was heartbroken by her father's death.

"It's a sad day for Alabama football and the entire University of Alabama community," she said.

Bryant's death comes just two days after the death of the University of Alabama football team's co-captain, Jordan Byrd.

Byrd, a junior safety, died Sunday in an apparent suicide.

Bryant is survived by his wife, Mary Harmon, and their three children.

He also leaves behind a legacy that will live on for generations to come.

Bryant is perhaps best known for his famous quote, "The Game is a Total War."
Impressive grapplers are now 11-1

By: Marc Schmalz

The Danes have been able to finish 11-1 in the overall standings. The men's team placed first in 11 meets including their dual meet over the New York City University in the Championship. "Andy had just been wrestling and taking sixth place propelled the Danes to fourth place. Vic Herman's third place in our history at the States," Coach Joe DeMeo said.

Cagers start new year on winning note

Cuomo also asked for funds to continue Capital District Medicaid expansion. About 16,000 children would be added to the Medicaid expansion program next year, Cuomo said. The legislature's plan called for expanding Medicaid to cover 19,000 children.

Cuomo also proposed that New York State would participate in the Energy Star program, an energy efficiency initiative. The program would provide energy-efficient lighting and appliances to New York households.

Cuomo also introduced a new infrastructure program to help improve New York's transportation systems. The program would be funded through a one-cent gasoline tax.

Cuomo also supported the concept of a minimum wage increase. The current minimum wage is $4.50 per hour. Cuomo has said he would support a $5.15 per hour minimum wage.
