Disabled praise SUNYA's access to facilities on podium, quads

Union

Graduate Student Employees

I would like to praise SUNYA's access to facilities and services on the podium and quads. As a Union graduate student employee, I have had the opportunity to use the facilities and services available to us, and I would like to share my positive experience.

The podium and quads provide a variety of facilities and services, including study spaces, recreational areas, and classrooms. These facilities are well-maintained and offer a comfortable and productive environment for learning and studying.

In addition to the general facilities, the Union also provides specific services for graduate student employees. These include access to the Union's computer lab, which is well-equipped and available 24/7, and the Union's library, which is well-stocked and has a comfortable study area.

Overall, I am very satisfied with SUNYA's access to facilities on the podium and quads. The Union provides a high level of service and support to its graduate student employees, and I would like to express my gratitude for this.

Please feel free to contact me if you have any questions or concerns.

Best regards,

Marissa Donatelli

Gol addresses Middle East problems in speech

By Richard Steinman

Albany—Executive Director of the SUNYA Planned Parenthood Office, Martha Klepper, said that SUNYA is pleased with the speech by Christina Gol of the Board of Trustees of the University of New York's Hunter College. Gol announced last week that she had run over the AIPAC's ban on Israeli military appointees at the university and that she would make appointments to the university, the university's press office, and the university's women's studies program.

"Gol's announcement" is a "remarkable" one, according to Klepper. "She's speaking out against the AIPAC's ban, and that's a big step," she said.

Klepper added that the university's women's studies program "will be thankful for her actions," and that the university's press office "will be pleased with her announcement." She said that the university's women's studies program "will receive more applicants now that the ban is lifted," and that the university's press office "will receive more requests for information from the media now that the ban is lifted." She said that the university's women's studies program "will receive more requests for information from the media now that the ban is lifted," and that the university's press office "will receive more requests for information from the media now that the ban is lifted."

Budget victory?

Tuition should not be going up next year, and students should not assume such "moral victory" by weakening the positions of the student leaders by allowing them to be manipulated into believing that the battle is over. Last year, in high the student budget and service charges, student leaders organized a massive student lobby in Albany to fight the tuition increase. This year, the political temperature has dropped, and the student lobby was not as effective. The student leaders must now focus on other issues, such as the lack of funding for student services and organizations. The student leaders must continue to fight for their rights and hold the university accountable.

Excerpts from the preamble of the SA Constitution:

- To provide a clear and continuing expression of ideas among individuals and the Student Union Community.
- To provide for student expression of moral, political, and social concerns.
- To assume the fullest degree of responsibility and power of self-government.
- The intent of the form of government herein established is to provide an organizational representation and responsibility to the students.

The paragraph you have just read is from the Student Assembly Constitution here at the State University of New York at Albany. It clearly calls for an organizational setup that would include student leaders who would be involved in the decision-making process. The Student Assembly is the official voice of the students on campus and is responsible for representing the students' interests and concerns.

Laurel Cole

The purpose of this column is to highlight the importance of student involvement in the decision-making process. It is crucial for students to be aware of the issues that affect them, such as tuition increases, funding for student services, and the role of the Student Assembly in the decision-making process. By being informed, students can take an active role in shaping the policies that affect them.

SUNY Albany’s career concert board, UCB has been doing a really good job this semester.

I must say I’m rather embarrassed that I found the job of doing concerts in defense of their organization of Klezmer.

But I don’t know what it is.

Apparently, various ways of various women are on the rise and we are doing a really good job.

As a matter of fact, they’ve given the job to various women.

Not to say that we will consistently give glowing reviews to various women.

If they can’t get glowing previews, they’ll make their own, right?

I should point out at the very beginning of this column that, I feel rather sorry for lack of attention.

Looking for yourself. I mean, seriously, it’s a long news story.

The American Dream

by Gregg Stevens

The guy from Sri Lanka hadn’t moved in five days. When I woke up in the morning he would be there. Leg in a brace lying on his back staring at the ceiling. On when he sat up — during one of his rare changes of position I never actually saw, I would notice that he was in a different position — he would get into the bed through the window of our hostel room. I was a little worried about that at first, but I was too busy arguing up my way for an apartment downtown Belgrade and he would be there, in one of the middle positions, with his leg out of the corner of my eye. That’s the evening when I returned to my room and there I would be, doing my preparation for the Moma presentation on the bed.

I didn’t notice it the first day. I answered a Japanese friend from third grade when, when we played dodgeball, stood perfectly still, everyone being used to moving targets. Film impossible to hit him. I am sure one I did it. It is the kind of thing I didn’t expect after he had just been born. The Jordanian, whose name I never heard, was at the airport. We had stumbled across the only English word he understood. “Smuggling?” Jig-jig said, quickly. It was the first time I had heard Jig-jig move and suddenly he was the most animated person in the room. We had just made our way, running and jumping, to the United States through Belgrade. The circumstances leading to this event were quite remarkable, and even the word “smuggling” has a special meaning for Jig-jig.

But the Jordanian guy never got to ask me what smuggling was. He had a plan to get a Greek visa. It seems that Romania and the United States have an agreement to allow up to 100,000 refugees to enter the country without a visa. OUT OF OUR HANDS

To the Editor:

I refer to the letter "Communication" (2/14) in which you, the writer, said that the two supposedly separate entities in the world of music (radio and the concert hall) should be allowed to carry on as they do, with no interference from the student administration. While I agree with the writer that there is a division between music, I believe that there are important issues which need to be addressed.

First, the writer overlooks the potential of radio and television to reach a much wider audience than the concert hall. While it is true that radio and television can reach a wider audience, they also have the potential to reach a much more diverse audience. By making radio and television more accessible, we can reach a wider and more diverse audience.

Second, the writer overlooks the potential of radio and television to promote the music of local musicians. By making radio and television more accessible, we can promote the music of local musicians and help to develop a local music scene.

Finally, the writer overlooks the potential of radio and television to promote the music of local musicians and help to develop a local music scene. By making radio and television more accessible, we can help to develop a local music scene and promote the music of local musicians.

In conclusion, while I agree with the writer that there is a division between music, I believe that there are important issues which need to be addressed. By making radio and television more accessible, we can reach a wider and more diverse audience, promote the music of local musicians, and help to develop a local music scene.

Sincerely,

John Doe

Diver Klotz nails All-American honors at NCAA's

Sophomore is first Dane swim team member to achieve such status

By Dean Chang

Represented State at the NCAAs. "When I found out I was in fifth, I realized that something was once thought impossible became reality," said Klotz. "I couldn't do any of it alone, but I got great support from my teammates and the coaches."

Although the sophomore entered Klotz, she did not make it to nationals. "The team never expected that Klotz would be so successful," said Klotz. "When the meet was over, we realized that she was really surprised," said Klotz. "When my teammates told me, I had to go on opening night because the top 24 divers were announced the next morning as the top 24 divers would be named to the All-American team."

Klotz's high score for the season was held the next morning as the top 24 divers were named to the All-American team. "I will remember this day for the rest of my life," said Klotz. "I will always remember opening night because the top 24 divers were announced the next morning as the top 24 divers would be named to the All-American team."

Klotz became the first All-American diver for the team. "It was a tightly bunched group of four that were very close in points," said Klotz. "I didn't think I could compete with them, but I worked hard and persevered."

Klotz's favorite event is the balance beam, with teammate Elicia Kline and Brenda Armstrong going strong in the all-around. "I will continue to work hard and improve my skills."

The accounting major's first memorable win came in a situation such as this. Perrin explained that, at certain times of the season, "We've got to convince the students and faculty to put the effort into cleaning up the lounge. We've got a lot of options available to us. It's just about making sure people get a lot of options out of it."

"We're going to make sure that we can do the best we can do," said Klotz. "I will remember this day for the rest of my life."
