Hoopsters Suffer 71-70 Setback to Geneseo

Drop First Contest In SUNYAC Play; Opposite Terrific Tomorrow Night

By Edie Ercmen

Albany's basketball team suffered its first defeat of the season yesterday afternoon when the Hawks fell to Geneseo State, 71-70, in its home opener.

Although the Hawks dominated the first half, with a lead of 11 points after the opening minutes of play, they suffered their first point drought in the second half, with a run of no scored baskets for the team for nearly 10 minutes. This allowed Geneseo to close the gap and take over the lead with just over five minutes left in the game.

Geneseo's team played some great defense against Albany's high-scoring offense, holding the Hawks to 39% shooting from the field and only allowing them to score 37 points in the first half.

Despite their losses, the Hawks showed some promise in their new players and coach, and will likely continue to improve as the season progresses.

The game was played at the Findley Gymnasium and was attended by a sold-out crowd of 1,200 spectators.

Referee Plays Part In JV Cager's Defeat

By Paul Schwoch

Albany's junior varsity basketball team suffered its first loss of the season yesterday afternoon when MTSU's junior varsity team defeated the Hawks, 71-70, in a nail-biter of a game.

The referee, who had the difficult task of calling fouls and keeping the game moving, played an important part in the outcome of the game. He called a technical foul on a MTSU player in the final minute of the game, which helped swing the tide in favor of the Hawks.

The referee's decision to call the technical foul on MTSU's player will be reviewed by the NCAA to ensure that similar situations are handled consistently in the future.

The game was played at the Findley Gymnasium and was attended by a sold-out crowd of 1,200 spectators.

SUNY GETS MIXED NEWS FROM NYS Budget Proposal

By M. J. Hausner

The State University of New York (SUNY) Board of Trustees yesterday approved a $7.6 billion budget for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1978. The budget includes an increase in tuition, and other fees.

The Board of Trustees also approved a new policy on student conduct, which includes a provision for the suspension of students who violate the policy.

The policy goes into effect immediately, and students who violate the policy will face disciplinary action, which may include suspension or expulsion.

Women Swimmers End Season

By Bob Page

Our swimming season ended last weekend with a win over Fredonia and a loss to Buffalo State.

Fredonia was the stronger team, and they won both meets. We lost our last meet of the season to Fredonia, but we had a strong showing against Buffalo State.

Fredonia won both meets, with a score of 205-71. They had a strong team performance, with several swimmers setting new personal records.

Our season was a success, and we are looking forward to next season. We will continue to work hard and improve our skills.
SA Legal Rep Fails Bar Exam

by Steve Brodsky

A former administrative task force member has decided that he has failed the South African Legal Services Board’s Bar Exam. Last month, the task force, which was tasked with evaluating the South African Bar’s conduct, submitted its findings to President Jacob Zuma. The report concluded that the task force had been "completely ineffective" and that there was "no immediate hope" for the task force to "return to its original mandate." The board has responded by announcing that it will renew the task force’s mandate. The task force has been tasked with investigating the conduct of the South African Bar, which has been under scrutiny for years. The task force’s findings have been met with mixed reactions, with some calling for the task force to be dissolved and others calling for it to be continued. The task force is expected to release its final report in the coming weeks.

Chairman Lissay Mayhorse Fails To Pass Bar Exam

by Matt C. Miller

SA Legal Representative, Juan Lissay, failed the bar exam last month that he did not pass the South African Bar Exam, had his offer of registration revoked by the official body. The official body stated that Lissay did not meet the minimum requirements for registration. It is understood that Lissay had been working on the bar exam for some time, but that he was not prepared to take the exam at the time it was administered. He is currently in discussions with the official body to determine the next steps.

WCDB Still Not a Sound Operation

by Stuart Vincent

The Western Cape Development Board (WCDB) has failed to meet its target of creating 10,000 new jobs in the province by the end of the year. The WCDB was established in 2009 with the aim of creating 20,000 new jobs by 2012. However, the board has failed to meet its target and has only created 4,000 new jobs. The board has been accused of mismanagement and corruption. The provincial government has sought to intervene and has appointed a new board to oversee the WCDB.

Downtown Security May Improve

by Mike Pincus

A new plan to improve security downtown is being developed and could be implemented in about two months according to a DMPA, Department of Public Safety Director, John Williams. The plan involves increasing the number of police officers on patrol, increasing the number of security cameras, and increasing the number of security guards. The plan is expected to cost $7 million and is expected to be funded through a combination of government and private sources. The plan is expected to be implemented in phases, with the first phase expected to be in place by the end of the year.

Draper Campus Gym Open To SUNYA Community

by Mike Doach

The Page Hall gym on the Draper Campus is open for the SUNYA community, although the university has not provided funds for superior programs, according to Admissions Assistant Rick Lue.

The gym is open to all, but most of the equipment and machines are out of order. The gym is open for students to use as they please, according to Lue.

SUNYA has provided the gym with equipment, a telephone, and has agreed to pay electricity expenses.

A proposal for a downtown university gym was presented last February by Lue and associates to a special administrative committee resulting in an experimental program last spring. Then the proposal was presented again to the committee and administration. A new schedule was presented and has begun this week.

The gym had originally been used by SUNYA students and was constructed in 1971.

There is no gym work at the school affiliated with the university.

Last year the high school program was phased out and the gym became empty.

The gym provides an opportunity for students to exercise on a needed recreational facility.

However, the gym is very small and not enough for the large number of people who own the gym, said Lue.

The facility is made up of two basketball courts and will be used for full court, regular games, square court, pick-up games, and volleyball matches.

The facility is open from 6:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. Monday through Thursday and from 12:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Sunday. The hours may fluctuate depending on the availability of volunteer supervisors. SUNYA ID cards must be presented for admission.

There are two men's basketball teams and one women's team playing in the gym. The women's team is expected to win the first game and has already begun this week.

The team was formed by students who have returned this semester, Lue said.

JEALOUS WAYS
A University of Maryland researcher says his study of 130 young couples has uncovered that a sizable percentage of people have jealous problems with husbands.

Psychologist Gregory White told the American Psychological Association that he polled 130 Rockeyville, California, couples because he thought they would be more open and flared towards the idea of being jealous, and therefore, there would be less inflated jealousy.

While most studies of "romantic jealousy" is often caused by an inability to control their partner in a relationship, he said that the results may be even more dramatically involved in a relationship is much more likely to get married, the more last result of his study was that jealousy can be a problem.

Fifty Ways to Get Your Landlord

New York law at last seven major legal devices created by the Legislature, each designed to in some way to alleviate substandard housing. The law is: 1. Landlord and Tenant. This process begins with the landlord serving the tenant with notice to quit. If the tenant fails to vacate the premises within the time set forth in the notice, a restraining order may be issued by a judge ordering the tenant to vacate. If such order is not obeyed, the landlord may file a suit for possession of the premises.

2. Tenant’s rights. The tenant is entitled to: a) a safe and habitable dwelling; b) prompt and reasonable repairs; c) reasonable security of occupancy; d) protection against discrimination and harassment; e) protection against unlawful detainer; f) rights to be free from illegal eviction; g) the right to redress by civil action against the landlord.

3. Eviction proceedings. The tenant may be served with a writ of possession, signed by the Supreme Court, in the county where the property is located, commanding the landlord to deliver possession of the premises to the tenant named in the writ. If the landlord fails to comply, the tenant may apply to the Supreme Court for an order of possession.

4. Enforcement of the law. The Director of the Division of Housing and Community Renewal in New York City is empowered to take action against any landlord who violates the provisions of the law. The Division may issue a citation, impose a fine, or seek injunctions to enjoin the landlord from violating the law.

5. Impact. Over the years, these laws have helped many tenants to obtain their rights and improve the condition of their housing.

SUNNAM DAEYDREAM

By IRENE FIRMAT
And MEG ROLAND

“Nautilas invites you to pump up!” Nobody could have laughed harder at that than we did. Working on the advertising staff of the ASP we’ve seen some funny ads in our time but none was the subject of more ridicule and abuse that the Nautilas ad, by the British Charles Atlas. Charles, with muscle for days, was a great source of entertainment for the advertising staff.

Further still, was when one of the advertising schemers came in and asked if we would like to visit and write an article about Nautilas and body conditioning techniques.

Now there are some inherently hilarious aspects in this proposition not the least of which is that neither of us had ever attempted to write anything more than a trivia piece, never mind an article for the ASP. Nor, although we did participate in an occasional game of squash, lifting weights was not exactly our idea of having a good time. Taking a look, we both felt, for example, always seemed like a much more appealing way of conditioning our bodies. Having a good shape was an appealing idea and had definite advantages, but looking like a muscle-bound bozo was not exactly our idea of the feminine mystique.

And yet, partly as a lark and partly to satisfy our curiosity, we decided to give it a shot.

Arrived with our various expectations and preconceptions regarding body conditioning, we trimly walked into Nautilas. Expecting bodybuilding, we were quite taken back by the clean, comfortable atmosphere that greeted us. Taking a look around our mouths dropped open in amazement. We hadn’t expected anything of the sort.

The other hand, it wasn’t a health spa atmosphere with soft, over-weight, middle-aged clientele complaining about their bodies and thinking that by sitting in whirlpools and saunas they are going to lose weight. The people at Nautilas were obviously serious about body conditioning, which quite frankly was more than a little intimidating to newcomers like us.

Although a bit intimidated, we did begin to realize that we had confounded body building with weight lifting. The two disciplines have entirely different purposes: the body builder aims at developing a perfectly proportioned physique; it weights lifts on the other hand, serves to build as much weight as possible and never treats how his body looks. Most lifters—can you recall those 400 pounds in the Olympics sport paragraph no builder would ever carry around.

Joe Ross, owner of Nautilas, was helping someone with their workout and so while we waited we had a chance to talk and take stock of where our real decision had brought us. Panic began to set in as we began more and more to sum the situation from the outside as we felt. It had all seemed very promising, the ads of the ASP, but our hormonal levels were quickly fading. The thought that people were not interested in our mind was not the norm, but rather how the hell could we get out of this situation?

We told ourselves that we had to stay, not only for a dedication to body conditioning, but also for the article we had agreed to write. We were sure we could write our way out of it.

Having made our decision we went into the dressing room and came out ready to face the machines. What a shock! For the first time, we couldn’t help but notice how our bodies looked. How was it going to feel getting those exercises done?

Each person goes through a program individually designed, suited to his/her ability and that one is pushed beyond their capabilities.

Answering our second biggest fear, they assured us that weight training would not produce large, unnatural muscle masses on the body. The truth of the matter is that it is just not physically possible for women to build large masses. Since women lack testosterone, they don’t develop real bulk or muscle definition no matter how much they train with weights, but they could tone their muscles, tighten fig, and gain the kind of strength that helps ward off back injuries and pulls ligaments. Ross, who was a physical education instructor at the University of Massachusetts and a physical education instructor in the Air Force, is aware of the importance of surrounding body building.

As Ross took us through the various machines explaining the function and purpose of each one, we slowly began to realize that it wasn’t as difficult as we had thought. The machines can be easily adjusted to each individual’s capabilities. The same machine used by a 250 pound football player can be changed to suit the needs of a 130 pound woman enabling both to get the maximum benefit out of a machine requiring series of growth.

A study made at West Point found that subjects trained on the Nautilas machines for six weeks increased their flexibility, speed and endurance. Their overall strength was increased by an average of 55 per cent.

Another important asset of Nautilas Total Conditioning is that it improves cardiovascular ability. Proper training on the machines will increase your lung and heart capacity and the benefits can be comparable to jogging several miles a day.

At the end of our workout we realized that we had had a lot of misconceptions about Nautilas and body conditioning. Much to our amazement, we had actually liked working out on the machines and more amazing still was the fact that we had both signed up for a three month membership. This was due to the fact that we not only felt uncomfortable in the Nautilas atmosphere. If anything, we thought we should make an effort to like it and at ease. A brand new locker room has been built for women – a sign of the increasing number of women arriving at Nautilas.

Executive Budget's Impact On SUNYA

The Budget in Brief

After a week of close examination, Governor Carey's budget recommendation for SUNY has been cautiously termed "positive" by university administration. While the budget has yet to be approved by the State Legislature, some plan for dividing the spoils and plugging the holes have already been discussed. The big prize was the addition of 12 faculty and three support positions. Of the ten deleted positions, only four involve hired personnel, the remaining six being vacant.

The big cuts came in three areas. An Institute on the Environment, started last year with Federal funds, was cut completely. Five vacant non-teaching positions, four of them left by faculty professionals, were cut. If the university also did not receive a general price increase adjustment except for utility costs, the lack of funds to meet rising costs is expected to be the hardest to absorb.

On a SUNY-wide basis, the health insurance was included in the budget on Carey's reasoning that if the Legislature puts it in the budget last year, it's up to them to take it out. While the college fee is now covered by TAP, the limit was raised from $1,500 to $1,800 per year, a benefit that only the private colleges can take advantage of. An alternative proposal is now in legislative committees that would give a cross the board 20 per cent increase to all or most recipients, regardless of whether or not they attended public or private institutions.

No Price Adjustment

One area that has generated deep concern among members of the SUNYA union is the lack of provision for price increases beyond meeting the rate in utility costs.

By JONATHAN BUDGEN

Library Loses Four

While the Executive Budget provides for a $75,000 increase in library materials, four non-teaching positions presently vacant in the library have been cut.

"There seems to have been a kind of assumption that just because we are borrowing money," said SUNYA President for Academic Affairs David Martin. "This budget was not going to have to absorb those cuts. In a sense, the library is a victim of the cuts that have been made..." Martin was quick to stress that the positions are presently vacant.

Reading Between the Cars

By MIKE PEARLMAN

"Ronal! Hello! Hey, what the hell is wrong with you? If you wanna ride a bike, go to the godamned park!
"You bashed it. You could have killed yourself!"

"Join! Christ, you can't even walk on the floor anymore!"

"You might as well be in a coma. Hey, maybe make money doing that and you're going joy riding. I have a good mind to get you out of here!"

These are just a few of the remarks one hears from people who don't know or don't understand what it is to be an "Artful Dodger." I'm not speaking about the self-published book in which the perspective young urban street whoop-up who appears in Oliver Twist is a pretty shrewd and smooth-walking street of the London unspoken world. I'm speaking about the bicycle messenger of the 70's who travels his way across Manhattan to earn his daily living.

There are three main ingredients necessary to being an "Artful Dodger." One must have strong legs and a good physical shape, quick, deft reflexes and good eyesight, and most of all, a lot of guts (or moxie, whatever you prefer). Incidentally, a bicycle is also helpful.

I first learned of the unusual situation when a fellow mentioned something at the supper table about Vaib riding bicycles around the city with bags on their backs delivering packages.

"I just wanted to share a joke or two with you. I was on my way into the library, when I met one of the bike messengers, and I was just like, 'Hey, how do you do that?' And he said, 'Well, I got a license and I've been doing it for a while now.' And I thought, 'Wow, that's really cool.'"

"I'm sure you can think of lots of other jobs, like taxi drivers or delivery men. It's not for everyone, but it's definitely fun!"

Quark, Strange and Chance Hawkwind
By ALAN ALPER
The album Quark, Strange and Chance by Hawkwind is an interesting attempt by the group to produce a crypto-ambient programme LP. Unfortunately, their attempt is plagued by the most typical problem rock music encounters: it becomes monotonous.

The group consists of Dave Brock on guitar and synthesizer, Robert Calvert, trumpet and lead vocals, Simon House on keyboards and vocals, Adrian Powell on bass, and Simon King on percussion. The group's membership is adequate considering that their music is recorded in basic hand drum.

Although their music can be simply categorized as rock, Hawkwind attempts to experiment what is possible with synthesizers and pre-recorded sound effects. This is true in going beyond the musical format sound, but not one that can be called innovative or progressive. In fact, the trend is to be played-out! Because of their extensive use of synthesizers, the end result of this album is an LP faced with eerie sounds which record the typical rock chord progressions. I feel that the most interesting aspect of this album is the group's attempt to introduce more of the rhythm to the listener's ear. Calvert details this in being lyrics at our technology-laden society, commenting about the "Indian blase" that we 존재s and "viciously, when the final rhythm will be molecular interacted." Although the album'slef defined as a concept album, there is an attempt to extend beyond the standard album and in time leaves the listener continued.

The musical themes are redundant and unrecognizable from each other. Because of the heavy use of synthesizers and sound effects the album appears rather unimaginative, yet it subtly broods in the theme of progressive music. Quark, Strange and Chance is a difficult

Although the music has not been released as yet, Hawkwind is expected to release a new album in the near future. In the meantime, the group has been working on a new project, "The Great Oak of the West." The album is expected to be released in the fall of this year. The album's theme is centered around the natural beauty of the Western United States. It features songs that celebrate the majesty of the mountains, the deserts, and the oceans. The group has collaborated with local musicians and athletes to create a truly unique and captivating musical experience. The album is set to be released in both vinyl and digital formats, and is expected to be a hit among fans of progressive rock. Stay tuned for more updates on this exciting new project from Hawkwind.

By BENJAMIN SCHOFER
I have been a fan of Hawkwind for a long time, and their music has always been a source of inspiration for me. The newest album, "The Great Oak of the West," is no exception. The band's signature blend of rock and ambient music is on full display, with catchy melodies and intricate arrangements. The lyrics are thought-provoking and introspective, and the overall sound is both familiar and fresh. I highly recommend this album to anyone who is a fan of Hawkwind or of progressive rock in general. It is a testament to the band's creativity and talent, and I look forward to hearing more from them in the future.

NEW YORK (AP) — Vida Blue, the principal in the Vida Blue case, who is one of the13 persons who was convicted. Blue was convicted on 11 counts, including racketeering, tax evasion, and conspiracy. Blue was sentenced to 12 years in prison and was ordered to pay a fine of $500,000. The case was a major blow to the Blue rule, which had been in effect since 1975. The Blue rule had been criticized for being too lenient and for allowing too much leeway for individuals to make personal decisions that could harm the country. The Blue case was seen as a turning point in the history of the rule, and it led to a number of changes in the way the rule was enforced. The case also had a significant impact on the Blue company, which was forced to sell off some of its assets to pay for the fine and to cover the costs of the trial.

Field Of Presidential Candidates Reduced

by Robin Smith

The number of candidates being considered for the position of SUNY President has been narrowed to about 35, according to University Search Committee Chairman James V. Spann.

The position was last held by Ernest Pellegrini when SUNY was President of the University of Kansas during the 1970s. The faculty and student body decided to return to the University of Kansas because of an academic scandal.

"We have made the initial evaluation of the candidates. We are trying to make sure we have a number of candidates to be qualified," said Spann.

"The next step will be a number of other qualified candidates," said Spann. "We will select a small number to come to SUNY for interviews." The Committee is meeting regularly, but has not established a date for a final decision on one candidate.
