Thanks a Lot

And or read another exciting scenario of Albany Student Press for the next exciting Albany State campus. This is a quick reminder (I'm not complaining, I'm not completing) of the usual format. And to all those who helped in various ways, thanks.

And to the sports writers, who tried to convey sports events, Jody Hollander, Bob Carlin, Beth Wachter, Liz Mayers, Larry Boll, and Bob Sexton.

And to all staff, don't forget thanks as well. From yourself, Bill Berzin, Jeff Berger, Bob. A. Kupper, Tom Suppey, Bob Romano, and Dave Schrader.

Thanks to the entire writing staff: Horace Barrack, Susan Esposito, Ed Khani, Richard Appignani, Leonard Meier, Keith Murphy. Dick McCullough, Tom Thompson, Brenda Westhead, Mark Patten.

Thanks to the staff who gave us a library, the people who put the SPI in the right place, and the people in the town. They helped us very much. They are very much appreciated, and we're thankful for you. You're just as important as their work.

To keep the 300 words limit minimum, I'll pass this down to the people who put the SPI in the right place, and the people in the town. They helped us very much. They are very much appreciated, and we're thankful for you.

The people who made the SPI are the most important people in our lives. They helped us very much. They are very much appreciated, and we're thankful for you.

The SPI is a small town, and the people who make it up are the most important people in our lives. They helped us very much. They are very much appreciated, and we're thankful for you.

We've got the time, we've got the beer, for a peaceful moment and relax with a gloss of Miller. If you've never had the taste of Miller High Life. And if you're looking for some additional charm in your life, there's a list of charming gift suggestions to look over this list to remind you that Commencement Day is almost upon us.

Is your lumbar growing number? Has your sacrum been dislodged? Are you hating vertebrae?

To be sure, Franklin Pierce had a sweep second hand and Zachary Taylor chimed on the quarter-hour, but only Mr. Fillmore had a hand-blown jade figurine of Millard Fillmore with his lips curling in horizontal derision. "What arrant nonsense!"

A beer, in short, for all seasons—if, I say, he is a person who enjoys the taste of Miller, as witnessed by the brand's tagline: "King of Beers®."

Right now, beer—not for long anyhow—because if he is a person who enjoys a beer, in short, for all seasons, he will want to enjoy it now, while it is still fresh and delicious. So we recommend that you give him a gift that he can enjoy immediately.

If your friends are low on Miller, fill their bottles with Miller. If your friends are high on Miller, fill their glasses with Miller. Either way, they will appreciate it. After all, no one ever said that Miller is not worth the price.

Happy fourth birthday, Delta Sigma Theta—may your future be filled with joy and success. And remember, when life gives you lemons, make Miller lemonade.
HUSBANDS

by Tom Quigley

The evolution of the cinema has made the sex act of film long since familiar to audiences. No longer is the story-telling function of the film screen of primary importance. Now the viewer is more concerned with the way in which the sex act is depicted. The film is no longer an entertainment, but a medium for social criticism. Critics have dug into their text-false bravado and the dry heaves routine existence. In the course of
