Roberto Spocks Danes to 3-2 Win Over RPI

Forward Selca Knocks in Two Goals

by Mike Oial

The Danes knocked in two goals in the second half to help squash a RIT comeback in an important 3-2 victory Friday night to lead off the men's SUNY hockey schedule.

The win was the second for the Danes, who are headed to the ECAC tournament. RIT had beaten the Danes last season, but this time the Danes were able to get the better of the game.

The first goal was scored by forward Mike Selca, who had a goal and an assist in the game. Selca was able to get past the RIT goalie and score in the second period.

The second goal was scored by forward Brian Ahonen, who had a goal and an assist in the game. Ahonen was able to get past the RIT goalie and score in the third period.

The Danes were able to hold off a RIT comeback in the third period and win the game 3-2.

The win was a huge boost for the Danes, who are looking to make a run in the ECAC tournament.

"This was a huge win for us," said coach Mike Roy. "We knew RIT was a good team, but we were able to get the better of them tonight.

"I'm pleased with the way our team played," added Roy. "We were able to hold the pressure and keep the puck out of our net for most of the game.

"We're definitely looking forward to the next game," said Roy.
Thailand Coup Ousts Premchai

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) A military coup ousted the country's former prime minister Tuesday night, an official said. The coup was led by Maj. Gen. Prem Wachirawasdi, who is considered a pro-American, said the official, who was not named. Deputies, said Prem was among a group of about 50 military leaders who went to the parliament building at 5 p.m. and took over. The coup was announced on state radio.

Ford and Carter Exchange Harsh Criticism

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) President Ford and President Carter exchanged harsh criticism Tuesday night, each accusing the other of serious errors in foreign policy. Ford charged that Carter was too conciliatory with the Soviet Union, while Carter accused Ford of being too aggressive. The tense exchange was the climax of a long, bitter dispute over the nuclear test ban treaty.

Blue Law is Rendered Useless in Connecticut

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) The Connecticut legislature has approved a bill that abolishes the Blue Law, which prohibited the sale of alcohol on Sunday. The law was a major victory for the liquor industry, which had been opposed to the law for many years.
Panel Probes Rape Problem

by Judy Field

Over 150 people attended a panel on Rape and Suicide. A Thursday evening in the Campus Center Assembly Hall.

The program was presented by the Associated Student Government and the Student Press, and was moderated by Tom DePietro, chairman of the Associated Student Government. A large number of people from the University and the Albany area attended the panel.

Mark Bruecker, a member of the Columbia Student Association, opened the panel by describing the problem of rape in his school. He said that there are three major problems: the lack of education, the lack of counseling services, and the lack of reporting.

He said that many people are afraid to report rape because they fear being stigmatized or ostracized. He also said that many people are not aware of the resources available to them, such as counseling centers and legal aid clinics.

Bruecker said that the University administration should take a leadership role in addressing the problem of rape. He said that they should create a task force to study the problem and develop recommendations for action.

SUNYA Registrars Voters

2,028 students registered and 900 students applied for absentee ballots in the past few weeks as a result of a program to get SUNYA students to register and vote in the state's elections.

Although registration ended Oct. 5, it is still possible to pick up the form for an absentee ballot from the SUNYA Registrars Office in the Administration Building.

Lack of Interest Snuffs Out Myskania Re-elections

By Norma D. Kean

The student body’s lack of interest in electing new academic advisors at SUNY Binghamton has caused the university to cancel its election process.

In November 1976, SUNY Binghamton held its first election for students to vote on the academic advisors they wanted. The university's Student Association was responsible for overseeing the election process.

However, in the fall of 1977, the Student Association decided not to hold another election for academic advisors. The university cited a lack of interest among the student body as the reason for canceling the election.

The lack of interest was attributed to a number of factors, including the fact that students felt they already knew which advisors they wanted and that the advisors were doing a good job.

The decision to cancel the election process was met with mixed reactions. Some students were disappointed, while others were pleased that the university was not wasting its time and resources.

The university's decision to cancel the election process is a reflection of the growing trend among universities to rely on advisors who are already on the faculty, rather than holding elections for new advisors.

The lack of interest in electing new academic advisors is a concern for the university, as it may indicate a lack of student involvement and a lack of interest in the academic advising process.

In the future, the university may need to find ways to increase student interest in academic advising, such as by providing more information about the importance of academic advising and by involving students in the selection process for academic advisors.

OUT OF THIS WORLD
A 33-mi. Air Force sergeant who claims to have been abducted by aliens will take a case against the Government before the New York Supreme Court. He alleges that the Government did not inform him of the nature of the case and that he was not given a chance to be heard before the court. The Air Force has asked for a hearing, but the sergeant says that he will not attend. He claims that the Government has not given him a fair and impartial trial. The case will be heard in Washington, D.C.

Rovers over the past two years, he has received a $30,000 fine. A U.S. attorney in Memphis, Tennessee has been seeking the release of Larry Parrish, one of the defendants in the case. Parrish and Goldstein have both been found guilty of contempt of court. Parrish is now serving a prison sentence of five years and a $10,000 fine. A U.S. attorney in Chicago, Illinois has been seeking the release of two other defendants involved in the case. Goldstein's publications so that the government would be allowed to use them as evidence in the trial. The case is currently being heard in a federal court in Chicago.

Prior to the trial, the government had been seeking to have the defendants' publications suppressed. The government argues that the publications are obscene and that they should be suppressed. The defendants argue that their publications are not obscene and that they should be allowed to be published.

A Chance For Change

On September 7, President Fieldes released a proposed statement of mission for SUNY. In compliance with the provisions of UNITEAMs charter, President Fieldes has outlined a clearer direction for this university, and it points to public policy analysis.

When was the policy analysis. And more importantly, why aren't more students trying to find out? The answer would make a good cover story for Newsletter: "Morning on the Campus of the Seventy—Student Radicals, Where Are They Now?"

They're in the library, reading accounting or genetics or the sonnets of Shakespeare. To say that one percent of the students on this campus have read the mission statement is optimistic. It seems paradoxical that students so concerned with academic grades have no interest in the decisions that will alter the academic curriculum and faculty accordingly.

If the administration did not make it easy; the mission statement is not exactly light reading material. If anything, the convoluted format of the mission statement discloses understanding, and therefore discourages response. However, it is critical that some kind of response be made.

It's not enough that a few students facing cuts protest, or that the Committee of Concerned Faculty protest. Claims he maintains that the mission plan for reaction and response from all segments of the university. Who Needs Foosball?

When Herbert Cohen, the owner of Cohen's Deli, a local coffee shop, was asked what his favorite game was, he replied, "Foosball, of course!"

"For me, it's a game of strategy. You have to think ahead, plan your moves, and react quickly to your opponent's actions," Cohen explained.

Foosball is a game played on a rectangular table with eight miniature soccer players on opposite sides. The objective is to score goals by making the ball go through the opponent's goalpost. The game is typically played with two players, each controlling four players on their side.

Cohen's Deli is located in the heart of downtown and has been a favorite spot for locals and tourists alike. Visitors can enjoy a variety of delicious sandwiches and soups while playing foosball and strategizing their moves.

"Foosball is not just a game; it's a way of life," Cohen continued. "It brings people together and allows them to bond over a shared passion.

"I remember when I was a kid, my friends and I would spend hours playing foosball. We would compete against each other, cheering each other on, and having a great time.

"Now, I bring my love of foosball to Cohen's Deli, where people can come in and play while enjoying a delicious meal. It's the perfect way to spend a rainy afternoon or a lazy weekend."

Cohen's Deli is open seven days a week, from 8 am to 9 pm, and offers a variety of menu items to choose from. Whether you're in the mood for a classic deli sandwich or a hearty soup, Cohen's Deli has something for everyone.

So, the next time you're in the area, stop by Cohen's Deli and enjoy a delicious meal while playing a game of foosball. It's the perfect way to spend a day or just a few hours.
Stankiewicz is...

In conversation with Scott Thomas.

STAN KIEWICZ: When I say figure, it doesn't necessarily mean with hands and syndactylus. When I make a plinth and put two boulders in it, that to me, could be a figure because they could be eyes.

THOMAS: When you say figure, it doesn't necessarily mean with hands and syndactylus. When I make a plinth and put two boulders in it, that to me, could be a figure because they could be eyes.

STAN KIEWICZ: Sculpture today defines itself very, very, broadly. There's people who hang fabrics from high places and they call that sculpture and there's people who shine lights around in various ways and call it sculpture. One of the most beautiful things is the way that people are making the art of sculpture.

THOMAS: When you say sculpture, it doesn't necessarily mean with hands and syndactylus. When I make a plinth and put two boulders in it, that to me, could be a figure because they could be eyes.

STAN KIEWICZ: I think anybody who's in the art studio will want to be able to handle material that you can't shape very easily. I like the connection between people and objects. I don't have any sociological or historical messages. I like the connection between people and objects.

THOMAS: What would you say was the relationship between the process of making a piece and the finished object? Do you admire the plan or the mental image, or do you like the piece itself?

STAN KIEWICZ: It's improvisation from the start—anyway, whatever's going to happen next.

THOMAS: Could you explain one other thing that you've always wanted to be able to handle material that you can't shape very easily. I like the connection between people and objects. I don't have any sociological or historical messages. I like the connection between people and objects.

THOMAS: When Pop was fairly new, there were a lot of artists who were making art in the pop style. I'm talking about the art that's called pop art. There's a lot of things that are very interesting about the art that's called pop art. There's a lot of things that are very interesting about the art that's called pop art.

STAN KIEWICZ: Actually, when Pop was fairly new, there were a lot of artists who were making art in the pop style. I'm talking about the art that's called pop art. There's a lot of things that are very interesting about the art that's called pop art.

THOMAS: Do you have a sense of competition from your contemporaries?

STAN KIEWICZ: No, most of them are too different. If there's anything that you could say about the general world of art today, it's that it's multifarious: there are so many different styles and methods of working that you can't really pin down what the general world of art today is. But you can say that there are so many different styles and methods of working that you can't really pin down what the general world of art today is.
At Home with Lena

By DEBORAH DE VITO

May 1976

Lena Wood, 28, a wildlife photographer and poet, grew up in the southwest part of New York City. As a child, she always had a camera. Lena learned to make her own film and was a part of the underground groups that were doing weird things around the city. During her teenage years, she was involved in various political and social causes. She was a part of the Beat movement and was influenced by the likes of Allen Ginsberg and Jack Kerouac. Lena's parents were both artists, and she grew up surrounded by creativity. She attended New York University and later moved to San Francisco, where she continued her photography and writing career. Lena has published several books of poetry and has won numerous photography awards. She is known for her unique perspective on life and her ability to capture the essence of a moment in her photographs. Lena's work often explores themes of nature, the human condition, and the beauty of the natural world. She is a passionate advocate for environmental causes and has given talks and workshops on photography and poetry at various universities and art venues. Lena Wood is a true American original, a symbol of the counterculture of the 1960s, and a talented artist whose work continues to inspire and captivate.

Ford Increases Parkland

by Ed Horse

President Ford was on hand to announce that he plans to create a new national park in Alaska. The decision came after months of discussion and debate. Critics of the plan argue that the park would be too large and would displace the native population. Supporters believe it will be good for tourism and economic development.

Danettes Cop Third, But Drop Two

Gymnastics, meaning "to exercise the muscles," has been a popular sport for centuries. Traditionally, it has been one of the few socially acceptable reasons.

All members of the Danette's gymnastics team are experienced new members. The Danettes defeated Oneonta and headed to New Paltz this Friday, October 7. The Danettes will face their toughest opponents in the state tournament and with the Danette's season coming to a close.

Danettes Cop Third, But Drop Two

The Gymnastics season is upon us. The Albany State Women's team have been working over the summer months preparing to match and exceed the performance level set by the 1976 Summer gymnastics champions. The performance level was set by the international stage of the World Cup in 1976. The University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, the Russian Olympic team, and the women's gymnastics team from the United States were all present.
Ruggers Third in SUNY Championships

by Ken Korn

The Ruggers tied their third straight game and won their first SUNY Rugby Championship title at Albany. Albany joined Stony Brook and Buffalo as champions of the SUNY system.

In their game against Brockport last weekend, the Ruggers triumphed 18-0. This was the second time this season that Albany has defeated Brockport, the first being 14-0.

This Saturday, the Ruggers take on the Saratoga Booters in SUNY Championships.

The Junior Varsity cross-country team has impressed in its first few contests. The team has won both of its first two meets, outscoring its opponents by a combined score of 19-44.

The team's next contest will be against Hinghamton, scheduled for this Saturday. The meet will settle third place for Albany.

How much foam on a glass of beer?

by Budweiser

Budweiser is proud to present "Beer Talk," a series of articles on the art and science of beer. In this issue, we focus on foam, the delightful frothy cap that forms on the surface of a beer.

How much foam is too much foam? Beer foam is an important characteristic, adding to the overall drinking experience. But too much foam can be a concern, as it can interfere with the drink's taste and aroma.

In this article, we explore the science behind foam formation, examining factors such as the beer's alcohol content, carbonation level, and temperature. We also discuss how to control foam, including techniques for pouring a perfect pint.

Enjoy your beer! And don't forget to check out the next installment of "Beer Talk."
Unsteady Danes Rush To Win; Trip RIT, 17-7

Flags and Fumbles Keep Danes Down; Upcoming Week Off Vital To Ford

Albany Statelären have played a lackluster first half of the season, scoring a total of 22 points in their first four games. The Danes have struggled on both offense and defense, leading to a 1-3 record. However, in the past two games, they have turned things around, scoring a total of 57 points and improving their record to 2-3.

In their most recent game, the Danes faced RIT and were able to put together a solid performance. They scored 17 points in the first half, led by a strong running game. The Danes were able to control the ball for most of the game and put up a great deal of pressure on the RIT offense.

On the defensive side, the Danes were able to keep RIT scoreless for most of the game. They were able to shut down RIT's running game and put up a strong defense.

With their upcoming week off, the Danes will have the opportunity to rest and regroup. They will be looking to improve their performance on both sides of the ball and continue their winning streak.
