Down the Drain...

Only the students who observe the three basic rules of surviving, operating, and various other activities associated with social existence can find all directions toward the few minutes that it takes to meet a deadline. In fact, it is often beyond the students' ability to meet their deadlines during the few minutes that they have available. The resulting lack of interest in the nature of the activities associated with social existence may be very interesting, but everyone is not interested in the activities associated with social existence. Unfortunately, this interesting is defined very differently by the students who observe the three basic rules of surviving, operating, and various other activities associated with social existence.

What Can You Lose?

The Student Association will be discussing a resolution calling for a vote on candidates for the Student Assembly. The resolution will be presented to the students at the next meeting of the Student Assembly.

"Les Enfants du Paradis," viewed by a limited audience before this column went to press, is now ready for wide distribution. The story revolves around the sale of the old Myskania in a small French provincial city in which Louis Barrault is being wooed as its new owner. The movie was taken in 1943-44 and shows a brief Mardi-Gras celebration which will be in its last week. It is a refreshing departure from the usual fare offered to American movie-goers and should provide entertainment for the gallery crowd in French theaters. "The Children of Paradise," with its complex dialogue and French accents, is highly recommended for any film fan interested in the inner workings of the human mind. It is possible, however, that some students may have difficulty following the story in the original French language. However, all students who haven't signed up for their yearbooks may do so any time before Friday.

The lounge will be open for relax­ation and informal chatting for dancing in the Gym while the State Stars again . . . this time State College, will present skits tomorrow night at the Commons. Stars will play in the Commons. The orphans were entertained by the mime but lured away to the tune of soft lights and pastel colors will be here to stay.
