WASHINGTON (AP) — A majority of voting-age Americans are not planning to vote this year according to the latest public opinion poll conducted by the University of California, Los Angeles, and the Los Angeles Times.

A national survey conducted by the Los Angeles Times pollster found that only 21% of registered voters nationwide plan to vote in the upcoming presidential election. The survey, conducted by The Survey Group, found that roughly half of all registered voters do not plan to vote.

In addition, a majority of those who do plan to vote said they are not planning to vote due to personal factors such as work or family commitments. Only 29% said they planned to vote due to a sense of responsibility or duty, while 5% said they were voting for a particular candidate.

The survey also found that younger voters are less likely to plan to vote than older voters. Of those aged 18-29, only 16% said they planned to vote, compared to 46% of those aged 30-44 and 53% of those aged 45-64.

The survey was conducted online among a national sample of 2,199 adults, including 1,001 registered voters, between June 10-14, 2020. The margin of error for the overall survey is ±2.9 percentage points.
Parking Jam Might Squeeze Freshmen From Spots

Protestors on SUNY-T's campus might find their parking spaces blocked by a student protest this Monday.

Parking lots on the SUNY-T campus might be switched to a parking lot for students only, a move that would squeeze freshmen out of their spaces.

The protest is being planned by the SUNY-T Student Union, which is protesting the university's plan to divide the College of Arts and Science into three independent departments.

According to SUNY-T students, the protest will be held in support of the university's plan to divide the College of Arts and Science into three independent departments.

Steve Who? - Our SA President

By Jonathan Lapidus

On campus, few students know the name of our SA President. Steve DiMaggio. He is a quietly progressive man, who only got noticed when he ran for SA President and won. Steve's platform was a simple one: "I'm just a regular guy, who's trying to get things done."

Steve's first campaign was for SA Senate, where he ran against a more established candidate. Steve won by a narrow margin, but it was enough to get him noticed. He then ran for SA President, and this time he won by a smaller margin. "I was surprised to win," Steve said. "I thought I had a shot, but I didn't expect to win." Steve's supporters, however, were thrilled. "I'm a regular guy, who's just trying to get things done," Steve said.

Steve's most significant achievement has been his work on the Student Union Building. "I've been working on this for a few years," Steve said. "I've been meeting with the administrators and the students to try to get this thing done."

The Student Union Building has been a long time coming. "I've been working on this for a few years," Steve said. "I've been meeting with the administrators and the students to try to get this thing done."

Steve is also a member of the SA's Legislative Committee, where he works to pass legislation that will benefit the students. "I'm a regular guy, who's just trying to get things done," Steve said.

Steve is planning on running for re-election next year. "I'm not sure if I'll win," Steve said. "I don't know if I'll have the time."

Steve's biggest accomplishment has been his work on the Student Union Building. "I've been working on this for a few years," Steve said. "I've been meeting with the administrators and the students to try to get this thing done."

Steve is a regular guy, who's just trying to get things done.
For the moment the Republican candidate doesn't want a chance against his Democratic opponent. But for now Ford has not been thoroughly inhibited in mapping the benefits of his candidacy. Johnson has every antidote in the economic realm, . . . . Mr. Ford's other weaknesses are pointed out . . . . the last hurrah of Grand Rapids has not lasted long.

BLAKEN EATWELL

Crosby Nash and David is a trio, in that order. The band was formed as an offshoot of supergroup Crosby, Stills, Nash, and Young. After Nash's departure in 1970, the three recoiled into making another album, and produced "Mandala," a creative yet slightly chaotic album. Their subsequent career was one of ups and downs. They've just released a third album,"Whistling Down the Wire," and are still exploring their potential.

The evening ended with "Teach Us" and "Hymn to the Sun," which were the most fitting songs for the occasion, and testament to Crosby's greatness as a singer and songwriter.

I had the opportunity to talk with Prince of Wales at the end of the concert, and we chatted about the growing interest in the band. It was a pleasure to meet such a talented performer and to experience his music firsthand.
