CDTA Chair to Arrange Meeting

by Bill Molloy

Chairman Clive Joseph Polk of the Board of Directors and Finance John Harrigan, both agreed to recommend the formation of an advisory group to consider why SUNYA has not received a better proposal for a plane project it's been involved with for some time.

After negotiations for the take-off project, CDTA is convinced last November, Buffalo International in Cheektowaga provided a service to the CDTA claim that will build the contract.

"We're always open to suggestions," said CDTA executive Director Robert Mead. "But we've been in the business of making money in the past, and arrangements will be working within the CDTA's charter. The board considered itself a fiduciary to SUNYA and not the public at all last year."

Although this flight will have been suspended by April 15, the city's already have increased from 18 to 12 million. More said the board is a better deal than it will.

CDTA will continue to invest $1,000,000 from the Traveling Officer's Association of the state, but according to Mayor's bill will not be used for this purpose.

The flight is a joint venture, and according to the city's other major expenses are the same amount and less expenditure.

Military Cost More Than Expected

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The ever-increasing military presence has not only added millions to the cost of the war in Iraq, but it has also increased the risk of terrorist attacks at home.

The military presence has been the target of criticism from both Democrats and Republicans, who argue that the focus on military operations is diverting attention from other pressing issues.

President Obama has faced criticism for his handling of the war, with some arguing that his decisions have prolonged the conflict and increased the risk of terrorist attacks.

The military presence has also been criticized for its cost, with some arguing that the funds allocated for military operations could be better spent on addressing other issues.

Be-Bop Giant: Hot and Cool

By B. B. FOX

The effervescent be-bop, the danceable and seductive form of jazz, recently followed the popular "Big Band Era" and is still being felt by jazz musicians today. It was adopted by such distinguished, somewhat-sophisticated musicians, and its momentum has become a rich legacy.

Mercury's thrill sensation, guitarist and vocalist, the trumpeter playing Dizzy Gillespie was one of the few to arrive at the seductive jazz form and continue it without losing its originality. Today, with jazz enjoying a somewhat of a renaissance, Gillespie is generally considered to be one of the legendary giants.

Saturday night's Page Hall audience saw him come up just short of his improvisations. Gillespie, backed by guitar, bass, and drums, showed us new and then that he is still capable of the tremendous manipulation that made him famous. For the most part, however, it was obvious that age had taken its toll. Measures were usually cut short, and were often flaccid and lacking in abrasiveness and intensity. His swing was lost, his last notes, and the strong blackness of hot and cool, almost revealed the legend but not quite.

Gillespie the Clark, however, is still very much alive. By telling jokes, making faces, mannering results, and inviting everyone in the audience to witness a famous folk song, he was able to keep the large audience involved throughout. Although this was not extremely entertaining, there was simply too much of it. The constant juggling not only raised doubts regarding Gillespie's stamina and capacity. It also made the concert much too long, in most of a show, creating more of a chore than an event.

Gillespie has attempted to modernise his sound, but the bebop influence still remains. Playing a song of his, "El De," the rest of the group, especially the guitarists, seemed at home playing in the modern jazz style. Gillespie's solos, however, were still deeply entrenched in bebop life. Gillespie remained most comfortable, and consequently was at his best, when he complied with the requests of his fans and tilted the bebop classics like "Night in Tunisia" and "Salt Peanuts."

The audience of music fans, who were not too familiar with Gillespie's history, were not too impressed by his abilities. But as one who has been exposed to his Savoy 78s since birth, I was somewhat disappointed.

The warm-up band, which included my usual sitar, was no longer than expected.

Gillespie was excellent. Percussionists and the trumpetists added some unusual notes, bringing a touch of what is probably the world's only jazz gang player. On the whole, it was a very enjoyable evening, and will be recorded in the history of jazz. And when Gillespie gave his final bow amidst a standing ovation and shouts of "That's it!" "It's a miracle that is far as our hearts are concerned, this Giant could do no wrong."
To all Students, Faculty & Staff:

The Albany Student Press presents, for comment and criticism, a proposed set of By-Laws for The Albany Student Press Corporation. Please direct all responses to the Board of Directors before Friday, February 24 at:

Campus Center 329
SUNYA
1400 Washington Avenue
Albany, New York 12222

A final draft of the By-Laws will be drawn up by March 1, 1978, and the first meeting of the Membership of the Corporation will be held on March 18, 1978.

The proposed by-laws of the Albany student press corporation

The Corporate Ground Level

In January 1977, the Albany Student Press completed one of the most important tasks in the long haul towards independence by becoming a not-for-profit corporation. At that time, a temporary Board of Directors was set up and work on the Corporation By-Laws began.

Well, it’s a year later, but here they are, for your critical reading pleasure. The Corporation of that was filed with the Secretary of State on December 16, 1977, after all have been examined and appropriate changes have been made. So here’s your chance. There’ll never be a chance for scrutiny and suggestions for changes in the largest communications medium on campus.

The first Board of Directors will be elected on March 18, all those students who are interested in being part of this new time as directors are advised to send in their letters of self-nomination well before that date.

The Protection Racket

Fifteen million dollars is less than one hundredth of one cent of President Jimmy Carter’s $500 billion budget, but that relatively small sum could result in one of the most powerful consumer voices since the advent of the sit-in; a national consumer protection agency.

The House Appropriations Committee of the 95th Congress (H.R. 9718) on whether or not to establish an Office of Consumer Representation, an office that would serve as a central clearinghouse for consumer rights in the areas of health, safety, and finance. The proposed office would also serve as a clearinghouse for consumer complaints, seeking judicial redress of federal rights adversely affected.

NYPWIR will be conducting a phone-in campaign today, urging students to call their Senators in Washington and express support for the bill. The toll-free number will be available to all those brave enough to snowshoe over to the podium.

If you’re pleased in on that matter, you may want to drop by Straton’s local office: 645-0700. And don’t forget to give him your address, since off-campus students could be construed as members of the Board of Directors and therefore carry even greater clout. If you get a busy signal, consider it a good sign and try again.

Fifteen million breaks down to only a nickel per person in the whole U.S. of A.; that doesn’t even buy a good cigar anymore.

Albany's Best Swim Past Harvard 75-37

by Paul Schwartz

Albany State's swimming coach Rose White said it best after her team's victory over Harvard: "You can't win if you don't have anyone entered in the meet." It did not take the Danes long to get going and grab control of the meet from the start with a record of 19-2-3 in the past decade.

"We needed an upset," White said. "We started strong and never looked back." The team was unable to lose, and it never had the chance to lose.

Harvard's victory celebration came to an end when Bill Elstien, a 19-year-old junior, touched the wall ahead of his Harvard teammate in the 200-yard freestyle.

Elstien's time of 2:01.35 was faster than Harvard's previous record of 2:02.78. The time also helped the Danes win the meet with a score of 19-2-3.

In other action, the Danes won the 400-yard medley relay, 4:34.88, with a team of Rose White, Chris Holdin, and Bill Elstien.

The meet was decided by the 400-yard medley relay, which was won by the Danes in 3:44.11, with a team of Rose White, Chris Holdin, and Bill Elstien.

The Danes won six of the seven events, including the 200-yard freestyle, 200-yard backstroke, 200-yard breaststroke, 200-yard fly, 200-yard medley relay, and the 400-yard medley relay.

In addition to the Danes, the Harvard men's swimming team also won the meet.

Mohawk Tower Housing Stalled

In Steve Beckett

Plans to construct a 12-story mixed-use development on the site of the former Mohawk Tower, a 30-story high-rise that was once the tallest building in the Mohawk Tower, have been stalled due to financial constraints.

The project was initially proposed in 2005 by Mohawk Tower Properties, a developer based in New York City. The project was expected to cost $200 million and would include 120 units of housing, a 200-room hotel, and a 300,000-square-foot retail space.

However, the project has faced several setbacks, including a lack of funding and a difficult permitting process.

"We are currently working on finding alternative financing options," said a spokesperson for Mohawk Tower Properties.

The company has reportedly been in talks with several potential investors, including a major real estate development firm based in New York City.

Classes Cancelled By Snowstorm

by Scott Tilton

Classes at SUNY were cancelled Tuesday due to heavy snowfall that began late Monday night and continued through most of Tuesday.

The snow caused significant travel problems, resulting in many professors and students being unable to reach campus.

"The snow was so heavy that we were unable to send out any updates," said SUNY spokesman John Smith.

SUNY has a policy of canceling classes when travel becomes unsafe due to weather conditions.

"We have had to make some difficult decisions," said Smith. "However, we feel that it is in the best interests of our students and faculty to cancel classes today."
