A Song And Us

There is a song by the Sixties group Young Marble Giants that goes, 'You have to be careful, you have to be careful to be safe, be safe... be careful.' It's a song that speaks to the importance of being mindful of the situations and actions that we find ourselves in.

Today, I want to talk about the idea of brotherhood. It's a concept that's often discussed in the context of college life. It's about the bonds that are formed between students, faculty, and administration.

Brotherhood Week, sponsored by the National Catholic Sorority of Christian Women, began last week. The dates set by the committee include February 9th through 17th. Every time you hear the word 'brotherhood,' you might think of something related to the armed forces. But brotherhood is not the matter of a week or a year; it is the matter of a life.

This is where we come in, for we can add something unique to the overall concept of brotherhood. We can continue to build up the attitude of respect for all individuals. There is no reason to hate or to fear because of color and religious belief and find that basic same fort by each individual. There are no rules or outmen, then we can teach brotherhood.

Incidentally, no one knows why, but sure would save time and mailbox madness. The following days were considerably better, as students talked about the three week run, instead of the customary two week engagement. Only 350 tickets were sold for the Stooges opening night, but they were sold out the second night. The Stooges on Saturday night were packed.

This is where we come in, for we can aid brotherhood. We can influence the students, just as the Stooges did. When the door opened, the audience was packed, ready to see the Stooges perform. The audience was electric, and the Stooges delivered.

The Stooges were the headliners of the day, but the other acts were not to be missed. The Almost Dead, a local band, performed a set of covers that had the audience on their feet. The Halfway House, a local rock band, performed a set of originals that had the audience singing along.

The day progressed, and Girard still remained. After they had passed, he said, ‘I love this town. This is where we come in, for we can add something unique to the overall concept of brotherhood. We can continue to build up the attitude of respect for all individuals. There is no reason to hate or to fear because of color and religious belief and find that basic same fort by each individual. There are no rules or outmen, then we can teach brotherhood.
