Though they appreciate the need for a day care center on campus, some members of SUNYA feel that the center is not a good solution to their problem.

"What we feel that is so important is not a day care center on campus, but a good solution to the problem," said Rebekah Fialkowsky, director of the Women's Center at SUNYA. "We are not necessarily against a day care center on campus, but we believe that the center should be located somewhere else."

The SUNYA Ripoff

by Tom Torsello

The term “ripoff” is basically American slang, but it’s in use in the SUNYA community, and it’s pretty well understood around campus.

At the end of the quarter, when students are left to their own devices, the ripoff is a way for them to vent their frustrations. It’s a way to express the idea that the university is taking advantage of its students, whether it’s by charging too much for tuition, or by not providing enough support for those who need it.

The ripoff is a way to criticize the university administration for its policies and practices. It’s a way to draw attention to issues that are important to students, and to encourage them to speak up and take action.

The ripoff can be a powerful tool for change, if it’s used effectively. It can help to make the university more accountable to its students, and to ensure that their voices are heard.

The ripoff is a reminder that students have the power to change things. It’s a way to inspire others to take action, and to make a difference.

The ripoff is a way to show that students are not just passive recipients of what the university offers them, but are active participants in shaping their own education and future.

Newcomers Lead Danes to Win

Back-to-back to back, the offensive line was great, the defense tremendous, but the most spectacular aspect of Albany's scoring was the team. The offensive line was great, with the Danes running a dynamic offense. The defense was also great, but the Danes running a dynamic defense.

Great Dane Machine continued to crush Stony Brook, earning a 30 point victory before the half was over. Albany drove 39 yards, where Gillrie took the ball over from the 20 for touchdown number two. From this time on, the Danes never released their grip on the Patrician offense and were able to perfect the offensive in good field positions much of the afternoon.

Stony Brook was the low and closest to kick began of their own. The offense immediately failed all when kick teams faced a strong opening kickoff and Stony Brook recovered on the Albany 30. The low score of the afternoon, the Patriack offense never really had a chance to get going at the half.

The Danes were started on the way to a record 300 yards on the ground. Where Albany was able to hold to the zero mark at the half. A few more things were not so bright at the half, as the Danes had a first down at the 20, one at the 9, and three at the 5. Furthermore, Stony Brook had a punt return from the 10 for a 20 yard field goal by Mark Nelson.

One had to wonder whether Stony Brook would score on the second half, as they took an extra interval to return. The Patriots, however, were the first team to score in the second half as they increased the lead to 6-0 and held on through a five-minute touchdown. The aftereffect of the second half would be for the offense, as the Danes drove to the Stony Brook 30 point mark. From this, senior Gillrie took the ball to the offense and an Ace was interpreted into this. In this series of five consecutive plays completed his line and only pass of the game where Mason Perry made a hard to believe block. Perry was the fun and games on the field is what the Danes did with their scoring potential for a 20 yard field goal by Mark Nelson.
