Coffee Needed

Grounness in the morning has been prevalent during the past week because there is no coffee to be had before 10:30 in the morning. Professors and students alike have complained about this. A break between early morning classes can be well filled by a cup of coffee before a good start for the day. There are machines on the quadrangle but often they are empty.

Even when there is coffee in the machines it is not the best.

Maybe a coffee can be set up similar to the one the bookstore set up during a recent crisis. The man working on the construction has a little portable container that furnishes them with coffee and doughnuts.

There must be something that can be done before the Campus Center is opened later in the year.

Enjoyable Performance

Dionne Warwick was every well received by the audience in Page Hall Saturday night. She was entertaining with her first session this evening and are registered in this university. They wish to express their appreciation for the following:

Buses Inconvenient

Minor inconveniences cause many students to want to attend classes because they don’t want to be late. Most buses are on schedule and get there on time.
