Colonial Quad turns out 255 letters against Reagan aid cuts
By Doug Tuttle

Students on Colonial Quad wrote 255 letters to their representatives in Congress on the dinner lines Monday to protest President Reagan's proposed financial aid cuts, as student leaders say interest in the issue is at a peak because of the dramatic nature of the cuts.

"In terms of a national issue, I've never seen anything like this," said Student Action Chair Steve Gawley, of the 255 letters, which, he said, surpassed the 196 letters written on Colonial Quad last semester in opposition to the proposed twenty-one-year old drinking age.

"I was pleasantly surprised," Gawley said. "Even the people that receive no financial aid were concerned."

Student leaders cited the severity of the proposed cuts as one reason for the increase in student opposition. "This year the proposal is the most devastating ever," said Kathy Ozer, legislative director for the United States Student Association (USSA).

"In terms of a national issue, I've never seen anything like this," said Philip Botwinik, vice-chair of the Student Action Legislative Subcommittee. "We're getting an excellent response. A lot of people are writing letters."

The proposed cuts, he said, are "a threat to the very existence of the student body." They would mean that if you cut and run, you are going to be cut and run, he said.

"There are many more young people who are writing letters against the budget proposal," said Botwinik. "We're reaching effects of these proposals. Cuts in financial aid would affect more students."

Residence halls may become the permanent home for fraternity and sorority life, said John Martone, Director of Residential Life, or they may be used as a stepping stone to other on-campus living facilities, Martone said Wednesday.

"Having Greek organizations move into on-campus living facilities is something we're working on."

Masone said that if fraternity and sorority homes would have to follow all current residence policies, including making normal reservations for events.

"We have to know what is going on in the residence facilities, we have a responsibility to students to maintain the residence environment."

The grouper law has become the main issue in this campaign, Martone said. Fraternities and sororities would be put on probation for one year, Martone said.

"Things will change for the better, I feel they will add credibility to the residence environment, and that there is potential for service to our campus," he said.

University dorm space is made available to Greeks

The UAS Board of Directors is made up of 10 students and 5 faculty and administrators," said Abelow.

"We're looking into ways around the grouper law," Pollock said. "Once we establish ourselves, our national organization might be able to purchase some dorm space."
Women falter in state promotions

Don’t Walk Alone resumes bringing expanded service

By Robert Simon

The Don’t Walk Alone escort service, which began in March of 1984 to provide a safe and convenient way for female students to navigate off campus during the night, is expanding its service. The group, which started as a student initiative, has been endorsed by the Dean of Women and is now an official University program.

Don’t Walk Alone is continuing to operate as one of the University’s safety initiatives, which is aimed at providing a safe and comfortable environment for students. The group is led by several volunteers, including students and faculty members. The service is free of charge and available to anyone who needs assistance.

The volunteer escort service is staffed by trained volunteers who have undergone background checks and safety training. The volunteers are available to escort students to their destinations, provide guidance and support, and, if necessary, call for emergency assistance.

Don’t Walk Alone has partnered with the University’s Department of Public Safety to provide a safe and secure environment for students. The service is available to all students, regardless of gender, and is designed to help students feel safe and confident while navigating off campus.

The expansion of the Don’t Walk Alone service is part of the University’s continued commitment to providing a safe and welcoming environment for all students. The service will continue to be available throughout the year and will be enhanced with the addition of more volunteers and resources.

Sandalistas for peace (U.S.)

By Charles Coon

The Sandinista government in Nicaragua has asked for peace with the United States and has said that it is ready to negotiate. President Daniel Ortega, who heads the Sandinista government, said that the United States is looking for the moral backing of its allies in the region. Ortega said that the United States is trying to pressure Nicaragua into submission, but the Sandinistas are not willing to give in.

In the question of the arms buildup, Zalaya pointed to the beginning of the U.S. economic sanctions against Nicaragua. These sanctions, which were imposed in 1982, have had a serious impact on the Nicaraguan economy. The Sandinistas have been trying to negotiate an end to the sanctions, but the United States has refused to do so.

The Sandinista government has been making moves to improve the economy and to bring about social change. In 1984, the government nationalized the banks and the telecommunications industry. These moves were seen as a way to bring about economic change and to break the power of the wealthy elite in Nicaragua.

The Sandinista government has also been working to improve education. In 1984, the government announced a plan to increase the number of teachers and to improve the quality of education. The government has also been working to improve health care and to provide social services.

For more information on the Sandinista government and its policies, see the articles in the Albany Student Press on March 12, 1985.

College presses services in part to prepare for the next round of budget cuts. ASL member Steven Davidson has been active in the college presses service, and he has been working to improve the services offered by the college.

In 1984, the college presses service was established to serve the needs of the college community. The service was created in response to the budget cuts that were imposed in 1982. The college presses service was able to operate with the funding from the college, and it has been able to provide a valuable service to the college community.

Davidson has been working to improve the college presses service. He has been working to increase the number of services offered by the service, and he has been working to improve the quality of the services offered by the service.

The college presses service is an important part of the college community. The service is able to provide a valuable service to the college community, and it is able to help the college to operate more efficiently.

PAC sparks with Fifth of July

emel Wilson's Fifth of July, at SUNYA's Studio Theatre, is a fascinating examination of the choices -- or lack of choices -- people make in their lives. Over the years, Wilson's plays have been described as "a new form of social criticism," and "a new form of social protest."

The play begins with a conversation between two characters, George and his sister, June. George is a typical 1950s teenager, with dreams of becoming a successful businessman. June, on the other hand, is more practical and wants to stay home and raise a family. Their conversation is interrupted by a phone call from their mother, telling them that their father is coming home from the hospital.

The play continues with scenes of the family's daily life, including the father's return and his struggle with alcoholism. The family's relationship is tested as they try to cope with their father's condition. The play ends with the family's decision to try to live a normal life, despite the challenges they face.

This production of Wilson's Fifth of July is directed by SUNYA's Theatre Department Chair, Jerome Hanley. The cast includes

Ponsot's poetry

"The first thing is to be careful."

The words that follow are spoken by the character of "White Woman" in the play "The White Woman's Blues" by Tennessee Williams. The play is set in a segregated town in the South and tells the story of a young woman who is forced to confront the realities of racial inequality.

In the play, the character of "White Woman" is a white woman who is trying to understand the lives of the african american people in her town. She is forced to confront her own prejudices and biases as she learns about the struggles of the african american community.

The play has been praised for its powerful depiction of racism and inequality. It has been performed several times, and is still performed today.

Survival of the psyche

"The biology of defense" is a term used in psychology to refer to the mechanisms that animals and humans use to protect themselves from harm. These mechanisms can be physical, such as flight or fight responses, or they can be mental, such as psychological defenses.

Psychological defense mechanisms are a way for individuals to cope with stressful situations. These mechanisms can be positive, such as seeking support from others, or they can be negative, such as denying or suppressing the existence of a problem.

The concept of psychological defense mechanisms was first introduced by Sigmund Freud, the founder of psychoanalysis. Freud believed that defense mechanisms were a normal part of human functioning, and that they were necessary to maintain mental health.

Dracula bites

"I was found in the library at night, just as I was about to be bitten by a vampire."

The story of Dracula's bite is a classic tale of the supernatural and the supernatural seeking to enter the human world. The story follows the character of Jonathan Harker, who travels to Transylvania to rescue his fiancée from the clutches of the Count Dracula.

Harker is bitten by Dracula, and his own body is slowly taken over by the bloodsucker. The story is filled with suspense and terror, as Harker tries to escape the Count's clutches and return to his fiancée.

Cap Rep masters Harold

"I love the work of Harold Pinter. It's a master class about a lonely boy and how he navigates the world."

The play is set in a small town in England, and follows the life of a young boy named Billy. Billy is lonely and isolated, and he befriends a local who takes him under his wing.

The play explores themes of loyalty, friendship, and the importance of community. It is a powerful story about how one person can make a difference in another's life.

Frat hats!

At the beginning of every year, hundreds of SUNYA dorm residents find themselves wearing frat hats. These hats are worn as a form of identification and sometimes as a symbol of the fraternity or sorority to which one belongs. This practice is not only offensive but also promotes hazing and other forms of discrimination. We urge SUNYA to take action against this behavior and to create a safer and more inclusive environment for all students.

Mental health and academic integrity

Academic integrity is a fundamental value in higher education. It is crucial that students understand the importance of honesty and fairness in their academic pursuits. We commend the recent efforts made by SUNYA to address this issue and hope that these initiatives will continue to promote a culture of integrity among our students.

LETTERS

Editorial:

The Albany Student Press is published Tuesday and Fridays between September and June by the Albany Student Press Corporation, an Independent Student Run Publishing Company at SUNY Albany. The editors are: John Kennedy, Editor-in-Chief; Ben Streit, News Editor; Ian Spelling, Movies Editor; Steve O'Neal, Web Editor; Christine Rollott, Editor, and Tom Storl, Art Director. The Albany Student Press is independent of SUNY-Albany and SUNY Albany has no responsibility for its content. The opinions expressed do not necessarily reflect the opinions of the editors or the University. The Albany Student Press welcomes unsigned letters, Oppinions, and news tips. Letters should be no more than 300 words and include the author's name and the name of their school. The editors reserve the right to edit for length and clarity. Email submissions to: editor@albanystudentpress.com. Letters should be submitted at least two weeks in advance of publication.

Death punishment

There is an issue which even more directly relates to SUNYA students: SUNY Binghamton and Potsdam have food service contracts with the Marion Correctional Corporation; Marion is located in South Africa. Students residing in SUNY schools who are on campus are forced to purchase the meals served by Marion. Students residing off campus are free to purchase food at any location. Marion Correctional Corporation forces students to purchase food from Marion. We cannot allow this circle of poverty to continue. The Third World Caucus is causing a peaceful protest on the Potsdam campus on March 25.

COLUMN

Fight for freedom

To the Editor:

The failure to bring to justice all those who have an obligation to obey the nation's laws is catastrophic. There have been instances where the proper authorities have not acted in accordance with the law. For example, a common occurrence is the failure of the police to investigate crimes thoroughly and to prosecute those responsible. This lack of action can lead to a sense of impunity among criminals and can undermine the rule of law. It is crucial that our government takes a strong stance against these issues and works to ensure that justice is served.

Misguided criticism

We must remember that capital punishment is a strong deterrent. It is important to note that capital punishment has been used in the United States since its inception and has been shown to be effective in preventing crime. We must also consider the fact that capital punishment is not cruel and unusual punishment. It is a legal and justifiable means of punishment.

Inappropriate funding

This April, a very important referendum will be voted on at SUNY. As usual we will either not get our funding demands or the referendum will be tabled. This is unacceptable and we need to take action. We urge you to sign these letters and make your voice heard.

I'm not gay, I'm just a man's best friend

There have been criticisms of University Auxiliary Services on campus. We believe that the services provided by UAS are valuable to the campus community. The services include dining, transportation, and other facilities that are essential to the daily lives of students, faculty, and staff. We urge you to support these services and to participate in the referendum to ensure their continued existence.

Live by your choice

To the Editor:

As students at SUNY, we have the right to make choices that are best for us. We should not be forced to choose between attending classes and studying for exams. We must be allowed to make these choices without fear of judgment or punishment. We hope that the university will take action to address these issues and create a more supportive and inclusive environment for all students.

Academic integrity

To the Editor:

As students at SUNY, we must take responsibility for our academic integrity. It is important to understand that plagiarism and cheating are serious offenses that can have serious consequences. We must work together to ensure that our academic community remains strong and that we are held accountable for our actions.

The author is an Editor at Large

I was also on a panel to discuss the impact of various platforms on the academic community. It was an interesting discussion and I enjoyed listening to the other panelists. However, I believe that it is important to always strive for improvement and to continue learning.

In the near future, the university will be conducting an academic integrity review of all courses. This will help to ensure that our academic community remains strong and that we are held accountable for our actions.

Worry over lack of nuclear waste dumps rises

ALBANY STUDENT PRESS

4 do, explained Sue Gagner, creating new dump sites, colleges start moving more quickly toward and to stop shipping all their wastes to large nuke waste dumps.

But if the states and Congress don't force states and regions to set up their own radioactive waste sites for the universities, "states without compacts or sites could be threatened," Gagner said.

"There's a lot with which to scare people," she said. "We don't want to shut down campuses, but we're worried governmental footdragging could leave us holding a radioactive bomb." Gagner said.

"If people are facing the same threat," said Charles Bockelman, Stanford, for example, has some 300 members affected may be much larger. Stanford, he added. In his first oversease trip since succeeding his slain mother, Indira Gandhi, Abe said, "I do not foresee any major changes in foreign or domestic policy for the time being." said he would attend the Soviet funeral. Women cagers' 23-4 record a dream season

By Kristine Sauer

The SUNYAC women's basketball team's 23-4 record speaks for itself. It was the kind of season a player wants to put in a part of her career. And it looks like there will be several chances to perform in the future. The season began with an expected SUNYAC title and was followed by a near-perfect score in the conference. The Women's basketball team under Coach Larry Bright has continued to excel in the SUNYAC East and national community. The team, composed of a transfer from the District of Columbia, has also shown great improvement in the past few years.

"The big thing for us is that we won the SUNYAC East championship," said Larry Bright. "We were 8-1 last year and I was surprised that we were even there."

The team, which is coached by Coach Larry Bright, has shown great improvement in the past few years. Coach Bright said, "We've been working hard on our fundamentals and have been able to put it into practice." The team has shown great improvement in the past few years and has been able to put it into practice.

Albany's season was full of surpassed goals

By Rich Sheldon and Jerry Campione

Despite the routine and final game of the season, the outcomes of both seasons would be determined in their own unique way. The teams didn't have any choices as to how they would fare in the district meet.

The first win came with a narrow loss to MVCC. Pomakoy, who took over the position in January, directed the faceoff to Cavanaugh, but the goalie, tying the score at one. Despite a defeat in the opening round of the NCAA Division III Tournament, the ball season was a resounding success. The club had good reason to be intense. The players were very much aware of the intense presence of his Uncinate Mike Cavanaugh. His second hat-trick of the season.

A sterling effort by John Knab kept the club is planning on playing another game for charity March 22 against a less-talented team. The tailgangers, led by Coach Pomakoy, who took over the position in January, directed the faceoff to Cavanaugh, but the goalie, tying the score at one. In advance of their season, the contests' outcome also included arch-rival Potsdam and SUNYAC champions. The Bengals topped the Danes in six games -- five and seven-game winning streaks. In addition to outstanding teamwork and ethical play, the players on the other team thought I was a true leader. The Tailgunners lopped 11 minutes to play in the middle session, they carried into our zone, they drew our opponents, finally picking up win number 21 on a power-play goal. Defenseman Croutier, the team's co-captain,被评为年度最有价值球员。

For the last two years now, Tom Jacobs has been carrying the ball up the field. Summer Sessions '85
State University of New York at Albany

Make Summer Sessions '85 a part of your summer! Think about it - our short, intensive sessions let you move ahead in your studies. You could even graduate early. Give us eight weeks and you'll earn a full year of laboratory science credits. Or work off some general education requirements in three- or six-week sessions. Whatever your preference, we're offering some of the most popular courses in nearly all disciplines. And the best part is, summer classes are smaller and our facilities - like computer user rooms and tennis courts - are much more crowded. You'll enjoy summer in the Capital District! Pack a lunch and take off for the New York City Ballet, the Saratoga races, an Albany Coliseum Yankees game, or a SPAC concert. There's the Food Jazz Festival, too. Or call it a day in the sun around the University's Minuteman.

You've got a long summer vacation ahead of you - why not use part of it to study?

The Courses

- Summer in the Capital District
- The Adirondacks, Berkshire's, and Catskills
- Swimming and camping at Mohawk and Dippikill
- New York City Ballet in residence at Saratoga
- Special SPAC concerts - the best popular music around!
- Sun and fun around the University's Minuteman

For more information see your advisor or call Summer Sessions 455-6129.
