Frankly, some State students seem to avoid contacts outside of their own Greek organizations, "talking to the chaperones" especially difficult. Perhaps they feel the damage to their social reputations far outweighs the help because they are afraid of them.

Our clubs, which should be pleasing to the eye, may never be more than a figure of speech, would inaugurate a necessary step in the development of the community, and perhaps help because they are afraid of them.

North of Hall Moved to Tahiti

To Escape the Dollar

A FEW YEARS before the United States entered the World War, James Norman Hall and Charles Nordhoff spent occasional vacations in the South American countries. This was not enough to make them famous, but living. Only Nordhoff wanted to come at the time about living. In part was to be the first manufacturing business in California. James Norman Hall was the only business man Nordhoff ever owned.

He was a part owner of the Harvard University machine and had gone to Belgium with England's Free Navy. The Germans called him the "Beau Geste," and practically exiled him. Hall was an American General Corps, but he had, not to dismiss or college, but had kept himself alive in Paris.

Hall then used his business experience in California to go with a batch of American college men as an ambulance driver in the French Army. He was back home at the time shortly after this Hall and Nordhoff visited the famous English Leagues. Thus, they met.

They became two friends, and raised much money in England. The German prisoners were turned to the enemy. The Germans asked the Crisp and Gales. Hall was shot down over French territory in 1918.

After the war was over, the Crisp and Gales returned to France. He had been a part owner himself and had owned a gambler and read a good deal. James Norman Hall, the former, came to Boston.

Historic Harvard Celebrates 3936

As Does All U.S. Higher Education

On Eve of Its 300th Birthday

May 30, 1936

Though the University of Virginia was the first to use the name "University" in the United States in 1819, the Harvard University, established by a charter from the General Court of Massachusetts in 1636, is the nation's oldest institution of higher education.

An early account of the college is available in the book "History of Harvard University" by Richard F. Burton. The college was founded on September 7, 1636, at Cambridge, Massachusetts.

The brick ovens which were used to cook food for Harvard students in 1765 were unearthed last month in the basement of Harvard College Library. The ovens were discovered during a renovation of the building.

The Overseers of Harvard University control the educational and financial policies of the institution. They are elected by the alumni and serve for six years.

The annual Harvard meeting of the Overseers was held on September 14, 1642. The meeting was attended by William, Lord the one thousand nine hundred and sixty-sixth, and the Tercentenary, 1936, and it is not a statue of John Harvard.

MAN-MADE lightning, erratic and destructive when untamed, but a valuable servant to humanity when controlled, is being put to work in the interests of science by Dr. Joseph S. Carroll and his assistants within the black walls of Stanford University's isolated High-Voltage Laboratory. There lightning is being used to develop devices for the protection of high voltage lines, ways and means of making conductors that will carry 287,000 volts a distance of 275 miles. COLLEGIATE DIGEST presents here unusual photos of lightning taken in the Harris J. Ryan High-Voltage Laboratory.

These Students Teach Themselves

A COLLEGE class which lasts four hours at one sitting sounds like a heavy dose. Yet the students majoring in psychology at Colgate University, to per cent of the upper classes, take their seminars in this half-day dosage every week of their last two years of college—and they do all of the teaching themselves, and like it! Under the direction of famed research man Dr. Donald A. Laird, the students prepare, lead, and present their own discussions—but he does have to do a bit of refereeing when the arguments get too hot. COLLEGIATE DIGEST presents here in "picture and paragraph" some of the unusual features of these seminars.

SPORTS LINE

Athy's are few; thus, we will offer only suggestions of diamond destinations. Our dear minor pet on the back for having his nose run over by H. I. have moved up to the number two position, thus being considered for the starting line-up. The coaches have been impressed with the performance of the freshmen, and it is likely that one of them may be moved up to the varsity. The team has been training hard and is expected to perform well in their upcoming games.

St. Michael's On Ridgedale Diamond

The baseball team will play St. Michael's at Ridgedale Park tomorrow at 3:00 o'clock in the final game of their season. This game concludes a series of eight games against some of the strongest teams in the league. St. Michael's, coached by T. R. Keogh, has been a tough competitor, and the game promises to be a thrilling one.

Errors were still a prominent feature in last week's game against the Barons. Some players had a difficult time adjusting to the fast pace of the game, but overall, the team's performance was satisfactory. The errors were due to a lack of communication and a failure to cover all positions on the field.

The doubles are clear. East, Michaels comes to town. Since Norwich has bowed out of the tournament, the final round will be played. The winners of the tournament will be announced shortly.

The freshman emerged victorious in the second game of the doubleheader, winning 3-2. Frenshman, John J. Hines, scored the decisive run, and pitchers, John J. Hines, were outstanding. The team is now in good shape for the remainder of the season.
