There Comes A Time...

In every young woman's life when she steps out of the cradling arms of the adolescent into the broad new path of the adult. To most girls, the transition takes place when she leaves home to go to college. Occasionally, she recognizes her responsibility in this adult and mature position, through gradually, without the guidance of high school faculty and parents.

It is unfortunate if the young lady is thrown into a new world of opportunity without the training in her high school. If she has been given the opportunity to find out for herself what is expected of her in this stage of her life, if someone has shown her the opportunity, step by step then the idea she has gained in her high school.
