Start in Milne

Teachers Enter Milne High
To Continue Second
Semester's Work

With the annual meeting in Milne Hall, the teachers enter the high school for the second term. The teachers who are taking the courses for senior students are urged to come and participate in the meetings, if possible. This year's emphasis is on the importance of the senior student in the school. The victorious seniors have been asked to be present at the meeting, and the presentation of the report will be made by the senior students. In the past, the teachers have been somewhat neglected in the high school, and the work of the year has been somewhat neglected. The parents have been doing the majority of the work, and the teachers have been doing the majority of the work.
College Constitutional Assembly

Next month will see the start of the New York State Constitutional Convention and the kick-off of the State College Constitutional Assembly.

Last November, under the quick and effective leadership of the Robert Roeser, instructor in government, interested students at the college whose purpose was to acquaint State college students with the fundamentals of politics today. Student officials were elected at the first business meeting, leaving the students two months to make regular meetings. The entire student body was divided into committees, each group comprising all the students from the same district. These groups chose their leaders who are working in the same committees, both the college and the constitutional design, and civil organizations in the state.

During assembly meetings, resolutions are introduced as time permits to the student body. If these resolutions are considered worthy of further investigation they are referred to the appropriate committees, study padrills and other findings to the general assembly at the various conferences held throughout the week. After the conference is over, the students are free to discuss the report and file a vote to determine the assembly's stand on the matter.

The titles of these resolutions indicate the attitude which members of the college assembly will take when they are appointed to the assembly's work. Since the assembly's work is voluntary, they are expected to be active in the work of the various committees.

Personal Viewpoints

We're a bit of being complacent. No one likes to be criticized, and we all have our weaknesses. But we should strive to be better. It's important to have a sense of humor, and we should all try to be more understanding. We should be more open-minded and willing to try new things. We should also be more willing to listen to others and be more considerate.

Statesman

Modern political-wise, the world is changing. It's important to be aware of the changes and to be prepared to adapt. We should be more proactive in our thinking and not just reactive. We should be more willing to take risks and to be more innovative. We should also be more willing to accept responsibility and to be more accountable.

The strongest statement— the best advertising— is to tell something about a product that the user can prove for himself. A lot of smokers have found that Chesterfield have a taste they like. Chesterfields are Milder. You can prove for yourself that Chesterfields SATISFY.
