Suggestions Please

Probably one of the biggest problems facing a college student is the lack of open communication to the administration of the school. Students are either afraid to ask for help or they do not have the time or interest in doing so. This week our feature took a step in solving this problem by providing a forum for students to express their opinions and ideas. Most students are either too busy or too lazy to take the time to direct their suggestions. This is where we can help as student representatives. We will listen to your suggestions, they will be directed, and you will be able to express your opinions. The staff will work to take the suggestions and develop them into plans that will help our school.

Can We Teach What We Are Not Taught?

The State College at Albany presently has five principal undergraduate schools: the school of liberal education and the school of liberal arts. Within the school of secondary education is one department where attempts are being made to provide necessary knowledge for the student who will teach in the high school. Seniors in the secondary education major are given an opportunity to learn about the purposes, functions, and structure of high school students they will teach be given more opportunity to learn about these topics.

The high school students that we will teach will be given an opportunity to learn about these topics. It is true that we are not taught about these topics in college. However, the high school students that we teach will be given an opportunity to learn about these topics.
