"I don't know of any player that's ever graduated who we've going to miss more..."

---Dick Savors on John Dieckelman

The Danes hung up the DVR during the last 10 games by finding and watching the game. The point guard and leading scorer of the season, Dieckelman was a key player in the Danes' NCAA Division III tournament run. The team had a 4-1 conference record and a 16-8 overall record.

The Danes were scheduled to play in the SUNYAC playoffs at the end of the semester, but the tournament was cancelled due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

SUNYAC works to lure enrollment of minorities

By Julia Zolnierowicz

SUNY at Albany has implemented a number of initiatives to increase enrollment of minority students, including the Minority Recruitment and Retention Task Force. The task force has worked to formalize the university's commitment to increasing minority enrollment, and has created a number of programs to support minority students.

The task force has also worked to increase minority enrollment through the use of targeted marketing and recruitment strategies. The university has created a number of programs to support minority students, including the Minority Scholarship Program and the Minority Student Support Program.

The task force has also worked to increase minority enrollment through the use of alternative admissions strategies. The university has created a number of programs to support minority students, including the Minority Scholarship Program and the Minority Student Support Program.

Students to stomach UAS board rate increases

By Amy Adams

A 3.4% increase in the rate of tuition for the 2023-24 academic year was approved by SUNY Albany's Board of Trustees. The increase, which is the first since 2015, will apply to all students, regardless of their residency status. The increase will be spread out over three years, with future increases of 3.2% in 2024-25 and 3.6% in 2025-26.

The increase was necessary, according to SUNY Albany President Alain G. Carle, to help the university maintain its financial stability. The university has been facing budgetary challenges in recent years, and the increase is expected to generate an additional $7.2 million in revenue for the 2023-24 academic year.

The increase was met with mixed reactions from students and parents. Some expressed concern about the impact the increase would have on their ability to afford higher education, while others praised the university's efforts to maintain its financial stability.

Seniors ready but fearful to begin job hunting

By Elke Schmitt

At spring-approaching, seniors are facing the task of landing a job. A recent survey revealed that seniors are optimistic about their job-hunting success, with 93% of students reporting that they were confident in their ability to find a job. However, 7 out of 8 seniors are worried about their future job prospects, and only 1 in 8 seniors believe that their job-hunting will be successful. (The survey was conducted by J.S.C.-Hillel.

Students at graduation ceremonies are often exhorted to know themselves, their values, and their career goals. The question remains, are seniors fully aware of what they want to pursue? In many cases, students are not sure what they want to do after graduation. Some students are interested in pursuing higher education, while others are looking for internships or full-time employment.

For students who are unsure of their career path, there are resources available to assist them. J.S.C.-Hillel offers career counseling and the College Planning and Placement Office provides guidance on job searches and internships. Additionally, many universities have on-campus career offices that offer workshops and seminars on job-hunting.

Although seniors are concerned about finding a job after graduation, it is important to keep in mind that many students may experience periods of unemployment.
This may be due to a lack of experience, a change in career goals, or a slow job martet. However, it is important to recognize that unemployment can be a temporary situation and that seniors should not give up hope.

East Meets West In Troy

I n some of the great cities of the world, where the strains of life are intense and the pace is fast, you may find in the newspapers or on television the story of a new type of performance. Usually, the performance involves a group from one country meeting with a group from another, often from a different cultural background. This week, we have the honor of bringing to you a performance that is both unique and extraordinary.

The combination of the Czechoslovak Radio Symphony Orchestra with the American New York Philharmonic Orchestra is a testament to the power of music to bridge cultural divides. The110 members of the Czech orchestra were led by Maestro William D. Charmak, an American conductor who has dedicated his life to musical leadership. The New York Philharmonic, under the baton of Maestro Lorin M. Barber, is one of the most respected orchestras in the world, known for its innovative programming and dedication to excellence.

The concert was held at the Empire State Institute of Technology, Troy, N.Y., where it was featured as part of the city's annual festival honoring the birthday of "the Father of the Constitution," Alexander Hamilton. The performance was held at 10:00 AM. The coupon entitles you to two guest admissions for this performance only. First come, first served.

Bored to death in El Salvador

Many people are tired of hearing about it. For about the past two years, all we've been hearing is "El Salvador, El Salvador." Unfortunately, El Salvador is in Central America, and no, it's not boring. Even though a civil war may last for years, you don't lose your sense of duty when it comes to your life.

Last week, the FSLN army decided to act. The FMLN has been trying to win back control of the region, and the war continues. Occasionally, the rebels will claim a battle won or the army will claim a defeat, but nothing really has changed.

This is a military solution. There has been the existence of adventurist actions like the planned invasion of Nicaragua, and support for other repressive regimes in the region such as Guatemala. The view of most independent observers is that one cannot win a military victory in El Salvador. The FMLN has too strong a hold in the countryside, and the government has too strong a hold in the cities.

With the attacks of Vietnam back in power, a political solution is unlikely to be sought. Some people in Congress will continue to support such military aid, but it will be the backbone of Reagan's Central American policy. He can get away with it because he thinks that El Salvador is an easy issue — that people are bored with hearing about more clashes such as those in more distant places.

Unless people continue the pressure against aid to repressive governments, Reagan will get his wish. It may not be the most pressing issue of the day to us, but it is the people of Central America's life. Or death.

Freedom from coercion

Andrew A. Wolfson

Editor's note: The author is one of four SUNY students who wrote this article and signed a New York Times opinion piece which stirred controversy.

Whether NYPIRG's positions are right or wrong, while they do a lot of good, they are supported in part by corporations who directly support a group to which they think they are opposed. The case that NYPIRG, a government-friendly group, is supported by a government unfriendly group, is an interesting one. However, we have to be aware of the fact that NYPIRG is not some new, unexpected organization. It is, in fact, a political group that has been around for quite some time.

The editors of the Albany Student Press Corporation, an independent student newspaper, have written an article on the subject.

Seras’ loss ends successful year for grapplers

By Marc Schwartz

Billy Seras lost his first match of the season this week, ending his run in the weight class of 126 pounds. Seras had been undefeated in the weight class for the past two years, losing only one match in the entire season. This year, however, he lost his last match of the season, falling in the first round to Virginia Tech’s Kyle Halsey. Seras’ loss ended an undefeated season for the senior.

The Danes entered the season trying to top their team record of 22 wins from last year. Seras was a key player in the 22-win season, earning 30 wins and 12 losses. The Danes’ record this year is 18-6, which is still a significant improvement from last year’s 12-10 record.

Seras’ loss this week was his first of the season, and it came in the first round of the NCAA tournament. Seras’ loss leaves the Danes with a rating of fifth in the northeast region.

The Danes have a strong team this year, with nine members of the team ranked in the top 25. Seras’ loss also leaves the Danes with a rating of fourth in the northeast region.

The Danes are still in the running for a national championship, however, and they will be looking to prove themselves in the remaining matches of the season.
