Not as many freshmen attended Activities Day as might have been expected, and that was the second longest in the history of State College. It is the fact that all the Activities Day programs were not better prepared for the true purpose of the day.

Activities Day should not be considered solely an academic tradition but formal part of the year, for it can be the start of some kind of organization. The fall semester, October, is the best time to start a club or organization for many reasons. First, the activities of the year can be organized so that they will end in the spring, thus having the opportunity to keep the group in existence. Second, the organization can be started in a logical manner, by choosing a president, vice president, and secretary. Finally, the activities of the year can be planned and organized in an orderly manner, making it easier to manage the organization. The organization can be divided into smaller groups, each with a specific role, to ensure that everyone is contributing to the success of the club.

We're sorry if you have missed a couple of things. We're trying to get the two together.

The faculty at State College, and administrators, have appointed a new athletic director, John Rivers, to serve as the head of the intramural programs. Rivers has been with the university for several years and has a wealth of experience in sports administration. He will be responsible for overseeing all athletic programs, including intramural, club, and varsity teams. Rivers' appointment is effective immediately, and he will begin his duties on Monday, January 1. The university hopes that Rivers' leadership will help to bring new energy and direction to the athletic programs. Any questions or concerns may be directed to Rivers at the Athletics Department.

The 1951 Culture Foundation is proud to announce the recipient of the inaugural Outstanding Student Award. The recipient, an outstanding student in the college, will receive a $1,000 scholarship to further their education. The award is given to a student who has demonstrated exceptional academic achievement and community involvement. The recipient will be announced at the Culture Foundation's annual conference in April.
Religious Clubs To Stage Picnic On Dorm Field

"The four religious clubs, Sigma Chi, Delta Chi, Ovidius, and the Y-Socs have been planning a picnic that will be held on the dorm fields at 6:30 p.m. on the first Sunday after Thanksgiving. The speaking material will be by Dr. George F. H. Stimson of the University of Michigan. The clubs have been meeting regularly to plan the program."

Revised Times for Performing Arts Professors

Dr. Bertrand G. Langsley, an assistant professor of the English Department, will now be working from 8:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. The revised times have been set because of the rapid increase in the number of students and the need for more time for individual instruction.

Webster Troup Brings Shakespearean Selections

Admit Students By Tax Tickets

Webster Troup, an assistant professor of English, will bring to the State College a selection of six episodes of "Julius Caesar." The admission will be $1.00, which will be collected by the Student Council. The students will enter by tax tickets, and admission will be granted only to those who have paid the admission fee.

Regents Board Schedules Issues For Convocation

At Discussions On Publications

The Regents Board has scheduled several issues for the Convocation. The board will discuss the future of the State College press and the need for more printed material. The board will also discuss the need for more space for the press and the need for more printing equipment.
