Reagan Speaks on Economy

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — President Ronald Reagan on Tuesday urged Congress to act quickly to avoid a development that threatened "political paralysis" and a "crash" in the economy.

In his State of the Union message tonight, Reagan said the American people wanted no part of that.

"We have a serious problem," the president said. "We must act now to reverse the trend of growing national debt.

"We must act to reduce the federal deficit," Reagan added. "We must act to return our economy to health and prosperity.

"We must act to ensure a bright and prosperous future for all Americans," Reagan concluded. "We must act now to meet this challenge."

Reagan also said he was ready to work with Congress on a package of tax cuts and spending reductions to help stimulate the economy.

"I ask you to join me in this effort," the president said. "Let us work together to achieve these goals.

"Together, we can reverse the trend of growing national debt. Together, we can return our economy to health and prosperity.

"Together, we can ensure a bright and prosperous future for all Americans," Reagan concluded. "I urge you to join me in this effort.

"Let us work together to achieve these goals. Together, we can reverse the trend of growing national debt. Together, we can return our economy to health and prosperity. Together, we can ensure a bright and prosperous future for all Americans."

Vandalism at SUNYA: Its Causes and Solutions

Vandalism at SUNYA is not a new problem. The campus has been involved in many cases of vandalism, and it continues to be a problem. Here are some factors to consider:

1. Alcohol Abuse: Students who consume alcohol are more likely to engage in vandalism. Alcohol impairs judgment and decision-making, making it easier for students to act impulsively.

2. Peer Pressure: Students may feel pressure to participate in vandalism to fit in with their peers. This can lead to a sense of group identity and solidarity.

3. Anonymity: Vandalism can occur anonymously, making it easier for students to engage in destructive behavior without facing consequences.

4. Environmental Factors: The physical environment of the campus can play a role in vandalism. For example, poorly maintained facilities or an unsanitary environment can contribute to a sense of dissatisfaction and frustration among students.

5. Lack of Supervision: Some areas of the campus may lack proper supervision, making it easier for students to engage in vandalism without being caught.

6. Anxious Students: Anxiety and stress can lead to destructive behavior. Students who are anxious or stressed may engage in vandalism as a way to vent their frustration.

7. Unresolved Conflict: Conflicts or unresolved issues can lead to vandalism. Students may engage in destructive behavior as a way to express their anger or frustration.

8. Antisocial Dispositions: Some students may have antisocial dispositions, leading them to engage in vandalism as a way to gain power or control.

9. Low Self-Esteem: Students with low self-esteem may engage in vandalism as a way to feel important or powerful.

10. Low Social Skills: Students with low social skills may have difficulty interacting with others, leading them to engage in destructive behavior as a way to gain attention.

These are just a few of the many factors that contribute to vandalism at SUNYA. It is important to address these issues and develop strategies to prevent future incidents.

Reggae speaks of the common historical and cultural experience of the Black man. African rhythmic modes meshed with the oppressive social conditions produce the reggae beat in the hearts and minds of its impoverished patrons. This is music from the other side of the tracks. Anger, frustration, rage, and the imminent threat of violence are just as prominent in the music as in the society of the people who listen to it. The music appeals to the passions of an exploited and abused people. It's more than music to get high to; it is music to inspire and incite. The quality that enables this music to motivate is its inherent emotional impact.

The Rastas have been forced to generate a doctrine of defense. The Paceurs of The Hague and other European cities have blacked out their windows and installed bars. Yet, the black community has not been free from the same fate. In the early 1960s, there was a struggle for self-defense. They wanted to be protected, to be able to go out at night without fear of being attacked. Yet, the police were not interested in protecting the black community. The struggle for self-defense continued, and the Black Panthers were formed. The Rastas have been forced to defend themselves from the police, who have been fighting a war against the black community. They have been forced to develop a doctrine of defense, in order to protect themselves.

Harassment Policies Issued

A recent policy statement issued by the Albany Student Association (ASA) has generated much discussion on campus. The policy, which is designed to prevent harassment of individuals by members of the University community, was adopted by ASA last week.

The policy states that any person who engages in conduct that is likely to cause another person to feel unwelcome, uncomfortable or objects to may be subject to disciplinary action. This includes verbal, written, or physical conduct, or conduct by means of electronic communication.

As part of the policy, ASA also has established a process for reporting incidents of harassment and for investigating and resolving those incidents.

Football Coach Dooley To Become Georgia AD
In Bob Belfiore's absence, the Albany State basketball team got a rare chance to face the Dutchmen of Hartwick, who had just come from a dominating win in the quadrangular meet last weekend. Hartwick was expected to put on a clinic, but Albany surprised them with a 96-76 drubbing.

Albany's women's swimming quartet of Judy King, Lauriann Baines and Robin Brown dominated a quadrangular meet last weekend. These three swimmers, along with their teammate, placed first in the 200 yard Medley Relay, setting a new school record. They also won the 100 yard Freestyle, 200 yard Freestyle, 200 yard Breast Stroke and 100 yard Backstroke, placing them in the top three in their respective events.
