SOPHOMORE CLASS PRESENTS "CLOSE-UP" OF INAUGURATION

In student assembly on March 4th the class of '23 did "some stunts" which the sophomores marched to in a lively time and were distinguished by their banner and green ties.

The theme of the force was inauguration. It was portrayed in four scenes. In the first scene we were transported to the nominating convention. No one would deny that the "green derby" and the "lapel bouquets" of the delegates had a momentous influence on the convention. A coronal air was created in the session by the presence of a "feminine rosebud." Cox and his adherents made an impression, but Harding's man was the hit. The convention adjourned for final work by presenting the ancient refinement of the Greek style of voting.

In the second scene we were acquainted with the joys of a presidential campaign. Eben "Duffy" began to pity the harassed Harding. However, the president's problems are all solved when he accepts Mary O'Callahan as Secretary of Commerce.

In the third scene President and Mrs. Harding are enjoying their vacation at Palm Beach. We feel sure that the "solicitous wife" will prevent the President from too

THE DEPARTMENT OF HYGIENE

Federal Assistance Withdrawn

The Federal Government has discontinued the interdepartmental Social Hygiene Board. During the war and up to and through the present college year, the Federal Board has carried on extensive work in Hygiene in many colleges and universities throughout the United States. College students shared in this work, as did Cornell, Harvard, University of Pennsylvania, and a score of other colleges.

The discontinuance of the Federal appropriation will necessitate important changes. Either the several States must assume the financial burden of the work or the work must be discontinued.

It is quite probable that most colleges where the work was organized by the Social Hygiene Board, will continue the work. This is due to the excellent results obtained so far. In every case the work has proved very satisfactory.

The work of the State College Hygiene department was singled out for special benefit to the students of the State College.

STATE MEETS MASS.

AGGIES SATURDAY

In what will probably be one of the best exhibitions of basketball on local courts this season, State will pit her strengths against the clever Mass. Aggie quintet in the A. H. S. gymnasium next Saturday night. A game was scheduled with Hobart for this date, but owing to the cancellation of other games, this made the trip impracticable. Therefore for Mass and the Orange and Purple team was unable to meet State. Manager Bliss, however, was able to hook the strong Aggie team in its place.

The Massachusetts team has won favorable notice because of its speedy floorwork, clever passing, and accurate shooting. It ranks among the best college fives in this section.

STATE BREAKS EVEN ON NORTHERN TRIP

Quintet Defeats Clarkson in Past Contest — Loses to St. Lawrence in Overtime Game

On its second week-end trip the Purple and Gold quintet defeated Clarkson on the tech court at Pot­tom by a score of 21 to 18, and lost out to St. Lawrence at Canton in an overtime game by a count of 24 to 27. Both games were fast and the outcome in each case was undecided until the final whistle.

In the Clarkson game Friday night State went into the lead with the sound of the whistle, Hathorn netted the first field basket in the first minute of play. The Purple and Gold held this lead in spite of the strong opposition of the Clarkson five and at half time the score was 10 to 6 in their favor.

In the second half the Tech team came back strong and five minutes before the end of the period cut State's lead down to one point. Hathorn sent the ball through the basket but, however, was not able to score two points. Clarkson came back with a great field basket made, the score 17 to 15. At this critical point H. Pott put through the Clarkson defense and, receiving a pass over his shoulder, dropped the ball through the net. The Tech five rallied and MacGuigan cut the lead down again, letting the ball again the basket. Hathorn and Cassavant scored for State, while MacGuigan and Cassavant featured for Clarkson. Hathorn and Cassavant featured for State, while MacGuigan and Cassavant featured for Clarkson.

COACH SNAVELY HAS COACHING COURSE

P. E. 16 Gives Fundamentals of Athletics

Fourteen students have enrolled in Coach Snavely's new course, P. E. 16. This course is the only one now being offered of great interest. It consists of instruction in all the branches of football, basketball and baseball. Both lectures and field work are covered in the course. The training will be of special benefit to the students for use in future coaching.
The Princeton Senior Council under the leadership of Ethel M. Henderson, president, has an important function to perform in the coming weeks. The gradual development of the honor system, dubbed "Statistics of college attendance and of college enrollments," the judgment of leading men in commerce and industry, the expression of confidence of the American people in their colleges, and the fact that the graduates of American colleges have led every scale of public and private life testify to what a man gains in going to college in his ability to get the best things out of life, to stand for the best things in life, to find his place and do his work.

LET'S GO, STATE!
Are you a dope, reader? Yes? Well, don't read this article, then.
Are you full of pep and game for a night of fun? Well, then, things are breaking your way, for the Hamilton College Gleeman Club is coming Friday, and its 850 members are the "Cranes of Wheat." Hamilton has never heard of precedent in this engagement here, and we want to make a splash that these won't forget. Hamilton men are full of the old ginger. So we'll have to step high, ride handsome, and listen. They're all young, single, and good looking, so it's up to you, girls. When Friday night comes, put on your best clothes and truck with the little fox "glamourously" on it, snap out of the question for the step of your life, but don't forget, if you aren't a drinker or a grand caddy, enjoy life, youth and music, stay home and go to bed.
What pep at State?

PRINCETON MORALS IN STUDENTS' CARE
Faculty Gives Senator Council Power to Dismiss Unworthy Undergraduates

SEQUEL TO HONOR SYSTEM
Cheating at Examinations Almost unheard of in the Last 20 Years

Princeton, Feb. 28—Princeton University this week took a long step toward the complete student control of the academic affairs of the undergraduates when the Faculty unanimously approved a resolution giving to the Senior Council, the student governing body selected by the undergraduates, power of dismissal from the university without a statement of cause to the Discipline Committee or any other body connected with the Faculty. The Princeton Senior Council under this ruling will have power to deal promptly and without reporting any evidence with any cases which in their estimation "tend to lower the moral tone and good name of Princeton.

President Hidden today issued a statement commending the new plan, and the resolution adopted by the Faculty on the subject requires a three-fourths majority of the Council vote to override a decision.

That the erring undergraduate will have his nose in his lap when he is brought to trial by the fifteen members of the Council is to be seen in the severe nature of the penalties which are always inflicted by the undergraduates. Dean McCallum, in commenting on the new rule, said:
Their attitude toward their fellows in a case like what they expect. They are, on the whole, more severe in their judgments than are the members of the Faculty, and are even more bloodthirsty than I." This drastic action is the result of the gradual development of the Princeton honor system, established more than eight years ago. Under this system all examinations are conducted without Faculty supervision, and the student carries the entire responsibility in each case.

The goal of the system is to educate the student to a sense of responsibility. This is a goal which is being attained, and the results are being recognized by the growing number of people marvelously impressed by the splendidly as lung as motor power developments in the academic affairs of the university. The Princeton Senior Council, under the leadership of Ethel M. Henderson, has an important function to perform in the coming weeks. The gradual development of the honor system, dubbed "Statistics of college attendance and of college enrollments," will be the subject of a major article in the coming issue of the "New Student."
The hope that lies nearest the happy man helps him to do more than he could do alone; he helps success, the healthy man helps others as much as three tails, the happy man helps success, the healthy man helps others as much as three tails.

DEPT. OF HYGIENE

It is too early to speak of the completed plans for the State College department but it is possible to say that the work in hygiene will be continued. The course will be modified under the new plan giving greater emphasis to the recreational and athletic work of the college students, both men and women, but less attention will be devoted to the training of Physical Education supervisors and special teachers.

The State will probably relax its efforts in physical education, with the certain contribution of courses in the high schools. This will be strictly a demand for high school teachers who can lead and direct the athletic and recreational work of high school students. It is this demand that State College will continue to meet.

Students who have elected majors or minors in physical education will complete these courses under the present catalogue requirements. The new outline of courses will provide for a wider range of recreational interest in one own student body. The Harvard and Yale students will be in many, by which every student is required to select some phase of athletic activity, appropriate to his particular interests. The physical education courses will be in football, soccer, cross-country, tennis, for autumn; basketball, hockey, skating, snowshoeing, for winter; baseball, track, field hockey, track, and swimming. Gymnastics may be elected in any or each of the seasons.

The indoor gymnasium work will be continued for freshmen and sophomores, with heavy gymnastics, and art-stile dancing for juniors and seniors. Some of the regular courses for Physical Education specialists will be withdrawn in 1921. The gymnasium staff will remain as the same while the medical staff will be reduced. The department will seek the beneficial recreation and the physical well-being of our student body, including such corrective work as may be possible; and it will enable State College graduates to go out into the school system as leaders of the school athletic and recreational activities, as well as of the classroom work.

The courses in Home Economics and Household Economics are in no way affected by the appropriation for 1921. The departments are doing excellent work in State College and will have increased rather than decreased support.
