$3.00 per year

Miss Martinez and Professor York to Speak
The seventy-seventh annual meeting of the New York State Teacher's Association and Affiliated Organizations will be held at Syracuse November 27, 28 and 29. Arrangements are being made by the teachers of Syracuse to entertain the largest delegation that has ever attended a New York State meeting of teachers. Headquarters will be at the Orange Hotel, and the general meetings will be held at the University Gymnasium, within walking distance of headquarters.

After the general meeting on Monday evening, November 27, an entertainment and reception will be tendered the visiting teachers at the Syracuse University Gymnasium by the Syracuse teachers in cooperation with Syracuse University.

There will be commercial exhibits, besides kindergarten, manual training, and grade displays in the various schools of the city. Visiting teachers will find a limited display of regular school work in various class rooms of

Swift Aerial Game Brings St. Stephen's Victory
STATE UNABLE TO STOP PASSES
State went to Annapolis Saturday with high hopes of victory, but they met an eleven whose fast passing they were unable to stop, in spite of a hard and clean fought battle. In each of the first two periods St. Stephen's scored four touchdowns, but State was unable to score. During the intermission State woke up and the Beaks carried no more passes across the line. State's fumbles cost them a number of scores and opened up the way for St. Stephen's. The swift, hair-raising passing of the full blooded Indian warrior, Deloria, practically won the day for the Redskins.

Christie and Crane put up a game defense, but they were unable to keep back the passing of the St. Stephen's eleven. State's line work was splendid. Not once could St. Stephen's gain on rushes. Hayes pushed back the opposing team again and again. Smith and Houlihan played their regular strong games.

Juckett and Hornung, who were working the ends kept back most of the plays in their territory. The backfield was a bit weak in the second. The tackling was much better than at the beginning of the season, and the game was a hard fight to the finish.

Christie and Smith were taken out during the game on account of injuries and State thereby lost two hard fighting men.

Chemistry Club
Initiates Entertain
Banquet and Stunts Feature
With an attendance of 90 per cent of its undergraduate members as well as several alumni the Chemistry Club staged its annual initiation party on Wednesday afternoon. The affair opened with a club song followed by a few stunts. The initiates then served supper to the club members and then entertained them by stunts and contests. The two biggest hits of the evening were Harvey Fenner, dressed as a colored boy, telling the story of "Golgy Locks" and Muriel Daggett, dressed as a colored girl, singing a truly weird spiritual with the characteristic slides. There were athletic dancers, impersonators and other specimens more viewable than describable, who performed with vim. The initiates then served supper to the club members. When they were sufficiently nourished with soup, ham, salad, cake, and ice cream they obliged their loyalty to the club by repeating the sacred oath after the president. The constitution was then signed by the new members: Arletta A. Pluche, Frances Da Bois, Ethis M. Bisham, Joyce Dwyer, Marion Lessing, Dorothy Taylor, Madge Wilson, Mabel Smith, Gundebich James, Elizabeth Bach, Mary Wright, Florence Dodds, Marcella Fox, Herbert Hormann, Donald Pugh, Elmer Stahltan, Muriel Daggett, Hermome Brab, Jennie Wayman, Edith Van Denburg, Harvey Fenner, John Cassavant, Dorothy Johnson, Harry Rice.

Every one of his posters "tells a story," a story of industry, of labor, of the lives of those hard-working men who are building the material foundation of nations.

It was during the war that Mr. Beneker's work first came before the public. His typical "Sure we'll finish the job" poster became known throughout the country. Of all the wartime artists, Mr. Beneker stands at the head of the list of those who sought to interpret the laboring class in a true and sympathetic manner.

Biology Trip
On Saturday afternoon at 2:16 a goodly number of people assembled at the end of the Delaware avenue line for the biology field trip. Under the guidance of Drs. Douda and 15th, the party crossed Graceland Cemetery and continued hiking until they struck Southern Boulevard, on which they went to the biology field trip. Special attention was given all the way to the oak, black, red, scarlet, and

A CHANCE FOR '23

Every senior has been asked to wear his or her cap and gown to chapel on Friday morning. Whether this shall become a tradition depends entirely upon the action of '23. The present senior class can set an example for future classes. I vote that if it has any member conforming to the new idea. But it only has to take a half-hearted effort, and the proposed plan will die an early death.

The seniors have a great opportunity to show their spirit. They have their cap and gown, have we not the privilege of scattering our books and other paraphernalia over the floor? The floor can be covered by caps and gowns. But we only have to do this, and all the empty seats or to sing to a noisy chattering crowd. Let's do a little practicing, and when the future than we have in the past.

The cheering practice in the future will die an early death. If there was not there would be no thing to do, and we humans always follow the line of lease resistance. I hope that we are able to keep it up. Let's do our bit for College Spirit. Let's make the most of every minute that there is. Of course, the upper classmen have gone through the struggles of being a freshman have fuller realizations of the pleasures and the responsibilities in their work and they love their college.

Some of us are coming to College from a great a distance than the others. Is this College Spirit? If so, then '26 has a right to attack it. College Spirit is not something to be carried in the back of your mind. It has to be carefully put away and brought out only on special occasions. It is not as easy and natural to do this as it is to attend rows of talks or to go to a noisy chattering crowd. Let's do a little more encouraging! When the class game start, '26 can show her class spirit, and a fine outlet for the damned up-sophomore-freshman rivalry will be provided. Let's start now and learn our basketball songs and cheers. Then let's go to every game and yell for our team. Some of the party remained in the woods for supper, but others whom necessity called were back in the city at 5 o'clock.
Coach Snavely explains changes in basketball rules

Important changes in rules

The first change that will be noticed by the spectators this year is in the marking of the court. The foul lines (five throw lines) are now continued entirely across the floor at each end. The floor space between this line and the end of the court is known as the goal zone. Each team must possess a personal foul in the goal zone, their opponents are given two free throws regardless of whether or not the player was fouled while attempting to shoot.

A second change of importance is the elimination of many technical fouls. Instead of calling a technical foul when a player runs with the ball, or jumps out of the ring, the officials will now call a violation and give the ball to the opposing team at the nearest side line.

A third change is one affecting substitutions. Incoming substitutes cannot communicate with the other players or their opposing team members. The rules are positive this year instead of negative or even indifferent as in the past. They are a big improvement over last year's set. The game as a result will be cleaner and faster than ever before.

Freshman girls out for championship

From the spirit and zest of the candidates who are turning out for practice, the coming season looks bright for the freshman girls. Who could have foreseen such high hopes for the championship when she learns that the captain of the team played last year for Rensselaer High School, while the guards are as they were? The team in fact was made up of substitutes. Incoming substitutes can wonder at their high hopes for the upcoming season.

Cold, hot, and Ice Cream Parlor

The Silver Bay Club will hold its second meeting Friday evening at 7.30 at the Delta Omega house. The club extends a most cordial invitation to all those who have over been to Silver Bay to a conference, to come to this meeting and help keep alive the Silver Bay spirit.
