Dropping the Deferment?

by Earl W. McCullough

In the United States, the Selective Service System is responsible for selecting and classifying men aged 18 to 26 for military service. Each year, it conducts a draft lottery to determine which men will be drafted. The lottery is based on a random selection of birthdates, with those born on December 24, 1951, having the highest probability of being drafted. Those born on December 25, 1951, have the lowest probability.

The lottery is held to ensure that the selection process is fair and unbiased. It is conducted by the Selective Service System, which is an agency of the U.S. government. The lottery is conducted on the 1st of the month of December, and the results are announced on the same day. The lottery is held to ensure that the selection process is fair and unbiased. 4 SUNYA Students Plan To Restore Mt. Marcy

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1971
ALBANY STUDENT PRESS

by Glenn and Nancy

Four SUNYA students, Mark Zinger, Gary Swall, Larry Burke, and Bill Hellow were working on Mt. Marcy this fall and were drawn to the idea of cleaning up the area. They decided to take some leadership and initiate the long overdue destruction of the "environmental mess" area around the mountaintop.

The project started in mid-October, and funds were provided by a small college endowment as an alternative to typical off-campus housing. President Benezet indicated that since many students are concerned with the environment, the college would consider the project. The President was pleased that the students had been able to come up with an environmentally sound solution.

Senia To Take ASP In New Directions

Senia has been elected Editor-in-Chief of the ASP for this year, a position that he has held for a number of years. In his new role, Senia hopes to continue the ASP's tradition of excellence.

New expressions of political and social consciousness through the analyzing of complex issues. He believes that an important part of Senia's leadership will be to guide the ASP in new directions.

Scaring Reports Critical Lack Of Off-Campus Housing

Scaring reports critical lack of off-campus housing.

"There are other alternatives that could be considered to meet the increasing student need," Senia said. "The possibility of utilizing other areas of the campus that are currently underutilized, or the establishment of a new housing complex, should be explored."

Special to the ASP

"It was coming to me with a speed way faster than a rocket and had no change direction at 30 feet and disappeared in seconds into the night," said John Chaves, the youth who was the first to see the flying saucers. He was sitting in his car near the airport when he noticed a bright light in the sky. The light started to move slowly and then took off at an incredible speed. Chaves was able to follow the object for about three minutes before it disappeared from sight.

The object was seen by several other people in the area, including some who were flying in planes. The object appeared to be a small, disc-shaped craft with a bright light at its center. It was estimated to be about 10 feet in diameter.

The object was not detected by any military or government agencies. The Air Force is known to have a special team that investigates such sightings, but none have been reported in this case.

Women Strike

Early last week a group of students from the University of California, Berkeley, staged a sit-in at the Administration building to protest the administration's refusal to allow a gynecologist to have office space at the university. The students wanted the university to allow a gynecologist to have office space at the university.

The students, men and women, took the initiative to sit in at the president's office to express their concerns. The sit-in lasted for two days and ended with the administration agreeing to allow a gynecologist to have office space at the university.

End the Tax

One of the greatest injustices perpetrated on our society is the way in which the Federal government forces people to pay to use the telephone, whether they want to or not. The so-called "telephone tax," which is actually a mandatory tax, has been put into law by the government in order to fund their operations. This tax is levied on all telephone services, including cellular phones and landline services, and is paid by everyone who uses the phone, whether they are a student, a business owner, or a regular person.

The tax is a source of income for the government, and it is used to fund various programs and services. However, it is a regressive tax, meaning that it takes a larger percentage of income from lower-income individuals than it does from higher-income individuals. This is because lower-income individuals typically spend a larger percentage of their income on basic necessities like food, housing, and utilities, which is where the telephone tax comes into play.

In addition to being regressive, the telephone tax is also unpopular with the public. There have been numerous protests and petitions calling for its repeal, and many people feel that it is an unfair burden on them. Despite this, the tax continues to be enforced, and the money it generates is used to fund various programs and services.

Getting The Shaft

The fact that the tax is so unpopular, and that it is so regressive, makes it all the more unfortunate that it is still in place. The money it generates could be better spent on other things, and the burden it imposes on lower-income individuals is unjustified. It is time for the government to consider repealing the telephone tax, and finding a better way to fund its operations.

The Residential Beware

As the resident students of this university, we are left to wonder what will happen to our phone service if the tax is repealed. Will our service be disrupted? Will our rates increase? We are unsure, but we do know that the tax imposes a burden on us, and we believe that it is unfair. We urge the government to consider our concerns, and to work towards finding a solution that is fair and just for all.

Ethnic Slur

In a recent story about Central Council and registration, the ASP suddenly printed the name of the student in question, Ms. Sandy Lund. This is in keeping with your mission of being a community in which people feel safe to express themselves, and we hope that you will continue to support this principle.

Law enforcement officers are investigating a recent incident in which a student was verbally abused by another student. The incident occurred during a gathering of students at the ASP building. The accused student is alleged to have used racially charged language in the conversation. The incident is being investigated by the University Police Department and the Office of Institutional Equity.

The Student Press is committed to providing a safe and inclusive environment for all students. We encourage all students to report any incidents of discrimination or harassment so that we can work together to ensure that our community remains a place where everyone feels safe and respected.
"Expand Your Auditory Awareness"

by Linda Moul

Tonight in LC 24 at 8 p.m. Media Arts, a division of Monday's Educational Communication Center, will present Tony Schwartz, a documentary, series writer, and speaker, who has been called the greatest sound artist in the world. By telephone hook-up from the presentation center, Schwartz will present a telephone presentation of a slide show. Schwartz created the telephone presentation of 1948, specifically working on the auditory life of New York City. He has since produced numerous records and written books on the sounds made by people and machines. He will present his slide show tonight at 8:00 in LC 24.

Schwartz has presented with his slide show throughout the world, and it's worked with Marshall McLuhan at Fordham as well as many other universities. Tonight's presentation will include some slides, stereo sound, and soundscapes with contemporary music. Come to LC 24 tonight and expand your auditory awareness with Tony Schwartz.

Many businessmen see the South Mall as taking customers out of the downtown area by forcing downtown businesses to remain open longer. They fear that the office workers will not help to bolster or make sales up for the lost sales.

For Albany—Those Were The Days

Second only in size to downtown Albany are the South Mall on Broadway and to Eighth Street in Clifton Park. The mall brought a new era of shopping to the downtown area by tearing down housing to construct offices. They fear that the office workers will not help to bolster or make sales up for the lost sales.

Flah's is one of the most recent additions to the downtown area. Located in the newly constructed Twin Tower Building, it is the only large chain store remaining downtown.

Wednesday night the Albany Great Danes pulled even against Pittsburgh State. Pittsburgh was coming up on the short end of a Wednesday night the Albany State basketball team opened its regular season at home against the Pittsburgh State team, scoring a 70-58 victory. The Danes had been off for nine days. Pittsburgh State was at home and had been off for five. The Danes were 2-0 and the Panthers were 1-1.

In the second half, Albany reverted back to their style of play as they established their offensive and defensive systems. Pittsburgh State had to catch up with the Danes' defense and tried to match them in points, but were unable to do so.

The key to the game was Albany's ability to control the game. They were able to keep Pittsburgh State from getting into a rhythm. The Danes were able to make some crucial steals and score points off of them. Albany's defense was able to force turnovers and prevent the Panthers from getting easy shots.

The Danes also stayed out of foul trouble, committing only 12 fouls compared to 25 for Pittsburgh State. They were able to control the game and not give their opponents a chance to come back. The Danes were able to keep the game out of reach for the Panthers.

The Danes' next game is against the University of Scranton, a tough team to play against. The Danes are looking to continue their winning streak and build on their momentum.

Amoco B-Ball

by Steve Maginn

The Albany State basketball team opened its SUNY conference season with a victory over previously unbeaten Pittsburgh State, 70-58. The game was a game of two halves, with the Danes leading by 14 points at the half, 31-17. In the first half, Pitt had a solid start, but Albany took over in the second half, scoring 39 points to Pitt's 21. Albany's defense was key, as they held Pittsburgh State to just 21 points in the second half.

Every week, the Establishment trembles a little.

Because every week, a new star of the Guardian appears. It seems there is no end to the scandals, the controversies, the exposés, the hard-hitting journalism that keeps the Guardian at the forefront of the world's press.

The Guardian is a radical newspaper with an independent, critical outlook. It cuts through the confusion and misconception with accurate, thought-provoking articles that reflect the passions and concerns of its readers.

On this week's cover, you'll find a story about the latest developments in the world of film. The Guardian's film critic, Mr. Everson, has written a comprehensive analysis of the latest release, "The Miracle of the Wolves," a film that has caused quite a stir in the cinematic world.

Mr. Everson's review is accompanied by a series of photographs that capture the essence of the film. You'll also find interviews with the film's director and leading actors, providing valuable insights into the making of the film.

So, why not pick up a copy of the Guardian this week and read about the latest in the world of film and beyond. The Guardian is your source for the truth, nothing but the truth.

What's Happening
In Bangladesh?

Analysis

Abdur Rahmon, 18, a student at the University of East Bengal and a member of the Awami League, the left-wing political party that led the Bangladesh Liberation War, has been arrested in Dhaka, the capital of Bangladesh. Rahmon, who was involved in the anti-government movement, is suspected of being a leader of the student movement that opposed the government's decision to impose martial law.

Bangladesh, a former province of Pakistan, declared its independence in 1971 after a bloody war against the Pakistan military. The war, known as the Bangladesh Liberation War, lasted for nine months and resulted in the deaths of millions of people. The war ended with the victory of the Bangladesh Liberation Forces, who secured a peace agreement with the Pakistani government.

Since then, Bangladesh has faced numerous challenges, including political instability, economic difficulties, and a high rate of population growth. The country has also been affected by natural disasters, such as floods and cyclones, which have caused significant damage to the economy and infrastructure.

In recent years, Bangladesh has made efforts to improve its economic situation and address the challenges it faces. The government has been working to attract foreign investment and promote economic growth. It has also been working to improve the education and health systems, and to provide better opportunities for its citizens.

Despite these efforts, Bangladesh continues to face challenges, including political instability, corruption, and social inequality. The country remains one of the poorest in the world, with a high rate of poverty and limited access to basic services such as education and healthcare.

The future of Bangladesh remains uncertain, with ongoing political tensions and economic challenges. The country will need to continue to work towards stability and development in order to improve the lives of its citizens and address the challenges it faces.

Where has all the money gone?

In U.S. News

Maurice Rouge, Marion, Mich. -- Ten years ago, Victor A. Looper sat in an office at the University of Michigan in what was then the Student Senate building. Today, he sits in an office on the same floor as the president of the University of Michigan, but he is no longer a member of the student body. Instead, he is a member of the University Council, a body of 12 members who serve as the principal policy-making body of the University of Michigan.

The University Council is made up of the president of the University of Michigan, the provost, the vice provost for student affairs, the vice provost for academic affairs, the vice provost for student life, the vice provost for university and community relations, the director of the University of Michigan Foundation, the dean of the School of Law, the dean of the School of Business Administration, the dean of the School of Education, and the dean of the School of Engineering.

The University Council meets regularly to discuss and make decisions on a wide range of issues, including budget matters, faculty appointments, and student affairs.

In his role as a member of the University Council, Looper is responsible for representing the interests of the student body and ensuring that the needs of students are met.

The University Council is an important body that plays a key role in the governance of the University of Michigan. Its members are selected by the president of the University of Michigan and serve for a term of three years.
